BRUENING WINS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE IN REICHSTAG

Government Coalition Routs Fascist Combine by 82 Majority, Which Is 40 More Than the Most Optimistic Expected.

ADJOURNMENT TO DEC. 3 IS TAKEN

Hitlerites at One Point in Stormy Session Walk Out of Chamber—Social Democrats' Support Gives Victory to Ministry.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (Sunday) —Germany's new Reichstag wound up its first brief and tumultuous session soon after midnight today and adjourned until Dec. 3, after giving a sweeping vote of confidence to Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's coalition government.

The vote of confidence, 318 to 236, a margin of 82 votes in the chancellor's favor, was taken late Saturday evening and virtually assured the government's triumph. The government then proposed adjournment till December. Coalition spokesmen said that so many matters had been referred to committees for discussion that plenary sessions would be impossible for the present.

The deputies, however, accepted a motion by the Communists, the Nationalists and the Fascists to discuss amnesty for all political prisoners except those who had committed violence upon a member of a government. They took a brief recess.

Result Received with Boos.

Reconvening at five minutes past midnight, the Reichstag was in no mood for debate. The deputies immediately began to vote on the amnesty proposal, which was carried by 395 to 147.

The motion to adjourn was then called up and was passed by a rising vote. Announcement of the government's victory was received by Communists and Fascists with boos and catcalls.

Outside the Reichstag building, everything was quiet. A strong force of police kept watch all during the evening and was still on guard when the deputies began to go home.

The vote of confidence blocked 12 motions condemning the Bruening Government or its individual Ministers. The coalition majority of 82 votes was at least twice as large as the Government's most hopeful supporters had dared to prophesy. The vote of confidence had been generally anticipated, in view of several Government successes on previous votes, but it was surprisingly large.

The test of strength came on a motion by the coalition parties to proceed to the order of the day and virtually ignore the motions of nonconfidence, which was tantamount to sustaining the Ministry.

Fascists Create Uproar.

At the moment when President Paul Loebe ruled that the coalition motion took precedence over the others and should be immediately voted upon, bedlam broke loose on the Fascist and the Nationalist benches. Cries of "swindle" rose from the entire Right of the Reichstag. A Nationalist spokesman declared the Government needed a positive confidence vote and not merely the ruling out of the nonconfidence motions.

But amid general laughter from the Left and Center, President Loebe remarked that in 1925 just such a motion was proposed by Count Kuno Westarp, then a Nationalist leader, and was ruled constitutional.

The Fascists, however, demanded a vote should first be taken to decide whether the motion to proceed to the order of the day was permissible.

Balloting followed, and the coalition motion was voted permissible by 310 to 235 and was put ahead of the non-confidence motions.

The success of the coalition was made possible by the support of the Social Democrats, who are not officially members of it and are without representation in the Cabinet.

Taunted by Communists and Fascists alike, the Social Democrats threw their strength of 143 votes time and again to Chancel-

"LEGS" DIAMOND TOO NOTORIOUS FOR A PRIVATE HOSPITAL

Gangster Removed to Welfare Island When Polyclinic Complains.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Jack (Legs) Diamond, gunman, with four bullets still in his body, will spend the rest of his convalescent period in a city hospital on Welfare Island, next door to a prison.

Police took him there today in deference to the wishes of the Polyclinic Hospital authorities who were embarrassed by the notoriety attendant upon the gangster's presence.

His physical condition was such as to permit his removal, the doctors said, and Diamond himself consented to the transfer before they lifted him to a stretcher surrounded by policemen and loaded him into an ambulance which was preceded and followed by detectives in automobiles.

Police have made little progress in their search for the gangsters who shot Diamond last Sunday in the Monticello Hotel and kicked him so viciously as to break three ribs and a collarbone.

COCHRAN ACCUSES BUREAU IN DEATH OF VETERAN

Congressman Demands Inquiry in Case of Man Who Died on Way to Barracks Hospital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—An investigation of the alleged failure of the St. Louis Veteran's Bureau office to give prompt care to Charles H. Long, a tubercular veteran, who died in an ambulance while being taken to the Jefferson Barracks hospital, has been demanded by Representative John J. Cochran (Dem.) of Missouri.

In a telegram to the director today, Congressman Cochran said that Long had been permitted to remain at the Veterans' Bureau office in the Chouteau Trust Building from 10:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m., although obviously in a serious condition. Cochran asked that an investigator be sent to St. Louis to report on the situation.

The director's office said this afternoon that an investigation would be made, but officials were reluctant to make public more than the bare charges of neglect. It was not known whether an investigator would be sent to St. Louis.

An autopsy performed upon Long revealed the presence of a red substance in Long's stomach. An analysis of the stomach contents was ordered. Officials of the local Veterans' Bureau declined to discuss Long's death.

BRUNK ASSERTS CHARGES AGAINST HIM ARE FALSE

"HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF RENT ACCOUNT"

Charges His Chief Clerk Failed to Make Proper Mathematical Calculations of Interest Receipts.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18.—Larry Brunk, suspended as State Treasurer of Missouri Tuesday by Gov. Caulfield for alleged irregularities in his accounts, today declared his innocence, exxplaining the accusation is "predicated upon no more than a clerical omission which at all times was unknown to me."

After retaining John G. Madden,, Kansas City attorney, Brunk entered his first formal denial.

"The gist of the charges made against me as I understand them," he said, "are that I deposited excessive amounts of State funds in the Bank of Aurora, permitted that bank to default in the payment of the stipulated interest upon such deposits, and converted a portion of such defaulted interest to my own use. These charges are absolutely false."

$23,000 on Unsecured Notes.

Gov. Caulfield ordered the suspension after he was given a State Finance Department report crediting Brunk with irregularities in interest on State deposits in the closed Aurora State Bank. Brunk had borrowed $23,000 on unsecured notes from the depository located in his home town.

Edward G. Robison, Special Assistant Attorney-General, reported interest from State funds had been withdrawn by bank officers and placed in a special account, known as the "Brunk Rent Account." Four thousand, nine hundred dollars had been so withdrawn, it was said. The money was declared to have been used by the bank to pay interest and part of the principal on the unsecured notes and taxes on real estate owned by the State Treasurer.

Ignorant of "Rent Account."

In discussing the "Brunk Rent Account," the Treasurer said "neither the creation nor the existence of that account was known to me at any time prior to Oct. 1 of this year, four months after the bank had closed."

The chief clerk of the Treasurer's office, D. W. Tudor was charged by Brunk with not making "proper mathematical calculations upon receipt of interest from various repositories," including the Aurora depository. Oct. 1, Brunk said, he first learned of inaccuracies in interest payments, and an investigation was started at once.

Brunk declared supervision of State funds in designated depositories is under the direct supervision and control of the State Fund Board, composed of the Governor, the Attorney-General and the State Treasurer.

"Hence," the statement says, "the deposit of State funds in the Bank of Aurora was a matter determined and supervised by that board.

A Recognized Depository.

"That bank had been a recognized depository for State funds, not only throughout the present administration but in the two preceding administrations as well. The amount of State deposits in that bank at the time of its failure was only slightly in excess of the amount of deposits there at the time I took office; and this despite the fact that under the preceding administration that bank had been a successful bidder for only one-eightieth of the State funds, while under the present administration it had been allotted two-eightieths of such funds."

Prosecutor Investigating "Brunk Rent Account."

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 18.—Investigation from a new source into the dealings of Larry Brunk, suspended State Treasurer, with the closed Bank of Aurora, will be made soon, Charles R. Landrum, Prosecuting Attorney of Lawrence County, says.

Within the next week or 10 days, Landrum said tonight, he expected a report from a St. Louis auditing firm upon a recently completed examination of the Aurora Bank's records. When the report is available, the prosecutor said he would examine it carefully to "get at the

YOUTH ROBBED, FORCED TO ASSIST IN HOLDUP

Melvin Wild Kidnaped—Compelled to Drive Highwayman to Grocery.

Melvin Wild, 20-year-old clerk, of 4951 Highland avenue, took his mother to the Biddle Market last night and, before he reached home again, experienced the sensations of being held up, robbed, kidnaped and compelled to assist in another holdup.

He was waiting in his automobile on Thirteenth street near Biddle street when a man with a revolver slipped into the seat beside him shortly before 7 o'clock. He handed over all the cash he had, $1.40, and, obeying orders, drove to the grocery of Harry Brune at 1948 North Market street.

There the robber told him to leave the engine running and compelled him to walk inside. He stood helpless in the center of the floor, while the robber pointed his revolver at the grocer, walked behind the counter and took $15 from the cash register.

Brune was surprised when the man with the revolver ran out and drove away, leaving his supposed accomplice in the store. Wild explained to the grocer, as best he could, and later to the police. His automobile had not been recovered at a late hour.

John Puricelli, a chauffeur for the Famous-Barr Co., was robbed of $15 by two men who boarded his truck in the 5300 block of Delmar boulevard at 6 p. m.

Charles Merlotti was robbed of $100 by three men who held him up in his bar at 3193 South Kingshighway boulevard at 3 p. m.

Joseph Hussey, grocer at 3044 Arlington avenue, was robbed of $60 by a man with a revolver who entered the store at 8 p. m. and held up Hussey, his butcher, Fred Sewester, and a customer.

Miss Alva Lee Todd of Jacksonville, Ill., a guest at the Lennox Hotel, yesterday asked police to search for a sneak thief who entered her room while she was bathing, shortly after noon and stole $40 from her purse and jewelry valued at $250.

Arlie Gatlin, attendant at a filling station at 5604 Gravois avenue, was held up at 11:30 p. m. by two armed men who drove away in his automobile after robbing him of $70.

MISS INGALLS SETS WOMAN'S FLIGHT MARK

Crosses Continent in 25 Hours 35 Minutes—Robert Buck, 16, Establishes Junior Record.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Two new trans-continental air speed marks were established today, one by Miss Laura Ingalls of St. Louis, the other by Robert Buck, 16 years old of Elizabeth, N. J.

Miss Ingalls landed at Roosevelt Field with a flying time of 25 hours and 35 minutes from Los Angeles. A little later Buck dropped down at the Newark airport after 23 hours and 47 minutes in the air since leaving Los Angeles. Buck beat the junior record made recently by his friend Eddie Schneider. Miss Ingalis did not beat any record because no woman had ever before made an officially recorded flight from the west coast, but she established a mark for other women to shoot at. Miss Ingalls holds the record for barrel rolls and loops by women flyers.

Buck won the junior record for both west and east flights. The boy's mother, father, grandfather and a crowd of more than 500 were at the field when he landed.

A stiff wind blew across the field as Miss Ingalls landed and the chill weather kept spectators away.

It was snowing in Pennsylvania when she passed through, she said, but she was comfortable in her cockpit.

"I am not a bit tired," she said, "and this isn't the last record I'll try for, by any means. This is one of the first."

In case her competitors bettered her time, she said, "maybe I'll try it again. But I don't think I shall use this ship."

Miss Ingalls made the westward flight in 30 hours and 27 minutes, but before she had time to start back Mrs. Keith Miller had cut the record to 25 hours and 44 minutes.

Both the junior and woman's records are computed on a flying time basis and not, as is done in the open record, on elapsed time. The elapsed time of both Miss Ingalls and Buck are considerably more than the flying time, since both flyers stayed overnight at points on the way.

Mrs. Keith-Miller expects to take off from Los Angeles at 5 a. m. tomorrow in attempt to better Miss Ingalls' time on the West-East flight and Miss Eleanor Smith expects to make a similar attempt late next week.

BRAZILIAN REBELS REPORT VICTORIES IN SEVERAL PLACES

Claim Capture of Annitapolis, Where Federal Leader Was Killed and Supplies Seized.

TROOPS ALLEGED TO HAVE DESERTED

Government Trying to Stabilize Nation—Forces in Field Are Being Daily Increased.

By the Associated Press.

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, Oct. 18.—Widespread victories over Brazilian Government troops were claimed in a communique issued here today at revolutionary headquarters.

It was stated that a force commanded by Col. Mirandoling Machado defeated a detachment of Santa Catharina loyal troops at Annitapolis, killing three and capturing 33. The Federal commander, Fabrio Silva, was among the dead. Captured equipment included 70 rifles, three machine guns and 50,000 rounds of ammunition.

"From Ponta Grossa come advices that a general offensive has been initiated on the entire southern border of the State of Sao Paulo. Our advance guards have already clashed with the enemy, which yielded ground along the entire front.

"In the State of Minas Geraes our forces continue their victorious operations. A strong column under the command of Col. Aristracho is already near Juiz de Fora, a column led by Arturo Bernardes has penetrated into the State of Goyaz, taking the city of Crystalino Formoza.

"The northern army, under the command of Juarez Tavora, continues the invasion of Bahia, meeting no resistance. The State of Sergipe is also totally in our hands.

"The coast of the State of Santa Catharine still is occupied by our troops, which are preparing to take Florianopolis" (island port which is the only part of the south now occupied by Federals).

The same statement asserts that the revolutionary armies have won a second victory at Itarare, where a heavy battle was fought Thursday and victory claimed by both sides. The communique said that the Federals were completely routed and left much war material behind.

Government Seeks Plan to Keep Nation at Normal Pace.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 18. —Government leaders sat in numerous conferences today in a search for ways to keep the country operating normally while menaced on all sides by revolutionary soldiers.

While still claiming wide victories over the rebels, the Federal administration continues its preparations for sufficient strength to put down the rebellion. More reservists are mobilized daily, and troop trains are constantly moving out for battle.

President Washington Luis conferred today with Cabinet members, Senators, deputies and civic officials. He also issued a decree authorizing the Banco de Brazil to put out about $10,000,000 in paper currency, expecting this to improve the exchange quotation of the milreis. Rise in value of the peseta is predicted because of heavy coffee exports all this month, despite the revolution, and nearly a standstill of imports.

Recent coffee shipments included 70,000 sacks from Rio de Janeiro for New York and 315,000 sacks from Santos for foreign ports.

Still pointing to their success at Itarare, where a rebel army is alleged to have been driven back with heavy losses Thursday, Federal sources declared today new progress was being made on both the Sao Paulo-Parana and Minas Geraes fronts.

It was announced the rebels never had held Ourinhos (Sao Paulo), as asserted in their communique, and the Federals have been reinforced for an advance in that sector.

The Federals also say they have occupied the Minas Geraes cities of Muzambinho, Monte Santo, Tronquieras and Bom Successo.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.

A NEW tabloid weekly newspaper made its appearance today in the capital. It bears the title "Washington," and describes itself as a "journal of public opinion concerning the operations of our national Government," published with the co-operation of the Republican National Committee.

The first issue contains articles by Will Irwin and William Allen White; a cartoon by "Ding," and a poem by Arthur Guiterman.

A leading editorial says that while the periodical is "frankly and openly Republican," it seeks to give no impression of being "the spokesman for either the Republican party or the Hoover administration."

ZEPPELIN PROPELLER-DRIVEN CAR MAKES 99 MILES AN HOUR

(Copyright, 1930, by Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

HANOVER, Oct. 18.—The Zeppelin's ship car, driven by propellers, which was tried out today on the line between Hanover and Celle, may revolutionize railroad traffic.

The car, about 85 feet long, carries about 40 passengers. A speed of 60 miles an hour was reached in one minute and 94 miles per hour in two minutes. The maximum speed attained was 99 miles. The maximum speed thought possible is 150 miles an hour, but the distance between Hanover and Celle is only 28 miles, and the gas had to be shut off five miles from the end of the run to permit the car to be slowed down to a stop.

In private tests over the same stretch 113 miles an hour has already been reached. The car is driven by a 650 horse-power motor, is mainly of steel construction, has a streamline and resembles the upper half of a dirigible. It weighs 19 tons.

2500 AUTOS STALLED IN SNOW BETWEEN ERIE AND BUFFALO

Third Storm in 24-Hour Period Strikes Western New York District, Truck Bars Road.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Twenty-five hundred automobiles were reported stalled tonight in deep snow at Eighteen-Mile Creek and its vicinity on the main road between Erie, Pa., and this city. The third snowstorm in 24 hours to strike the western New York district east of Dunkirk tonight had assumed the proportions of a mid-winter blizzard and buried the whole countryside under a thick blanket.

The Dunkirk district reported a foot and a half of snow tonight.

The cars snowbound at Eighteen-Mile Creek are from all parts of this state and from Pennsylvania and Ohio. A huge truck first became stalled across the road and the other cars, forced to halt in a long line became fast while vain attempts to extricate the truck went on.

Many of the motorists abandoned their machines, plodded to nearby farm houses and villages and got quarters for the night.

KINGSFORD-SMITH BREAKS FLIGHT RECORD BY FIVE DAYS

Travels From England to Australia in 15½ Days; Lieut. Hill Delayed.

By the Associated Press.

PORT DARWIN, Australia, Oct. 19.—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith landed here at 2:26 this afternoon on his flight from England, breaking the record of Bert Hinkler by five days.

Hinkler made the England-Australia flight in 15½ days. Both Kingsford-Smith and Flight Lieut. C. W. Hill were attempting to lower the Hinkler record, but Hill was halted on the Island of Timor when his plane was damaged in an attempted takeoff. Kingsford-Smith made the last 50 miles of his record flight over the Timor Sea after taking off this morning from Timor.

The flyers were not attempting to race at first. Hill left England four days ahead of Kingsford-Smith. The Lieutenant was delayed by bad luck and the veteran Australian caught up with him.

Kingsford-Smith intends to wed Miss Mary Powell at Melbourne, while Hill, also an Australian, is on leave to visit his mother.

HORSE RACING IN MISSOURI FAVORED BY STATE BOARD

ILLINOIS COLLECTS $700,000 IN YEAR

Five Members of General Assembly Give Approval to Plan at Hearing of Agricultural and Livestock Commission.

A well organized movement to bring about enactment of a law by the next Legislature to legalize horse racing in Missouri with the type of pari-mutuel betting used in Illinois was disclosed at a hearing held yesterday at the Coronado Hotel by the Missouri Agricultural and Livestock Survey Commission.

This commission, composed of six members of the State Legislature, three from the Senate and three from the House of Representatives, was created by the Fifty-fifth General Assembly by joint and concurrent resolution, ostensibly to recommend legislation and provide revenue for state aid to vocational agriculture and county fairs. The source of revenue in mind at the time, and the only one seriously considered by the commission, was a tax on horse racing under strict state regulation.

It was apparent from opinions expressed at yesterday's hearing by members of the commission, that the body expects to draft a bill which would make possible the establishment of elaborate racing plants at St. Louis and Kansas City and possibly at the State Fair grounds.

"A Love Feast."

The hearing was in fact a "love feast" around a luncheon table spread by Ben G. Brinkman of St. Louis, president of the National Exhibition Co., with numerous speakers, members of the Legislature and others, approving the proposed racing bill.

State Senator B. T. Gordon of Clay County is chairman of the commission and other members are Senators J. E. Luther of Scotland County and E. C. Curfman of Nodaway County and Representatives Carroll Wisdom of Pike County, E. A. Duensing of Lafayette County and William P. Elmer of Dent County. All except Elmer attended the meeting and indicated a favorable attitude toward racing, provided the regulation is strict enough to maintain the sport on a high plane and the tax high enough to yield a substantial revenue for the county fairs. There were no dissenters present.

Representative Duensing, secretary of the commission, quoted figures obtained from the Director of Agriculture of Illinois showing the huge revenue contributed to fairs in that State by the people of St. Louis through their attendance at the Fairmount race track near Collinsville. The State revenue from Fairmount track in 1929 was $141,233, the largest amount from any of the several tracks in the State. It was estimated that from 85 to 95 per cent of this came from St. Louis. The total revenue from all tracks was about $700,000, of which $135,000 was used for prize money at the State Fair at Springfield, making it one of the best in the country from the standpoint of exhibitors, $260,000 for county fairs, and $40,000 for agricultural extension and premiums for 4-H clubs.

The Illinois tax is $2500 a day plus 20 cents for each paid admission. Racing can be maintained on this basis and the tax paid only when some form of betting is permitted.

Edward W. Foristel, a St. Louis lawyer, said he could not be satisfied with the type of regulation in effect in Illinois, that it did not give the customers a "run for their money." The regulation in Missouri should be stricter, he said, and he suggested that the law be enacted only for a test period of possibly two years after which it could be extended if satisfactory.

County Fairs Need Aid.

J. T. Garrett of Troy, Mo., president of the Missouri Association of Fairs and Agricultural Exhibitions, said something was necessary to assist the county fairs. He said that

ASSERTS U. S. HAS CONTROL OF POWER PROJECTS

Federal Board's Solicitor, in Brief, Attacks Ruling Made Recently by Attorney-General Mitchell.

DEFENDS RIGHT TO AUDIT BOOKS

Cites Court Decisions to Show Public's Rights in Navigable Streams Are Vested in the People.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Solicitor Charles A. Russell of the Federal Power Commission, in a brief filed today, placed himself in direct conflict with Attorney-General William Mitchell over an interpretation of the Federal Waterpower act as it relates to the commission's right to audit the books of hydro-electic power projects licensed under the act.

In a recent advisory opinion, Mitchell told the commission that under certain circumstances a proposed project on a non-navigable stretch of a navigable stream could escape the accounting provisions of the act, regardless of acts of Congress which had considered that stretch under Federal jurisdiction.

Russell in his brief today, while not specifically mentioning the Attorney-General's interpretation, attacked almost all of it's premises and arrived at a totally different conclusion.

Important to Government.

The legal battle is extremely important. If the Mitchell opinion is adopted by the commission, the Federal Government will lose control over a large portion of the hydro-electric resources of the country—some observers insist that the loss will go as high as 90 per cent. If the Russell opinion is approved, the Federal Government will retain control of virtually every hydro-electric project in the country started after passage of the waterpower act in 1920.

Another aspect of the battle is that the present power commission, composed of the Secretaries of War, Commerce and Agriculture, will cease to exist when the commission is reorganized, probably early in December. It has been rumored that at least one of the present members wants to accept the Mitchell ruling at once in order to establish a precedent, although the present commission probably has less than two months to serve.

Mitchell and Russell disagreed over the fundamental purposes of the Waterpower Act. Mitchell contended that Congress merely sought to protect navigation, and that as long as a hydro-electric project was on a portion of a stream not actually navigable, the Commission could issue a 50-year license and release the promoters from the accounting provisions of the act. Most of the recent power developments have been on or near falls on the upper reaches of navigable streams.

Determination of Navigability.

Russell, however, contended, with a substantial list of citations that Congress had enacted the law "for purposes of protecting the public's rights in navigable streams of the United States which are vested in the people." He cited United States Supreme Court decisions to the effect that navigability was determined whether or not the stream was capable of being used, or had ever been used in its natural state to transport persons or property—a comprehensive definition. He further cited that Congress had specifically declared that falls and shallows shall be considered as navigable for jurisdictional purposes.

Russell's brief was filed in reply to a brief offered by the Columbus Power & Electric Co. in a petition for release from the accounting supervision of the Commission on a licensed project on the Chattahoochee River in Georgia. In view of the Attorney-General's advisory opinion in the Cumberland Falls, (Ky.) case, and in the more recent New River (West Virginia) case, the company challenged the right of the accounting division to audit it's accounting, contending that project was on a "non-navigable" stretch of the stream, and that the navigation of the lower stretches would be protected by a mere license.

The commission's accounting division, under William V. King, had proposed to eliminate $646,040 from the company's capital account on the ground that this amount did not represent "actual, legitimate expenditures" on the project.

"License Not Scrap of Paper"

Russell, after arguing that both the so-called navigable and the non-navigable portions of a stream were under the jurisdiction of the Commission, as a delegation of power from Congress, continued by attacking the company's argument that it was beyond the accounting jurisdiction of the commission. A license, he said, should be a license, and not a scrap of paper.

"The waters of a non-navigable stream are the same waters that are in a navigable stream", he said. 'They are public waters and being public waters, Congress has a right to legislate as to their use when the use of those public waters would interfere with interstate and foreign commerce in a navigable stream below.

In its brief, the power company contended that the commission had no power to change, or order to be changed, the figures it gave as expenditures.

Need Only a Rubber Stamp.

To this, Russell replied, "If we assume the contention of the power companies—that our hands are tied for 50 years—as suggested, there is no necessity for a commission: there is no necessity for a chief counsel, there is no necessity for a chief accountant; there is no necessity for a chief engineer; there is no necessity for a solicitor; there is no necessity for anyone other than some Government clerk charged with the duty of rubber stamping the mail as it is received from the licensees.

The above paragraph is notable for its omission. Russell did not mention the office Executive Secretary, now held by Frank E. Bonner. Russell has testified before Congressional committees that Bonner had tried to minimize the duties of the commission as the Solicitor saw them by trying to take the accounting work away from Accountant King.

LEWIS ASSAILS G. O. P. DELAY IN AIDING UNEMPLOYED

Illinois Senatorial Candidate Pledges Party's Co-operation in Helping Relieve Distress.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 18.—James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, closed his down-state campaign tonight by pledging the support of the Democratic party to any constructive program that may be offered by the Republican administration for ending unemployment and business depression.

"The Democrats in every section of Illinois will join Republicans and every form of citizenshp to lay and party politics or sectional division aside to co-operate with the President and assure him of our aid in any steps he may take in behalf of the unemployed and poor," said Lewis.

He then assailed "the failure of those in power to take earlier measures of relief," assailing both Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, his Republican opponent, and Gov. Emmerson. He interrogated his audience as to when Mrs. McCormick ever sought to relieve the poor and unemployed and asserted Republican leaders had dodged the distress caused by lack of employment in Illinois until the situation became "so deplorable they were compelled to take belated cognisance of the fact."

BRIAND ILL FOR TWO WEEKS

Copyright, 1930, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Considerable anxiety is expressed here over the health of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand. For two weeks since he returned from the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva he has been confined to his room in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs due to a cold contracted at Geneva. It is said he is hardly strong enough to go to the Chamber of Deputies which will open Nov. 4.

The normal Nationalist opposition to Briand's ideas of rapprochement with Germany and of an economic European federation feels itself in a stronger position since the success of Adolph Hitler's National Socialists in Germany and Briand's failure to make progress at Geneva with his ideas of the Union. They are preparing an attack on him and threaten the Tardieu Government on account of Briand's presence in it.

quarters here of two defections from Federal to rebel ranks.

He said the Fourteenth Battalion of Brazilian Scouts from Florianopolis had come over to the revolution, as had the Twenty-eighth Scout Battalion at Aracaju. Florianopolis, on an island off the coast of Santa Catharina, is the only point in the Southern states now held by the Government, while Aracaju, capital of the State of Sergipe, was captured from the Federals yesterday.

Vargas listed the following states as now in the revolutionary fold:

Maranhao, Piauhy, Ceara, Rio Grande do Norte, Parahyba, Pernambuco, Alagoas, Sergipe, Minas Geraes, Parana, Santa Catharina and Rio Grande do Sul.

He added that there were internal disturbances in the states of Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, Para, Espirito Santo, Goyaz, Matto Grosso and Amazonas.

Vargas is President of the State of Rio Grande do Sul, which began the revolutionary movement, but now is termed Generalissimo instead of President in all revolutionary dispatches. He is in personal command of the rebel army.

State of Espirito Santo Reported in Hands of Insurgents.

PERNAMBUCO, Oct. 18.—Reports were received here today that the State of Espirito Santo, lying on the coast north of Rio de Janeiro State and east of Minas Geraes, was under the control of the Brazilian Insurgents.

Rebel planes have dropped proclamations over the Federal capital announcing the Insurgents expected to triumph before Oct. 30.

SALINE (MO.) BANK HELD UP; ROBBER ESCAPES WITH $2360

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, Mo., Oct. 18.—A well-dressed, unmasked robber, abount 25 years old, held up Roy R. Finney, cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Saline, near here, at noon today and escaped with $2360.

Finney said he was alone in the bank when the robber entered, with pistol drawn. He was ordered to lie on the floor while the young man scooped cash from the money drawer. Finney then was forced to open a safe in the vault and was locked in, he said. He escaped in 10 minutes, using wrenches kept there for such an emergency.

This was Mercer County's first daylight bank holdup.

U. S. SCHOONER BEATS 10-YEAR CHAMPION

The Thebaud Wins Lipton Fishing Boat Trophy From Nova Scotian Rival.

By the Associated Press.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 18.—Gloucester hailed a new champion of the fishing fleet tonight, the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, which today won its second straight victory from the Blue Nose, out of Lunenburg, N. S., champion of the Canadian fishing fleet and undefeated in a sailing contest since its launching nearly 10 years ago. With the victory went the Sir Thomas Lipton International fishermen's challenge trophy and $3000 of a $5000 purse. Blue Nose received the rest.

Capt. Charles Johnson sailed the Gloucester schooner in the absence of the old skipper, Capt. Ben Pine, who was prevented by illness from continuing the series after Thebaud's first victory over Blue Nose a week ago last Thursday.

The defeat was particularly bitter for Capt. Angus Walters, skipper of the Blue Nose, for it was the first race the Blue Nose had lost since he took command of the big salt banker.

The race was twice around an 18-mile triangle and a mile and five-eighths up the harbor, a total of 37⅝ miles. It was on the third six-mile leg that the Thebaud won the contest.

Blue Nose had preceded Thebaud to the 12-mile mark, but Angus immediately put his big salt banker about and tacked in toward the eastern shore. Not only did Thebaud find a better breeze off shore, but a shift in the breeze to the westward also favored the Thebaud.

The Thebaud reached the 18-mile mark in a single hitch, nearly 14 minutes ahead of Blue Nose and from then on the race was a hopeless stern chase for the Nova Scotian champion, which was nearly eight minutes behind at the finish.

out of 50 to 60 local fairs that were operating prosperously 10 years ago only about 20 survive and that they have a hard time meeting expenses. He said that $1500 to $2000 prize money from the State would be of great help to them. He told of a meeting of the association at Sedalia last spring at which a resolution was adopted recommending a racing law that would provide revenue for the fairs.

Several St. Louis members of the Legislature spoke in approval of the racing proposal and said they thought St. Louis would be in favor of it. Brinkman said the directors of the National Exhibition Co., owners of The Arena, where the National Dairy Show is held, including a number of prominent St. Louis business men, were behind it. One of these, Edward A. Faust, spoke in support of the proposal.

W. Rufus Jackson, secretary of the Missouri Horsemen's Association, told of the work that is being done for the measure and said it was the desire of all those supporting it to make sure that the sport, if legalized in Missouri, will be so regulated as to make it orderly and respectable.

DEMURRER TO "FIXING" CHARGE IS SUSTAINED BY COURT

Judge Holds Case Against Jack O'Connor and James V. Glancy Constitutes Entrapment.

A demurrer filed after a preliminary hearing two weeks ago for Jack O'Connor, former manager of the Browns' baseball club, and James V. Glancy, president of the Marquette Hotel Investment Co., was upheld by Judge Weinbrenner in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday on the ground that the case against the defendants constituted entrapment.

They were charged in a warrant with larceny by trick on the complaint of William Knirihm, insurance agent at Vincennes, Ind. Knirihm, arrested for driving when intoxicated, testified he paid $200 to O'Connor in Glancy's presence with the understanding that O'Connor was to "fix" the charge of drunken driving. Knirihm testified he paid the money after he had conferred with Circuit Attorney Miller and was aware that O'Connor could do nothing to assist him.

O'Connor told detectives he had taken the money merely as a joke and intended to return it. Glancy said he was merely trying to do a favor for Knirihm, a customer of the Marquette Hotel Garage, in introducing him to O'Connor.

NATIONALISTS TO INSIST ON DOMINION STATUS FOR INDIA

15 Delegates Arrive in London to Attend the Round Table Conference.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Indications were seen today that the Indian delegates to the forthcoming round table conference on India, which will convene some time next month after the Imperial Conference closes, will be satisfied with nothing less than dominion status for Britain's Asiatic domain.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. R. Jayakor, the moderates, who acquired the title of "peacemakers" for their efforts to settle the strife between Indian Nationalists and the government, were among 15 distinguished delegates who arrived from India today to attend the conference.

"We have come to press for a scheme of dominion status with such temporary safeguards and adjustments as may be necessary," Jayakar told an interviewer, "and India is not going to be satisfied with anything less."

Both Sir Tej and Jayakar conferred a number of times this summer with Mahatma Gandhi and other imprisoned Nationalist leaders, but their efforts to halt the Nationalist civil disobedience campaign did not succeed.

The Nationalists themselves opposed the round table conference.

If any evidence of a criminal violation should be brought to light, jurisdiction in the case would lie in Lawrence County, Landrum said.

Text of Brunk's Statement on Suspension as State Treasurer

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18.—The text of a statement issued here late today by Larry Brunk, State Treasurer of Missouri, suspended from office last Tuesday by Gov. Caulfield, follows:

The action of Gov. Caulfield in purporting to suspend me from the office of State Treasurer of the State of Missouri, and in directing the Attorney-General to institute quo warranto proceedings against me was without notice to me and came as a complete surprise. I have steadfastly asserted my innocence of the charges made against me and expressed my confidence that a hearing upon those charges would result in a complete vindication. At this time I wish again to declare that I have been guilty of no improper conduct and that there is neither warrant nor justification for the various charges brought against me.

The gist of the charges made against me, as I understand them, can be expressed as follows: That I deposited excessive amounts of state funds in the Bank of Aurora, permitted that bank to default in the payment of the stipulated interest upon such deposits, and converted a portion of such defaulted interest to my own use. These charges are absolutely false.

The deposit of State funds in designated depositories is a matter under the direct supervision and control of the State Fund Board, composed of the Governor, the Attorney-General and the State Treasurer. Hence, the deposit of State funds in the Bank of Aurora was a matter determined and supervised by that board. That bank had been a recognized depository for State funds, not only throughout the present administration, but in the two preceding administrations as well. The amount of State deposits in that bank at the time of its failure was only slightly in excess of the amount of deposits there at the time I took office; and this despite the fact that under the preceding administration that bank had been a successful bidder for only one-eightieth of the State funds, while under the present administration it had been allotted two-eightieths of such funds. This allotment was made by the State Fund Board above mentioned.

The deposits in the Bank of Aurora were at all times known to the State Fund Board, exercising control over that matter. Monthly reports, moreover, were made to the Governor disclosing the exact amount of State deposits in each State depository. It is further significant that other banks, during the same period, under allotments of only one-eightieth, had State deposits in excess of any amount ever deposited in the Bank of Aurora under its two-eightieths allotment. This, as well, was necessarily known to the members of the State Fund Board. Hence, there can be no question of impropriety or concealment in connection with the deposits of State funds in the Bank of Aurora. Not only were these deposits proper, but every cent of State funds deposited in that bank is today properly secured by securities in the office of the State Treasurer. As a result the State will suffer no loss on account of these deposits.

There is equally no truth in the charge that I knowingly permitted the Bank of Aurora to remit to my office less than the stipulated interest charge upon State funds. The clerical details of my office are necessarily matters in the hands of the clerical force. The chief clerk, Mr. D. W. Tudor, was charged with the duty of examining the interest collections from State depositories upon State funds, and verifying the amount thereof. It was not until Oct. 1, 1930, that I first learned of any inaccuracies in such interest payments. Thereupon, a careful audit and investigation were immediately made, and it was discovered that not only the Bank of Aurora, but some five or six other banks as well, had been inaccurate in transmitting to the Treasury the proper amount of interest. Some of these banks were in default; some of them had erroneously transmitted more than was properly due from them. Hence, it is manifest that there was no discrimination in favor of the Bank of Aurora. Mr. Tudor, moreover, advised Gov. Caulfield that he assumed full personal responsibility for any failure accurately to determine and collect the amount of interest from the various State depositories.

In this connection I do not wish to appear to shirk any responsibility of mine for the efficient management of my office. It is obvious, however, that it would be a physical impossibility for any State Treasurer to discharge the duties of each and all of the 30 or 35 employes in his office. Any public official in such a position must necessarily rely upon the efficiency of his subordinates. I may add in this connection that there is no question of the good faith and the ability of Mr. Tudor. He did, however, fail to make the proper mathematical calculations upon the receipt of interest funds from various depositories, which it was his duty to do under my instructions. This failure on his part was doubtless due to the pressing nature of his many other duties in that position; but such failure was, nevertheless, not known to me until the date above mentioned. At no time did I ever cause or knowingly permit the Bank of Aurora, or any other bank, to default in the payment of the proper interest upon State funds. As a result, this accusation is predicated upon no more than a clerical omission which was at all times unknown to me.

The final charge of converting State funds to my own use is necessarily dependent upon the truth of the charge last considered. If I did not knowingly permit the Bank of Aurora to default in its proper interest remittances, then obviously I could not be a party to any conversion of interest funds unremitted. The charge of conversion rests upon the discovery of a certain account in the Bank of Aurora, after its failure, entitled the "Brunk Rent Account." Neither, the creation nor the existence of that account was known to me at any time prior to Oct. 1 of this year, four months after the bank had closed. I was neither party nor privy to that procedure. I never received from the Bank of Aurora a deposit slip or other notice of any kind of such an account or any deposits therein; I never drew a check against it. This charge, dependent upon the truth of the charge above considered, will, like that charge, be conclusively disproven upon a disclosure of all the facts.

I shall not only welcome but insist upon a searching investigation of my acts and conduct, official or unofficial. Any such investigation can have no result other than my complete vindication.

ROBBERS IN GUISE OF LABORERS ROB BRENTWOOD BANK

AUTO ABANDONED 2 MILES FROM SCENE

H. A. Coon Forced to Open Vault and Funds to Cash Pay Checks Are Placed in Flour Sack.

The clangor of a burglar alarm gong at Manchester and North and South roads yesterday morning sent policemen scurrying with drawn revolvers to Brentwood Bank, just west of the intersection, at 8825 Manchester road.

But help had come too late. A few minutes before the alarm had sounded two holdup men, dressed in the white overalls and jumpers of plasterers, had left the bank carrying a bag which they had just filled with $7100 in bills from the bank's vault.

In the bank the policemen found Horace A. Coon, cashier, just releasing himself from the sash cord bonds with which the robbers had tied him. Before freeing himself he had managed to get to his feet and had set off the burglar alarm by pushing the button with his elbow.

Auto Abandoned by Robbers.

A small boy saw the two men leave the bank carrying a filled flour sack and, without knowing a robbery had been committed, had watched them get into a red Buick coupe and drive north on a gravel road just west of the bank. Later the machine was found where the robbers had abandoned it on Eager road near Hanley road, two miles from the bank.

Coon told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the two robbers were standing in a doorway next to the bank when he stopped his car in front of the building at 7:45 o'clock.

"They were in white overalls and one of them carried a plasterer's level," he said. "I supposed they were workmen waiting to cash their pay checks. But as I unlocked the door they suddenly came up from behind. One of them poked me in the back with what I thought was a pistol and said, 'go ahead and open it or it will be too bad for you.'"

Cautioned to Take His Time.

Coon said the men followed him into the bank, keeping behind him so that at no time did he get a good view of them. He was ordered to open the vault and when he fumbled at the inner combination after opening the main door was cautioned to "take your time and you won't be hurt."

The money, in bills of small denominations, was in two tellers' cage drawers on the floor of the vault. One of the men filled the sack with the bills, all of low denominations, while the other cautioned Coon not to set off the burglar alarm.

"Then they tied my feet and hands with sash cord," Coon said, "and carried me out in front of the vault door where they laid me on the floor. Without another word they left. When I heard the door slam I started to roll to a step which leads down to the tellers' cages.

Pushed Alarm With Elbow.

"There I got on my feet. I hopped back into the vault and pushed the burglar alarm button with my elbow."

The money had been delivered to the bank Friday night to meet the Saturday rush of pay checks. It was insured against robbery. The robbers, fleeing from the bank, left the level carried by one of them. It was taken in charge by the police who hoped to get from it the fingerprint of one of the men.

During the holdup Louis Honig, of 1412 Lay road, a director of the bank, tried to enter the building and concluded Coon had not arrived. He went across the road to a drugstore, made a purchase and was walking toward the bank when the burglar alarm was set off.

The Brentwood Bank was robbed of $6000 by holdup men Dec. 21, 1926.

BRUENING WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE FROM REICHSTAG

for Bruening's cause and finally sustained it.

The result cleared the way for the Government to proceed with its plans to relieve Germany's economic stringency.

It is considered likely that the Government will now be in a safe position at least until the middle of December.

Government Measures Carried.

At the afternoon session the Government's $125,000,000 international credit bill passed its third and final reading by a vote of 325 to 235.

The Reichstag voted a 20 per cent cut in the monthly pay of its own members, amounting to 750 marks, and a 50 per cent cut in the fee for attending special committee amounting to 25 marks per session. These cuts were part of the Government's program.

The first test of strength between opposing factions in the Reichstag came when the coalition parties demanded that emergency decrees promulgated by the Government under Article 48 be referred to the ways and means committee. The motion was carried 339 to 220. The opposition rallied its forces without avail. The Social Democrats voted with the Government amid the jeers of the Communists and National Socialists (Fascists).

The Government won another victory when the coalition motion to refer the Young plan and Versailles treaty revocation proposals to the Foreign Affairs Committee was carried. The vote was 322 to 236.

Fascists Walk Out.

In the midst of oratory and heckling, before the decisive voting of the evening, the Fascists, shouting, "Germany, Awake!" arose in a body and walked out of the Reichstag.

Communists and Fascists engaged in a wordy battle. The Fascist Von Oldenburg was speaking on the Reichswehr when he touched the subject of the recent Leipsic trial of three Fascist officers. The Communists stood up and cried "Down with the Fascists!" and the Right wing Hitlerites, replying, left the chamber.

Chancellor Bruening suddenly found himself called upon to arise and defend President Hindenburg. Von Oldenburg had intimated that the President was not standing behind Gen. Wilhelm Groener, Minister of Defense.

The Chancellor said: "I feel obliged to reply to Von Oldenburg since he has dragged the person of the Reich President into the debate, a thing which is most unusual in this house.

"Von Oldenburg, knowingly or not, tried to represent the President and the Defense Minister as differing. This I must refute. The Minister of Defense enjoys the confidence of the President to the fullest degree."

Assails Fascist War Talk.

Blame for Germany's adverse economic situation was laid at the door of Adolf Hitler's National Socialists following in the Reichstag by a Socialist spokesman, when the left wing contingent suddenly flared up earlier in the session.

The Fascists, the Socialists charged, had, with their wild war talk about annexation and tributes, "brought upon Germany in defeat just that kind of treatment."

The speaker, Wilhelm Hoegner, asked the Reichstag members to bear in mind that it was the Socialists who, during the war, did the most to discourage such talk and that it was the Socialists, as Nationalists after the war, who accomplished liberation of the Rhineland.

Instantly the hall was a scene of confusion. Hoegner had been delegated by his group to respond to harping of the opposition on Socialist weakness in respect to the Versailles treaty. His words were greeted with furious shouts of "Get out!" and "French agent." One Fascist with more lung power than the rest shouted: "He's doing dirty work for the French!"

The turmoil reached its limit when, in response to incessant calls Gregor Strasser, yesterday's Fascist speechmaker, entered into a verbal exchange with Hoegner.

Hoegner cried: "Strasser, don't provoke me or else I shall remind you of your broken pledge. In 1923 you broke your word of honor given to the Landshut police." The Landshut is a state guard body. Strasser replied hotly: "Only because it was politically necessary."

Hoegner came back with: "In other words, breach of your pledged word is a political matter with you?"

"Absolutely!" Strasser rejoined. There was a chorus of Socialist voices: "We will remember that."

In the moments that followed it was a question which had the floor, with both delegates shouting at once. This kept the opposing sides in a state of agitation which finally grew worse when charges of accepting money from France were hurled from the Fascist benches at the Socialist Breitscheidt, who has been a frequent delegate to Geneva.

Former Interior Minister Severing walked up to the speaker's desk and formally demanded that President Loebe call the Fascist to order.

There was a breathless moment as Severing went boldly through the Fascist section toward the cloak room. The left held itself tense and there was the atmosphere of an impending riot. The left obviously was waiting for Severing to be struck, but this did not happen. As the former Minister made his exit yells filled the chamber.

Says Ex-Kaiser Backs Hitler.

Considerable interest was aroused here in a story carried in the Acht Uhr Abendblatt alleging that the former kaiser was giving financial support to the Fascist party, which recently increased its representation in the Reichstag from 12 to 107. The newspaper gave no authority for the story.

Several members of the former Prussian nobility are openly supporting Hitler. The Duke of Coburg-Gotha, Prince Schaumburg-Lippe and the Princess Reuss are all giving him moral and financial backing.

Prettiest and Healthiest Babies

8-DAY ATTENDANCE AT DAIRY SHOW TOTALS 170,000

National Exposition of Pure Breds to End Tonight—Last Horse Event in the Arena at 2 P. M.

Unconcerned babies, pedigreed cattle and thoroughbred horses shared attention yesterday at the National Dairy Show which closes a nine-day exhibition at The Arena tonight.

The pure bred cattle, the finest of the nation's dairy herds, were on exhibition yesterday and will be inspected until the close of the show, but the crowds gathered yesterday about the finals of the baby show of the Women's Home Exposition on the mezzanine floor and the afternoon and evening events of the St. Louis National Horse Show in the show ring.

A total attendance of 170,000 since the dairy show opened last Saturday had been registered yesterday evening and executives estimated the season's attendance would be about 185,000. Yesterday's attendance was 29,350.

The expected crowd today would not be sufficient to raise the attendance at the show to last year's figure of 279,000. Officials of the show, however, expressed the belief that more practical dairymen were present this year, and accounted for last year's crowds in interest in The Arena itself, which was opened for the first time for the show.

Anxious mothers pressed close about the glass enclosed headquarters of the baby show as Roger Lee, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee R. McGee, 4170 Connecticut street, was declared to be the most perfect baby, from a health standpoint, of more than 700 babies participating in the various contests of the show.

Most Handsome Child.

The trophy for the most handsome child, irrespective of sex, was won by 22-months-old Richard L. Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Schmidt, 2538 Iowa street, Granite City. Richard, a boy with flaxen hair, didn't even smile as the other babies played about and those in the front rank of the crowd pressed their faces against the glass enclosure to see the winner.

Out of several large families entered in the "largest family contest" which would have delighted the late President Roosevelt, advocate of big families, the first award was made to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heidenfelder, who appeared with 12 children, 2 to 20 years old. Three other children have died. The Heidenfelders, who were married in 1907, said the children gave them no trouble but were "a bit noisy at times," since the family resides in a six-room house.

Final events in the horse show, regarded as the most important on the program, will begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Gymnastic Exhibitions.

An exhibition of gymnastic feats and fancy drills will be given at a free entertainment at The Arena tonight by the Turn societies of St. Louis. The Concordia Gymnastic Society, which won the national championship at the National Turnfest at Buffalo, New York, last summer, will present a model drill. An orchestral concert will begin at 7:30 p. m. and the exhibition will start at 8 o'clock.

Finals in the milk maid marathon will be held in The Arena at 7:45 o'clock. Special attractions will include an exhibition of high diving by Ray Woods, who dived recently off the Chain of Rocks Bridge, at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Practically all of nearly 1400 pure bred cattle, housed in the exhibition buildings, will be en route to their home farms in every section of the country, by tomorrow morning ready for a tour of fairs and cattle shows next summer, culminating with the National Dairy Show here.

DEMURRER HALTS TRIAL OF MOUNDS CLUB PROPRIETOR

Judge Fitz-Henry Sustains Plea of Defense Attorneys but Suggests That Government Appeal.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 18. — The trial of Harry Murdock, proprietor of Mounds Club, a gambling house in Madison County across the river from St. Louis, under an indictment alleging that he violated the law in refusing to answer questions of income tax examiners, has been deferred indefinitely by a ruling today in favor of Murdock on a demurrer to a special pleading in Federal Court here.

Last January an internal revenue agent accompanied by an attorney put Murdock under oath and called on him to name the recipients of $24,000, for which he claimed exemption in his income tax return of 1927-28. Murdock refused to give the names, but offered to pay the tax after he was called to account. In refusing to name the recipients he stood on his constitutional right not to answer questions that might incriminate him.

The record of this hearing, which was administrative and not judicial, was used to indict Murdock under the internal revenue statutes, which require taxpayers to answer questions concerning their incomes.

While the indictment was pending Harold J. Bandy of Granite City and Edmund Burke of Springfield, filed special pleadings for Murdock, to which District Attorney Walter Provine, demurred. Arguments on the demurrer were held Friday, the date seat for the trial, and Judge FitzHenry today ruled in favor of Murdock.

The point at issue was whether Murdock was within his rights in refusing to answer the questions of administrative agents on the ground that to do so would incriminate him. His attorneys argued that to invoke this protection, guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, could not be a violation of the law, and that their client was entitled to this protection.

The District Attorney took the view that Murdock in reality had not sought protection for himself in refusing to name the recipients of the money, but had endeavored to protect them against the levy of an income tax.

In overruling the demurrer, thus favoring Murdock, Judge FitzHenry suggested that the District Attorney appeal from his decision to the Supreme Court for a ruling on this point, calling attention to the fact that a question on this point has never been before the highest tribunal.

District Attorney Provine said he would appeal to the Supreme Court from Judge FitzHenry's ruling.

Arrow Rock, Mo., Reviews 100 Years of Its History

Gov. Caulfield and Senator Hawes Among 7000 Who Celebrate Anniversary of Historic Tavern—Pioneer Days Re-Enacted.

ARROW ROCK, Mo., Oct. 18.—With a parade and speeches by prominent Missourians, the Missouri D. A. R. today celebrated the one-hundredth anniversary of the building of Arrow Rock Tavern, often called the birthplace of Missouri history.

Beneath overcast skies, 7000 people from all sections of Missouri braved near-freezing temperatures to witness the re-enactment of pioneer days in pageantry. History repeated itself. Winding down the old Santa Fe trail from its starting place at the former home of George C. Bingham, crowded today with famous Bingham masterpieces, a parade of Indians, squaws and braves headed by a float depicting the naming of Arrow Rock, "Madonna of the Trail," retraced the route taken a century ago by pioneer Missourians.

The oldest settler in Saline County and the oldest today at the centennial observance was J. C. Kiethley of Mount Leonard. He will be 100 years old in February.

Gov. Caulfield, in a short address this afternoon, eulogized the sturdy pioneers who first settled in Missouri and furnished impetus for preserving the old tavern, where, beginning a century ago, hospitality was dispensed to the traveler along the westward trail.

Story of the Old Tavern.

When this old tavern came into being just a hundred years ago, Missouri was still on the edge of the Western frontier. Pioneers traveling the Santa Fe trail passed this way. Statesmen and soldiers, trappers and traders, freighters and explorers, adventurers and Indian fighters were the patrons of this old inn.

Senator Harry B. Hawes, in a short address, outlined history of the old tavern and the site surrounding, which has been made a State park.

The main streets of this little Saline County town are as winding as the trail they once followed. The bricks and stones of the old buildings are weather-worn but faint letterings over some doorways can still be deciphered.

The old Bingham home, in which the famous painter grew up, was sold about a year ago to a Negro family and moved to a hill overlooking the river.

Arrow Rock's Claim to Fame.

Some interesting facts about Arrow Rock are: It is situated on a high bluff overlooking the Missouri River, it is the home of Dr. John Sappington of the famous "antifever pills," it furnished three Governors, Meredith M. Marmaduke, Claiborn F. Jackson and John S. Marmaduke; the latter two are buried in Sappington Cemetery, a short distance west of Arrow Rock; it had a star shower in 1833; was once the county seat of Saline County; Arrow Rock Tavern established in 1830 had a cholera epidemic in 1849; and has a Methodist Church built in 1831.

The Sunday program will be featured by pilgrimages to the graves of Judge Joseph Huston, builder of the tavern; Governors Jackson and Marmaduke and Dr. John Sappington, all of whom are buried in Arrow Rock Cemetery.

Memorial wreaths will be placed on their graves and addresses, in observance of the surrender of Yorktown, will be given.

WINS $5000 DAMAGES OVER INCIDENT IN STORE

Mrs. J. H. Yount Was Accused of Taking Crackers Without Paying.

A jury in Federal Court yesterday awarded to Mrs. Minnie Yount, wife of Dr. J. H. Yount, of 5641 Clemens avenue, a judgment for $5000 damages against the Kroger Grocer & Baking Co., because a cashier in Piggly-Wiggly store at 5631 Delmar boulevard, later absorbed by the Kroger company, accused Mrs. Yount in the presence of other customers in the store of attempting to leave without paying for a 12-cent package of soda crackers which she had when she entered the store. The incident occured in Feburary, 1929.

Mrs. Yount testified she went into the store accompanied by her son, Jack, and that she was leaving with her purchases when the cashier shouted "You can't leave without paying for those crackers," and snatched the box from her.

"A woman tried to get away with that yesterday and didn't" she quoted the clerk.

She explained to the cashier, she said that she had purchased the crackers at a nearby grocery before entering the Piggly-Wiggly store and when the cashier refused to accept the explanation left the crackers with him and returned with the clerk of the neighborhood store who vouched for the truth of her statement. The Piggly-Wiggly clerk then apologized and returned the package to her, Mrs. Yount testified.

The defense denied any discourteous treatment of Mrs. Yount or any implied suggestion by the cashier of an attempt by Mrs. Yount to steal the crackers. The jury deliberated about 20 minutes.

W. M. STEBBINS SAYS HE SENT BOND TO GROCER NORRIS

Senator Norris' Chief Republican Opponent in Nebraska Primary Tells of $500 Donation.

CONTRIBUTED $350 IN CASH BESIDES

"Interesting," Says Nye of Investigating Committee, Which Expects to Press Inquiry Further.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18.—State Treasurer W. M. Stebbins, unsuccessful opponent of Senator George W. Norris for the Republican Senatorial nomination in the primary, admitted today that he was the donor of the $500 bond given to George W. Norris, a grocer of Broken Bow, Neb., after the grocer had filed as a candidate in opposition to Senator Norris.

Stebbins, in a signed statement, took full responsibility for the donation of the bond as well as a contribution of $350 in cash to aid the campaign to defeat Senator Norris. It was his first public admission that he had had anything to do with financing the senatorial candidacy of grocer Norris, which has been under investigation by the Senatorial Campaign Funds Investigating Committee.

Grocer Norris' name was barred from the ballot because of his belated filing and Senator Norris won the party's nomination with a total of 108,471 votes. Stebbins was second in the primary race with 74,486 votes.

Stebbins defended his contribution to the fund to be used against Senator Norris, declaring he was acting wholly within his rights. He expressed the opinion that the Senate Investigating Committee was "going outside its rights in trying to assist one of its own members to get back into the Senate."

In the statement Stebbins said the bond was purchased with his own money derived from the sale of products grown on his farm.

The United States Senate Committee investigating campaign funds has held two hearings in Lincoln in connection with the filing of the candidacy of Grocer Norris. At the last hearing it was testified that a $500 bond had been given to the grocer.

The committee, headed by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, was told that the grocer's filing the fee had been paid by Victor Seymour of Lincoln, who, following the disclosure, resigned from the Republican National Senatorial Campaign Committee with headquarters in Denver.

Grocer Norris told the committee that he had received the $500 bond but testified that he did not know who sent it to him. His attorney, Paul Johnson, told the committee that he had received the bond from Lincoln, but did not know who sent it to him. Johnson testified he handed the bond to Grocer Norris.

The Senate committee recently announced that it would return to Nebraska for a further investigation of the Senatorial campaign before the general election Nov. 4.

"Very Interesting," Says Nye of Stebbins' Statement.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18.—Senator Nye said today that the statement of W. M. Stebbins, Nebraska State Treasurer, was "very interesting," but made no other comment.

Subpenas for witnesses to testify before the Senate Campaign Funds Committee were served today by United States Deputy Marshals. Witnesses called included Shelby County officials and others who aided in conducting the August Democratic primary here. They were ordered to be present at a hearing Monday.

Colorado Investigation to Be Begun Probably Nov. 8.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. — The Senate Campaign Funds Committee has tentatively set Nov. 8 for hearings in Colorado of the charges of excessive campaign expenditures in the Senatorial race in that State.

PERFUMER AND FLASKS TAKEN

William W. Bramble, proprietor of the Layat Perfume Co., 5 North Third street, was arrested Friday after a policeman found two fancy flasks containing a colored fluid resembling whisky in his shop.

Police quoted Bramble as saying the bottles contained whisky for his own use, but inspection of their contents by police indicated they might contain cologne spirits, used as a base in making perfume. The liquid will be analyzed.

BOY BURGLAR GETS TWO YEARS

Lawrence Fellner, 17 years old, 6834 Dale avenue, was sentenced to two years in the Missouri Reformatory yesterday on his plea of guilty before Circuit Judge Brackman at Clayton to charges of burglary and larceny. His application for a parole was heard and denied shortly after sentence had been passed.

He was sentenced to a year in the reformatory last October and was paroled, after admitting theft of an automobile. The charges which he admitted yesterday grew out of the burglary of three Richmond Heights homes with two companions. Money and jewelry taken in the burglaries has been recovered.

HELD FOR FRAUD AFTER AD PROMISES JOBS TO INVESTORS

Chicagoan Fails to Satisfy Officers as to Business in Which Workers Were to Share.

A "help wanted" advertisement in a St. Louis German language newspaper promising jobs to steady, willing workers who would invest in their employer's business attracted Post Office Inspectors as well as job-hunters Friday and resulted in the arrest of Curt von Lindt, a guest at the LaSalle Hotel, on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Von Lindt said he was from Chicago, "where a lot of people call me Count." Officers found in his possession a check for $150 signed by Michael Stamm, 2409 McNair avenue. Stamm produced a receipt, written in German, which he said Von Lindt had given him and which stated that Stamm was to receive an interest in Von Lindt's business and a job at $30 a week doing light factory work. The factory, Stamm said Von Lindt had told him, was to be built in St. Louis and would manufacture a curtain rod for which Von Lindt held patent rights.

Questioned about the factory, Von Lindt failed to say whether construction had been started or where the site was. He also failed to name the Chicago bank in which he said he had $2000. He is being held pending issuance of a warrant. He is about 50 years old and says he has a family in Chicago.

Art Museum Adds Old Virginia Room to Its Period Collection

Pine Paneled Apartment From House in Alexandria-Built by Friends of Washington Bought for $3500.

City Art Museum in Forest Park, through fortunate purchases made over a period of several years, is acquiring a representative series of American period rooms at an expense far less than had been anticipated. The latest purchase, announced yesterday, was a pine paneled room from a house constructed in Alexandria, Va., in the last quarter of the eighteenth century. It cost $3500.

The museum plans eventually to have a group of four or five American rooms, but none will be installed until all have been acquired. So far two rooms, and furniture sufficient for one or two more than that, have been bought for less than $30,000. The four English and one French room, opened a year ago, cost more than $200,000.

Interest in period rooms and period furniture has sent prices soaring, but the museum's latest acquisition was purchased before the attention of dealers had been attracted to it. Traveling through the South during his vacation, Meyric R. Rogers, director of the museum, heard of a dilapidated residence at 201 Lee street, Alexandria, which had been built about the time of the Revolution.

Investigating, he discovered that the fine old home of John and Lawrence Hooff, bankers and friends of George Washington, was being used as a boarding house, having long ago passed from the hands of the Hooff family.

Wood in Excellent Condition.

The Hooff parlor, its associations all but forgotten, has been divided into two rooms, one of which served as a kitchen. Under layers of cracked and peeling paint, the wood was in excellent condition. Sensing a rare bargain, Rogers obtained an option on it, and the museum's Board of Control ratified the purchase Friday.

The room is 22 feet 6 inches by 18 feet six inches. On one side there is a finely proportioned fireplace, flanked by two arched doorways, and opposite this there are three windows. The arrangement is such that it can be installed as one of a series in the museum without change. When installed it will be painted cream color, as it was originally.

Lawrence Hooff, one of the brothers for whom the house was built, was secretary of the Masonic Lodge of which Washington was Grand Master, and he served as a pallbearer at Washington's funeral. It is deemed likely, because of this association, and because Alexandria was the largest town near Mount Vernon, that the Father of his country was a frequent visitor at the Hooff home.

Telling of his find, Rogers said its cost was not a reflection of its true value. "I have no sympathy with the practice of indiscriminately ripping valuable relics out of their original setting," he said, "but this room belongs in a museum."

Room From Charleston, S. C.

The first American period room was purchased by the museum for $5000 several years ago in Charleston, S. C. As in the case of the Alexandria room, the house in which it was found was in disrepair and the room itself in danger of irreparable deterioration. The Charleston room, also pine paneled, is from a home constructed about 50 years earlier than the one at Alexandria.

The museum plans to obtain one room of even earlier origin, the sort of combination kitchen and dining room featured by a large fireplace over which family meals were prepared, which was common during the seventeenth century. The fourth room will be of the period about 1800, and the fifth, if one is acquired, of an intermediate period.

A considerable part of the furniture which will be needed was bought about a year ago at an auction in New York and has since been on view in the museum galleries. This purchase followed the break in the stock market and many valuable pieces were obtained for about $19,000.

FINGERPRINTS CLEW IN KILLING OF PEORIA GAMBLER'S WIFE

Auto Used by Gunmen, Who Also Wounded Clyde Garrison, Found by Police.

By the Associated Press

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 18.—Fingerprints on a stolen automobile today furnished the only clew to the identity of gangsters who last night killed Mrs. Clyde Garrison and wounded her husband, a reputed gambler. Police think either St. Louis or Chicago gangsters sought to "muscle in" on Peoria gambling profits.

The murder took place in the rear of the Garrison home as they left their garage after an automobile ride. The gangsters ambushed them. The slayers' sedan containing machine gun shells similar to those left in the Garrison yard, was found between Hollis and Tuscarora. It had been stolen in Chicago.

Blood stains on the rear seat bore out the theory that Garrison wounded one of the men when he fired at them. Through photographs of fingerprints on the auto police hoped to establish the identity of the slayers by comparing them with Bertillion records in St. Louis and Chicago.

Radio Station KWK has taken over the old KMOX broadcasting station at Kirkwood under an option, it was announced yesterday.

Work of modifying the station from 5000 watts to 1000 watts has begun, and the new wave length will be tested during the early morning hours this week. The KWK studio will remain at Hotel Chase. Purchase of the broadcasting station under the option is contingent on Government approval of the change from Hotel Chase.

Station KMOX recently moved from Kirkwood to its modern broadcasting plant in the southern section of St. Louis County, near Lemay Ferry road.

Costume jewelry

One way to spend that $3 you save

Costume jewelry is merely one suggestion for spending that $3 you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste instead of tooth pastes in the 50¢ class.

Women, sternest judges of tooth paste

acclaim this modern one at 25¢

Listerine Tooth Paste has passed the greatest test that can be put to a dentifrice.

Tried by more than 2,000,000 American women, the most critical buyers in the world when beauty and health are involved, it has won their enthusiastic acceptance. Old favorites at a high price have been discarded in favor of the new one at 25¢.

In order to win such approval, Listerine Tooth Paste had to establish gentleness and absolute safety in actual use. It did so—on millions of teeth of varying degrees of hardness—and never was precious enamel harmed.

It had to show quick and thorough cleansing. Not merely front and back of the teeth, but between them. It had to disclose ability to remove stains, discoloration, and unsightly tartar, quickly, certainly. And show power to preserve the lovely, natural lustre of sound, beautiful teeth. Millions now comment on how ably it performs these tasks.

The fact that Listerine Tooth Paste sells for 25¢ the large tube, effecting an average saving of $3 per year per person over tooth pastes in the 50¢ class, is another point worth remembering.

Get a tube of Listerine Tooth Paste today. Use it a month. Judge it by results only. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

NEUN REPLIES TO CRITICISM BY MERGER GROUP

Denies Estimate Board's Opposition to City-County Union Is Belated and Expects It to Make Answer.

MAYOR HASN'T READ ATTACK ON HIM

Knows of No Reply to Be Made to It—Comptroller Nolte Looks for None Before Next Friday.

Mayor Miller shrugged his shoulders yesterday when asked to comment on the statement issued Friday by the Citizens' Metropolitan Committee charging that he had misled them and criticising him for opposing Proposition No. 5, constitutional amendment permitting the consolidation of St. Louis and St. Louis County under certain stated conditions.

The Mayor, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen issued a formal statement Tuesday declaring that the advantages of the merger as outlined would not compensate St. Louis taxpayers for the burden it placed upon them.

"I haven't read it," Mayor Miller said. "Will the Board of Estimate and Apportionment issue another statement? Not that I know of. I haven't thought about it. I learned in the army that the way to stop an argument is to stop talking."

Neun, however, said he thought the board should, could and would reply to the attack of the Metropolitan Committee. "No political consideration was involved in the board's statement," he said. "It was our duty as a board to express our opinion and give our views on a subject affecting the city's finances.

"If the board had considered patronage, as the Metropolitan Committee charges, it would have been in favor of the plan, for more jobs are created by it. I was a member of their Public Safety Committee, but upon finding that its chief consideration was unification of fire departments, and not being an authority on the subject, I quit attending and Fire Chief Alt represented the city.

"The criticism that the board's statement was belated is unfounded. The members of the Citizens' Committee knew I was not for a merger as outlined in Proposition No. 5. Last May I told them I was against it and I repeated my views in August when they asked me to make a speech for it at the State Fair at Sedalia.'

Comptroller Nolte was out of town yesterday but had said previously that if a reply were made by the board, he did not think it would be drawn until after the regular meeting next Friday.

University City Aldermen Point to Benefits Under Amendment.

Adoption of a charter as permitted under conditions stated in Proposition No. 5 would enable University City to reduce its city tax rate by 16 or 18 cents, it is claimed in a resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen. The present tax rate is 75 cents on the $100 valuation.

"We will pay no more to the Greater City than we now pay to the county and we will receive real services for it," the resolution continues. "This measure protects the rights of municipalities and will enable the growing financial burdens of the county to be borne by securing the assistance of St. Louis on those matters which the charter may intrust to the Greater City and which are properly responsibilities of the whole area."

The resolution, unanimously adopted, was supplemented by a statement explaining the action of the Board of Aldermen. "The proximity of a metropolitan community like St. Louis," it read, "creates problems within our territory that are beyond the power of any single municipality or of the county, as now constituted, to deal with.

"Highways are required on a larger scale than would be necessary except for the presence of the huge population of St. Louis. It does little good for University City to maintain a good health service when the results of its effort may be destroyed by disease in nearby districts where health precautions are not enforced. The county needs an adequate supply of water at reasonable rates and there seems no way to secure it except by co-operation with St. Louis."

SIMPLICITY

-the keynote of GOOD DESIGN

As sky-scrapers reach higher towards the clouds, they leave behind them the fussy ornamentation of yesterday. As automobiles and airplanes become more efficient, their awkward lines straighten out toward streamline construction and mechanical complications are replaced with simpler, better devices.

Look at a Brunswick Radio. One glance will tell why it lays just claim to the title of "The Radio of the Future." Compare its chassis with any other on the market! Notice its square, solid construction, with heavy sheet steel shielding the mechanism from dust and damage and electrical interference.

Remember, too, that Brunswick gives you Tone Control, a Rigid Tuning Scale, and all the newest features of importance in radio. And then, most important of all, examine the UNI-SELECTOR, pictured below. See how this amazing device centers every operation of the set under the fingers of one hand. Here at last is simplified control in radio!

Visit your Brunswick dealer now. Ask him to let you operate the new Brunswick models. Nothing can be so convincing as their actual perfomance!

RAIL OFFICE CHANGE OPPOSED

Commerce Chamber Protests Against Removal to Chicago.

The Chamber of Commerce has filed a protest against the proposed removal to Chicago of the St. Louis office of the National Railways of Mexico.

Local exporters doing business with Mexican concerns have been requested to join in the protest on the ground that St. Louis is the key city in freight movement between the United States and Mexico. The removal would leave the railroad without representation in St. Louis.

ROBBER CAUGHT, $1100 BANK LOOT RECOVERED

Prisoner at Poplar Bluff Injured in Flight After Holdup at Qulin, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 18.—Declaring he "got a tough break," the robber, who this morning held up Irvin Waller, cashier of the Bank of Qulin in Qulin, Butler County, was brought here by Deputy Sheriffs Floyd Vancil and Fred Platt, who captured him, and placed him in the county jail. The robber refused to divulge his name. "I know too many people around here," he declared, "and for that reason I'm not going to tell my name."

The robber was injured by glass when the windshield of his automobile was shot out by Platt. He was given treatment and then placed in the jail.

A reward of $1100, of which $1000 is offered by the Missouri Bankers' Association, will be paid to the two men who captured the robber, local bankers indicated. The Southeast Missouri Bankers' Association offers $100 reward.

Most of the $1100 stolen from the bank was recovered with the robber's arrest. He had dropped some money as he fled through the fields. He also threw his pistol away but it was found.

It was the fourth time in five years the bank has been robbed. The robbers in each instance were captured. Three now are serving sentences.

Cashier Waller was in the bank when the robber entered, hatless and coatless. He wore no mask. He said: "If anyone comes in, don't get nervous." "Don't you get nervous," Waller replied. "This bank has been robbed before."

Waller opened the door to the cage, and the robber scooped up the cash from the open safe, and after locking the cashier in the bank, ran to his car which he had left parked a short distance away.

Expecting an attempt to rob the bank, the two deputy sheriffs were lying in wait near the bank. When the robber ran to his car the officers started firing, one shot going through the windshield and another entering the residence of Dr. Scott Cook. Forrest Cook, 10-year-old son of the physician, was slightly injured in the leg by the stray bullet.

A mile north of Qulin the robber left his car and ran into a cornfield. After a short chase the deputies captured him.

Qulin is 15 miles southeast of Poplar Bluff.

ERA OF UNITY IN CHINA IS FORESEEN BY CHIANG

President of Republic Plans to Eradicate Communism and Bandit Hordes.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, Oct. 18.—A new China, united and strengthened, arising from the terrors of rebellion and anarchy, is envisioned by President Chiang Kai-shek, who today announced ambitious plans for the republic.

With the Northern revolt apparently crushed and a punitive army sent into the south central provinces to subdue Communist hordes who took advantage of the northern defection to pillage undefended cities, President Chiang expects a unified China to emerge and effect rehabilitation along the following lines:

First, eradication of Communism and banditry; second, rehabilitation of national finances; third, creation of efficient honest governmental administration; fourth, achievement of industrial development; fifth, development of national and local autonomy, thereby paving the way for true democracy.

STATES IN HUNTING AGREEMENT

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 18.—Through an agreement made today between the Missouri Game and Fish Department and the Illinois Department of Conservation, hunters having an Illinois license will be permitted to shoot migratory birds on all parts of the Mississippi River between the boundary lines of the two states.

The agreement specifies however that Illinois hunters may not land on bars connected with the Missouri mainland or islands taxed by Missouri.

Hunters from Missouri will have the same privileges on the Illinois side of the river.

Metropolitan St. Louis As Officially Defined

Director of Industrial Bureau Gives Reasons for Fixing Area of Greater St. Louis Twenty-Five Miles Out.

A letter written by George C. Smith, director of the St. Louis Industrial Bureau to the Director of the Census at Washington, with exhibits in the form of maps, fix the boundaries of Greater St. Louis well within the radius of 25 miles from downtown St. Louis.

The maps, prepared under the direction of the Industrial Bureau, outlined the areas of such determining factors as telephone and gas service, power and light service, retail store delivery, switching limits, mail carrier delivery and newspaper carrier delivery.

Quotations from the letter show that the 25-mile area designated as the metropolitan district of St. Louis comprises 848 square miles. According to the Industrial Bureau the entire district is homogeneous, dominated in its economic and social life by the central city and fostered throughout in its industrial development by the Industrial Club of St. Louis. Industries largely owned in St. Louis and controlled from central offices in the city are found throughout the district.

"Virtually the entire district is served by daily delivery from the principal department stores, by the metropolitan newspapers over direct carrier routes, by the telephone company through local exchanges, and by other closely affiliated public utility companies serving water, gas and electricity. With minor exceptions, uniform through freight rates apply from and to the entire district. Local transportation facilities, which include street car, bus, interurban lines and commuter service by steam trains, supply an abundance of transportation in all parts of the district, and a highly developed network of highways affords easy communication by automobile.

"The district includes 39 cities and towns, each with a population approximately in excess of 1000.

"The entire district lies well within a radius of 25 miles of downtown St. Louis. Non-resident memberships cannot be held in the principal clubs of St. Louis by persons residing within this 25-mile radius.

"The entire district is included within the daily trucking area of all companies interviewed. Some, in fact, deliver daily over an area substantially larger than the designated district.

"The area served by daily free delivery by trucks of the leading department stores does not include St. Charles on the west, Alton on the North, nor Edwardsville and Collinsville on the east. The same condition holds for delivery of daily metropolitan newspapers by direct carrier service.

"The district contains many commuters, who find daily and regular employment in the central city, traveling to and from their homes.

Electricity throughout the area, the letter states, is supplied principally by a St. Louis producing company.

"Excepting only Alton, the entire district is served through the local exchanges of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

"The bulk of the population living in the three outlying townships in St. Louis County lives in those portions of the townships lying nearest to St. Louis and are sustained largely by St. Louis activities. All incorporated places and townships included within the area have a population substantially in excess of 150 to the square mile.

The Advisory Board of the Industrial Bureau stated that it had approached the task of defining Greater St. Louis as the area within a 25-mile radius conservatively. It is said that they omitted all portions of the surrounding territory concerning which there may have been any doubt.

WAR DEPARTMENT ASKED TO IMPROVE MERAMEC RIVER

Congress Will Receive a Committee Report on the Subject in December.

One of the major propositions advocated by the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce is the improvement of the Meramec River Valley as an aid to the economic and industrial development of the county, according to the last bulletin of the County Chamber of Commerce.

Congress in December will receive the report of the War Department relative to improvements of the Meramec River Valley.

A survey was completed months ago, but the report was not drafted in time to present to Congress earlier.

The War Department survey followed a campaign for improvements started by the County Chamber several years ago.

Out of this campaign came the Meramec River Association, composed of representatives from five counties. The association will base its program of work on the report to be made to Congress.

Comprehensive Technical Library.

Washington University in St. Louis is credited with possession of a comprehensive library of about 250,000 volumes, complete files of the important American and foreign technical journals, and the principal reference texts. This institution is a designated depository of publicatons of the United States Government. Washington University's technical library, which is said to contain about 50,000 bound volumes, includes practically all the important contributions to civil, mechanical, electrical and chemical engineering science, as well as to the subjects of geology, biology, zoology and physics. In addition to the above, the University has special libraries of law, medicine and dentistry.

St. Louis a Convention City.

The St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau is credited with bringing to St. Louis each year approxmately 300 conventions. The Bureau states that in acting as host to these conventions, it provides an organized service which endeavors to make St. Louis such an attractive convention city those organizations which meet here are encouraged to return year after year.

PROHIBITION POLL OF PRESS GIVEN UP BY DRY DIRECTOR

Woodcock Fears Purpose of Plan to Get Views of 3000 Editors "Might Be Misunderstood."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—After several days of reflection Prohibition Director Woodcock decided today to abandon his proposed poll to obtain the views of 3000 newspaper editors on prohibition.

The intention of the Division of Research in the dry bureau in originally undertaking the poll was merely to get data for its own information, but he observed today that "hindsight is better than foresight sometimes and lest the purpose be misunderstood I have called off the poll."

While many of the questionnaires have been answered, the prohibition chief directed that letters be sent back to the editors asking them to disregard the first letter of inquiry.

There were signs that some members of the Law Enforcement Commission as well as some Government officials considered that the prohibition bureau was going beyond its jurisdiction in conducting the poll, but Woodcock said: "I ordered it abandoned entirely upon my own volition."

"Some Objections."

He said there had been some objections, but not many and he emphasized he was acting as he thought best and without orders.

The questionnaire, sent out by E. A. Grant, acting chief of the division of research, asked the editors whether they favored the eighteenth amendment and Volstead act, whether they were opposed to the dry laws or whether they were neutral. The letter transmitting the questionnaire said the prohibition bureau wanted to get the attitude of the press of the nation as a whole on the subject of prohibition.

Promises Facts on Dry Law.

Woodcock made the announcement of change in plans after an earlier statement that answers to the questionnaires would not be made public, as originally planned. The decision to call off the poll itself was made later.

The director said his bureau would continue to issue monographs on prohibition, giving the facts developed against the dry laws as well as those in favor of them.

Discussing his recent trip to Chicago and Wisconsin, Woodcock said he had been impressed by the co-operation afforded Federal Agents by police in rounding up commercial violators, but considered the Federal forces "pitifully small."

He reiterated his intention to ask Congress for enough money to hire at least 500 more men, which was all the bureau could train at one time.

He said he found conditions in Chicago as orderly as in any other city and that police there evidently were doing everything they could to aid enforcement. He added he had walked alone late at night down streets pointed out to him as dangerous neighborhoods.

"I went alone because I wanted to see for myself," he said. "I walked down streets of Chicago and wasn't shot at. I found Chicago just as good as any other city. My perfectly unbiased opinion is that it is quiet and as law abiding as any other American city."

He was pleased also with conditions in Wisconsin, saying he found them "unusually good and we have no complaint about police co-operation."

Interesting Collegians.

The director described as erroneous stories saying he had advocated establishment of scholarships at universities for the study of prohibition. He said he had suggested only that students who must write these devote their research to prohibition and had expressed the opinion that the Prohibition Bureau might be able to pay them for the work.

The bureau, he said, had sought such co-operation from the economic departments of three universities which he did not name.

Woodcock will leave tomorrow on a trip that will take him to the Pacific coast where he will remain until Dec. 1.

He will visit East St. Louis, Ill., Tuesday; Springfield, Ill., Indianapolis and South Bend, Ind., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and leave Friday night for Los Angeles. On the coast he will inspect conditions at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and points in Montana. His itinerary on the coast will not be worked out until his arrival there.

HOTEL BURNS; ARSON ALLEGED

Gasoline Poured Through Walls Feeds Flames.

By the Associated Press.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 18.—Gasoline poured through holes drilled in the walls fed a fire that gutted the Morris Hotel today and resulted in the arrest of Vlado Georgovich, proprietor, on a charge of arson. The loss was estimated at $40,000.

Police also found lighted candles beneath beds. They said the building was overinsured. All guests escaped.

GOV. CAULFIELD DEFENDS HOOVER ADMINISTRATION

In Boonville Speech Declares That Optimism Is the Panacea for Depression.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Oct. 18.—Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of Missouri in an address in the Courthouse auditorium here tonight made an appeal for the Republican party and the administration.

"Optimism is the panacea for depression," the Governor said. "I have more affection for President Hoover now than ever. We must realize that this depression is world-wide. America is in reality the most prosperous country in the world. The depression in the United States was inevitable and Hoover and his administration are to be commended for bringing the nation through it as well as they have and we must rally to their support because they deserve it. Ten years ago there were 5,000,000 unemployed in America. Now there are but 2,500,000. Hoover is entitled to the help of every American because he is bringing the United States through a great crisis."

After listing a few achievements of 10 years of Republicanism in Missouri, Gov. Caulfield asked for state-wide support of the work of the State Survey Commission. "I am not recommending a definite program as yet," he said. But we must alleviate the terrible conditions of our state institutions and help our schools—but at the same time not impose too great a tax burden.

"The remarkable road system built during the last decade in Missouri is alone enough to justify full confidence in Republicanism. My administration may not be a great one, but it will be an honest one."

BANKRUPTCY QUESTIONNAIRES RECEIVED BY REFEREE HERE

Nation-Wide Collection of Data to Be Made for Two Months in Inquiry Ordered by Hoover.

In connection with the nation-wide investigation of the operation of the bankruptcy law by the Department of Justice, the office of the Referee here has received comprehensive questionnaires to be filled out for each case begun or concluded during two months beginning about Oct. 15.

Similar blanks have been sent to other Referees throughout the country, of whom there are about 520, as the investigation is being conducted largely through them. The questionnaires are designed to elicit complete information in each case as to the cause of bankruptcy, the course of administration, expenses incurred and results achieved for creditors.

The inquiry was ordered last July by President Hoover after the three major bar associations of New York City had urged fundamental changes in the Federal act. The President said bankruptcy losses had exceeded $3,000,000,000 in the last five years and were averaging $750,000,000 annually.

TRACE OF ASPHYXIATION ON GIRL FOUND IN LAKE

Autopsy on Leona O'Laughlin of Denver Fails to Give Definite Clew.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 18.—An autopsy which police hoped would shed light on the manner in which 10-year-old Leona O'Laughlin met her death, failed to disclose a definite cause and a report that the child was asphyxiated only added to the mystery which tonight surrounds the case.

Adding complications to the case was illness of the child's father, City Detective Leo O'Loughlin, in a hospital with ptomaine poisoning, his wife, Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, Leona's stepmother, is near a collapse.

A bloody towel was one of the few clews found by police, but what connection it has with the murder was not disclosed. The child's body was found in Berkeley Park late yesterday. The autopsy today failed to disclose injuries which might have caused her death. The father has not been informed of her death.

PERRY SUSPECT RELEASED

Prisoner at Harrison, Ark., Is Not Wisconsin Wife Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISON, Ark., Oct. 18. — A man held here since yesterday suspected of being George (Jiggs) Perry, alleged wife slayer, was released late today.

Dismissal of the prisoner, Roy S. Thompson, represented the third false identification of the missing polygamist during the two weeks' hunt through Arkansas since an automobile once the property of Perry's alleged victim, was discovered at Blytheville.

Perry has been sought since discovery of the body of Mrs. Cora Bell Hackett in Northern Wisconsin. The woman had married the fugitive shortly before her death, under circumstances that have indicated she became Perry's wife through a newspaper "want ad."

COURTS IMPOSE 16 SENTENCES IN WEEK

Four Men Tried on Criminal Charges Convicted—12 Persons Plead Guilty.

Four men faced juries in the criminal division of the Circuit Court last week and all were found guilty. One man was sentenced to death, two were given long penitentiary terms and the fourth, found guilty of a statutory charge against a woman, was given a year's jail punishment with a $1000 fine.

The sentence of death was returned against Andrew B. Meadows, 54 years old, formerly night watchman at the Buckingham Annex Hotel, which was burned early Dec. 5, 1927, with a loss of seven lives. Meadows, charged with first degree murder, denied setting the fire, but admitted a part in the conspiracy to burn the place for $5,000. He named R. H. Cotham, night clerk of the Buckingham Hotel proper as the man who made the proposition to set the place afire to him, declaring that Cotham told him the money would come from the owners, Lewis E. Balson, a University City realty dealer, and Ralph Pierson, a stockholder in the Buckingham Hotel properties. Cotham, Balsom and Pierson were indicted with Meadows for arson and murder.

Others convicted by juries were Ellis Sturrs, 34, a Negro janitor of 321 N. Whittier street, who was found guilty of robbing a restaurant at 3210 Franklin avenue, taking $24 at the point of a revolver. He was given 10 years in the penitentiary. Roy Miller, charged as a burglar and habitual criminal, received maximum punishment for the crime of burglary and larceny. His previous conviction called for a mandatory instruction from the court for the highest punishment for the crimes charged, and the jury responded with a 15-year term.

Elmer Good, 28, 4333 Wilcox avenue, was sentenced to a year in jail and a fine of $1000 for violating a statute which requires marriage as a carollary to promises to young women.

Rather than stand trial and run the chance of more drastic punishment, five men entered pleas of guilty and accepted penitentiary sentences, while a sixth, because of his youth, was permitted to spend a penitentiary sentence in the Boonville reformatory for boys. These persons were: Samuel Smith, murder, second degree, 20 years; Samuel Williams, robbery with a deadly weapon, 10 years; Alois Bryan, robbery, seven years; Emmett Hunn, manslaughter, two years; John Givens, burglary, five years, and Edward A. Schmidt, robbery, five years, commuted to the State reformatory.

During the week five men and a woman charged with major crimes were permitted to plead to lesser offenses and take less than penitentiary punishment. They were: Walter Yount, petit larceny, one year in workhouse; Leo Chamblin, operating automobile without owner's consent, 30 days in jail; Julius Harris, larceny of an automobile, nine months in workhouse; Forest Withey and Ervin Stibal, attempt to rob and carrying a concealed weapon, concurrent terms of one year each in workhouse. Dorothy Dandridge, charged with passing bogus checks, was permitted to plead to fourth degree forgery and was sentenced to four months in city jail. The four months were served and the defendant, brought in on a cot from city hospital, was taken to relatives on Bessie avenue in an ambulance.

Information charging the carrying of a concealed weapon against Nicholas Kelly and assault to do bodily harm against Virgil and Lillie Burnett were dismissed for insufficient evidence. Charges of obtaining money under false pretenses against Laverne Fox were continued generally by the Circuit Attorney's office. It was said new informations to replace the old were being drawn.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATION HEAD OPPOSES GRAVOIS PARKWAY

The Business Men's Association of South St. Louis has written President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service indorsing his opposition to the abandonment of street car tracks on Gravois avenue, now being considered by the Public Service Co.

President Frank K. Harris of the association said the organization also was opposed to the creation of a parkway in the center of Gravois avenue, proposed by Kinsey as an alternative should the Public Service Co. abandon its tracks when the street is widened from 60 to 100 feet between Twelfth and Grand boulevard next year.

AMERICAN BED CO. AGREES TO FRIENDLY RECEIVERSHIP

A friendly receivership suit against the American Bed Co., 1316 McNulty street, was filed in Federal Court yesterday by the Seneca Wire Manufacturing Co. of Ohio, a creditor, on the grounds that the bed company, while solvent, is without cash and unable to pay its creditors.

In an answer, filed with the receivership suit, the bed company admits the allegations and consents to the appointment of a receiver.

According to the suit, the bed company has liabilities of $124,000 and assets of $230,000. However, $137,000 of the assets are "frozen" in real estate and buildings and $67,000 in inventory.

URGES DOUBLING U. S. ROAD FUNDS TO HELP FARMERS

Secretary Hyde Plans to Ask Congress to Allot $125,000,000 for 1932 at Once.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Congress will be requested by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to virtually double the amount of Federal appropriations available to states for highway construction during this fiscal year in an effort to stimulate emergency employment of farmers made needy by the drouth.

Plans of the Secretary to request that the $125,000,000 appropriated for the fiscal year 1932 be made immediately available were outlined today by H. S. Fairbanks, assistant to the Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads. This proposal, he said, has the support of the Budget Bureau.

Figures which Fairbanks made public show that the drouth states have unexpended balances of previous appropriations, which can be spent this year, about equal to the unobligated allotments for 1932.

Inasmuch as the 1932 allotments were appropriated by the Secretary in August, however, the states can now make contracts against them with the guarantee that the Government funds would be paid at the end of this fiscal year, June 30, 1931.

Time of Payment.

If Congress made the 1932 funds immediately available, it was pointed out, the money could be paid to the states at such a time as the contracted work is completed.

There is now available in the United States Treasury, Fairbanks said, a total of $165,561,788 of unexpended funds of previous appropriations including those for the fiscal year 1931, for all states. It is ready for payment to the states when work is completed on contracts on Federal aid highways, with the states providing a dollar for every dollar of Federal money.

Of this amount, 15 drouth states have an aggregate unexpended balance of about $60,000,000 as of Sept. 30, while their unobligated allotments for 1932 are about $62,000,000.

No information is available as to funds the states have on hand for expenditure on road construction programs to match the Federal money. In the event they do not have the funds to match the Congressional appropriations, Fairbanks explained, it would first be necessary for their Legislatures to appropriate the money.

Suggestions of congressional action in other directions for drouth relief have come from some of the states hardest hit.

Advance Money to Farmers.

It has been urged that Congress appropriate funds to be advanced to farmers on crop liens of 1932, with integrity one of the controlling factors of the loan conditions. It also has been proposed that large quantities of seed and fertilizer be purchased by the Government then sold to farmers with the price reflecting the advantage of purchases made on a large scale.

It is expected generally that proposals for such legislation would be forthcoming from Congressional delegations of drouth states.

The unobligated allotments for drouth states together with their unexpended balances:

Kansas, unobligated $4,725,722; unexpended $3,335,265.

Missouri $3,960,764 and $3,027,411.

Oklahoma, $3,017,320 and $2,045,307.

Kentucky, $3,677,439 and $3,466,427.

Texas, $10,878,570 and $10,081,567.

Indiana, $5,300,374 and $3,311,653.

Illinois, $6,918,559 and $7,944,752.

Ohio, $4,593,489 and $7,003,370.

FINE DAHLIA DISPLAY AT FALL FLOWER SHOW

Exhibit at Shaw's Garden to Continue Today; Frost Hurts Some Plants.

Rains and mild weather had done their bit for the fine dahlias in the third annual fall show of St. Louis Horticultural Society, which opened yesterday in the Floral Display House of Shaw's Garden, to continue from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. today.

But the sudden cold snap had ruined some of the intended exhibits. A grower at Springfield, Mo., and another near Jefferson Barracks found that after the frost the other night that they had no flowers left for the show.

Late in the summer it appeared, growers said, as though nobody would have much to show this fall Hot, dry weather stunted the young plants. But, they added with some pride, the favorable season that followed had grown as fine flowers as seen in any dahlia show in St. Louis.

Amateurs and commercial growers from several states sent their prize dahlias to the show. Commercial exhibitors attracted special interest with some artistic large groups. The popular cactus and decorative types were especially well represented.

Of scarcely less interest were exhibits of zinnias, plumed cockscomb, chrysanthemums, hardy asters and China asters. Shaw's Garden contributed an impressive display of roses, and some of the roses exhibited by amateurs compared with the florists' best.

Badly Hurt in Fall From Box Car.

He still was unconscious. The only identification was a telegram from Boonville, Mo., to Morgan Carlisle, advising him employment was plentiful there.

'Strictly Dishonorable' Here

Preston Sturges' Successful Comedy to Open American Theater This Evening—Hurry Up Call Brings "Marigold" to the Shubert Tomorrow Night—Orpheum Continues Run of May Robson in "Mother's Millions"—Theater Guild Postpones Start of Subscription Season Until Next Month—Miss Barrymore in "Scarlet Sister Mary" Here Next Week.

"STRICTLY DISHONORABLE," the most pronounced hit of last year on the New York stage, where it is still running, opens the American Theater tonight. Out at the Shubert, which was scheduled to be dark this week, a last-minute booking brings the English comedy, "Marigold," to open tomorrow night. The players presented by Mary Hart at the Orpheum Theater, continue the run of May Robson in "Mother's Millions" to complete the schedule of "legit" attractions.

A hurried change in plans of the Theater Guild of New York defers the opening of that organization's second St. Louis subscription season at the American Theater until Nov. 10, when Bernard Shaw's "Apple Cart" or Alla Nazimova in "A Month in the Country" inaugurates a five plays series. This change leaves the American Theater without an attraction for next week, which had been assigned to "Apple Cart."

The Ethel Barrymore engagement of "Scarlet Sister Mary" is to commence a week from tomorrow night. Unless the American finds a play to take the place of "Apple Cart" the Shubert and the Orpheum will have that week to themselves, Miss Hart announcing Minna Gimbell in "Nancy's Private Affair" for next Sunday evening at the latter theater.

Brock Pemberton's comedy, "Strictly Dishonorable," should provide an auspicious 1930 opening for the American Theater this evening. It is now the longest-run play on Broadway, entering its second year at the Avon Theater on Sept. 18, where it has earned a very sizeable fortune for Mr. Pemberton, the producer; Antoinette Perry, the co-director, and Preston Sturges, the author.

The story has its locale in and about a typically Manhattan speakeasy and has as outstanding characters a love-curious miss from Mississippi, an argumentative suitor from the rural communities, a romantic operatic tenor, a judge who enjoys his alcoholic refreshments during hours of leisure and a wise-cracking patrolman continually in search of a "dangerous criminal."

The cast to give the comedy here will, in practically its entirety, enact the play in London in the spring and includes Flobelle Fairbanks, Lino Manzoni, Lee Baker, Ralph Locke, Jerome Daley, George Meeker, Guido Alexander and John Robb.

"MARIGOLD," the comedy which is due tomorrow night at the Shubert Rialto, so took the fancy of the English when originally produced in London that it had a run of over 700 performances, following which success the original cast was imported to this country, intact. Offered in New York a few weeks ago, it failed to click and immediately took to the road, with St. Louis as its first stop.

The scene of the play, as written by L. Allen Harker and F. R. Pryor, is laid in Scotland in 1842, when the whole country was agog with excitement over the visit of the young Queen Victoria to Edinburgh, and two acts of "Marigold" take place in the castle itself, which gives ample opportunity for a display of the varied uniforms of the period. It is the age of the poke bonnet and the crinoline, an age which, if to modern eyes artificial, yet had much to recommend it.

This Kingsway Theater company includes many players well known in England. Miss Jean Clyde, who heads the cast, is the leading Scottish actress of the day, and has played most of the Barry heroines. She admits to having played the part of "Bunty" over 1000 times, while her performances of Mrs. Pringle in "Marigold" already reach the respectable total of 900. Miss Sophie Stewart, who plays the title role, is almost as well known in London. Others of the original English cast include Ellis Irving, Lionel Gadsden, Edmond Beresford, Royston Taylor, Marguerite Cellier, Winifred Ord, Yvette Pienne, Walter Roy Gordon Petrie, William C. Aldous, John Lauriston and Marie Shields.

"Marigold" was done by the stock company at the Copley Theater, Boston, where it had a run of 10 weeks.

* * * *

THE success of the company under the direction of Miss Hart at the Orpheum this season, has been amazing. Since the opening of the stock company some three weeks ago the downtown house has been sold out at almost every performance. While the organization, which came to town last Christmas as The Casey Players to finish out the theater year, did very nicely here, there was no indication that its second season would start off so tremendously. Miss Hart, now one of the three women impresarios of the country—Eva Le Gallienne in New York and Jessie Bonstelle in Detroit are the other two—has brought together an excellent company, which she will augment from time to time as she is doing now with May Robson, with well-known visiting artists. The first two plays have been fine vehicles for the organization, which is something of a St. Louis Repertory Company rather than just a stock company, and the fact that the top price of admission is only $1 has done the rest, for theatergoers want good entertainment at a low price, and Miss Hart is giving them just that—and making money. The $4.40 production managers may well look over the local situation to advantage.

St. Louis had not seen May Robson in many years until she was brought here last week by Miss Hart. An old-timer in the business—she was with the famous old Empire Theater Stock along with Wilton Lackaye, William Faversham, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Viola Allen, Ida Conquest and other almost-forgotten stars of the past—she holds her prestige along with her energy and enthusiasm. The part she plays as Harriet Breen, the richest woman in the world, is a vigorous part. All the emotional and dramatic powers of the actress are called into action by the requirements of the characterization. Not only are there moments of sustained dramatic pitch, but there is a swift veering from drama to laughter and back again, almost in the twinkling of an eye. This happens time and again, and only an actress of skill and poise could accomplish it. But one with the fire and power of youth is also absolutely necessary, and when we take May Robson's word for the fact that she has played continuously season after season since 1883, and then view her present performance, we must believe that the age of stage miracles is not entirely past.

Mary Hart, in the two plays she has thus far presented this season, has shown excellent perspicacity in gauging the receptivity of her public. "Apron Strings" was a crowded success, "Mother's Millions" plays to capacity every night, and now comes the announcement that Minna Gimbell in "Nancy's Private Affair" is to be the following attraction. These three plays constitute an auspicious getaway for any theatrical season, and if the

At The Play In New York

By ROBERT LITTELL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.

THE further we get from the war, the greater is the crop of books and plays about it. The enormous success of a few of those plays and books—"What Price Glory," "Journey's End," "All Quiet on the Western Front"—has encouraged publishers and playwrights and ex-soldiers and producers in swarms to follow the golden trail. And inevitably a great many of the recent products are imitations, and patterned, not so much after the experience of an individual in the war as upon the appearance of earlier and more successful war plays. The time is approaching when the public's saturation point will be reached, when good war plays will fail to command interest because of the multitude of bad war plays that preceded them. One can tell that such a point is upon us when one begins to recognize certain rubber stamp situations that were good the first few times, but that have been repeated so often that a juice of merit is no longer in them.

As rubber stamp number one I nominate "Mamzelle" of easy virtue, selling cognac to the soldiers. Mamzelle had her triumph six years ago, under the management of Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings. And whatever was left unsaid about her and about cognac in "What Price Glory" is not worth trying to say by any successor or imitator of that unforgettable play.

IT may seem callous to say that off-stage reproductions of various forms of gunfire, and wounded men in their last agonies, are also now dramatic rubber stamps, but such is the case. We have seen the agonies and heard the shots so often that we no longer respond to them as we should. Which is additional proof of the often demonstrated fact that physical distress on the stage is much more difficult to make believable, and much less easy to believe than mental distress. You may remember, if you think about it, how secondary the grosser cruelties of war, the noises and the wounds were to the explosions and battles that went on in the minds of the characters of "Journey's End."

The same rule applies to plays about the excitements of civilian life, murder, robbery, gang war and the like. The presence of a gun or a corpse immediately lowers the vaulting power of our imagination. I know the gun isn't really loaded, that the corpse will get up at the final curtain and take a taxi to its boarding house in the west forties. But a man in danger of death, a man afraid of being shot, can, in the hands of a competent actor, become terribly real. For the things we really fear and lose sleep over are things that have not yet happened, that we can see only in imagination.

I CAN understand why criminals sometimes go so calmly to their execution. The real thing cannot be any worse than months of shivering anticipation of it—indeed, it may not be nearly so bad. Have you ever made a speech? Was the difficulty of making it one-tenth as painful as the expectant agony of having it yet to be made? The audience is human, and resembles the criminal in one important respect; events just around the corner arouse a good deal more emotion than the actual events themselves. This may be called the Sword of Damocles principle in drama. The most successful makers of thrills are those wise enough to keep the sword from falling and clever enough to keep it out of the sight of every sense but the inner eye of the imagination.

Many Novelties To Be Presented By The Symphony

List of Soloists Has Been Completed for Season Which Opens at the Odeon on October 31.

A NEW Russian symphonist, Nicolai Miaskovsky, declared to be one of the most significant figures in Muscovite music today, will be introduced to St. Louis in the course of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's 1930-31 season, which opens at the Odeon with the concerts of Friday afternoon, Oct. 31, and Saturday evening, Nov. 1. Miaskovsky's No. 5 in D Major is one of two symphonies to be played for the first time in St. Louis in the course of a season which will be particularly a "symphony year." The other is the "Antar" symphony of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

While the fifty-first season of the orchestra will be attractive for the three distinguished guest conductors it offers, and for the succession of assisting artists it provides, it will be not less distinguished by the important symphonies and major works which will be offered by its programs. More than ever in recent years the backbone of the repertory will emphasize the standard concert pieces, and while many novelties will be offered in the season's course, symphonies and similar works of major importance will dominate the programs.

NOVELTIES listed for the year include the Strauss "Burger als Edelmann," Stravinsky's "Pulcinella," Anthiel's "Capriccio," Korngold's "Much Ado," Jaromir Weinberger's "Christmas," Wladigiloff's Bulgarian Rhapsody "Wardar," Respighi's "The Birds," Pizetti's "La Pisanella," Moussorgsky's "Pictures for an Exhibition," Respighi's orchestration of the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor, Albeniz's "Catalonia" and the intermezzo from "Goyescas" and the "Rondalla" of Granados.

The completed list of soloists provides for appearance with the orchestra during the season's course of five pianists of international renown, Jose Iturbe, Carlo Zecchi, Gottfried Galston, Walter Gieseking and David Barnett, of four singers who have attained a front rank among the world's great artists, Heinrich Schlusnus, Claire Dux, Margarethe Matzenauer and Gina Pinnera; of three violinists of world reputation, Nathan Milstein, Yelly d'Aranyi and Efrem Zimbalist, and of the Russian cellist Gregor Piatigorsky.

Film Ballet Woven Into Real Dance Cast

THE Civic Music League will start its seventh season at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, Oct. 28, with the Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet. The program of ballet divertissements and ensemble numbers will be augmented by the new creation, the "Videballeton." For the latter specially constructed scenery is carried, which lends atmosphere to the moving picture cast on the Videballeton, which carries out the idea of the dancers done by Andreas Pavley personally and the members of his company.

The "Videballeton" was created to meet the changing demands of the concert-going public and synchronizes a motion picture ballet with the dancing of living soloists to music furnished by a reproductive device, that gives the volume of a full orchestra.

Changes for Music's Return

Missouri and Loew's Will Do Without Stage Shows and Harry Rose Scheduled to Succeed Ed Lowry as the Ambassador's Master of Ceremonies—Fanchon and Marco Revues for Fox and R. K. O. Vaudeville at the St. Louis—William Farnum Coming Back to the Films.

THE pending settlement of the war between the musicians and the cinema palaces will see some rapid fire changes in the show houses. The Fox Theater will return to its Fanchon and Marco stage show policy, the Missouri will do without that form of entertainment, the St. Louis will have R. K. O. vaudeville along with its pictures and the Publix Shows will come back to the Ambassador without, however, Ed Lowry as the master of ceremonies. Just what Loew's will do has not been determined. It may have an orchestra in the pit but it will not put any shows on the stage. The old Grand Opera House, as has been told in these columns already, is to re-open for second run pictures. It will have music—but no vaudeville—only if compelled to do so by the Musicians' Union.

Lowry has made a distinct hit in Pittsburg, where business has not been so good, and is to remain there to help whoop things up in the Warner house. Harry Rose, who once graced the boards at the Missouri very successfully, will probably be brought in to take Lowry's place at the Ambassador.

Incidentally the movie houses, which cut their admission charges when the musicians went out, will get back to their old tariff schedules with the rearrival of music.

* * * *

AND speaking of music and musicians if it hadn't been for a tea-dance at the Blossom Room of the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood, Lewis Ayres, featured player in "East Is West," now at the St. Louis Theater, might still have been a dance orchestra musician.

Not that Lew isn't a good musician, because he is, he has played in some of the best known dance orchestras in the country, including the ensembles of Henry Halstead and Ray West.

Lew's presence at the Blossom Room on that afternoon which eventually was to prove the turning point in his career was occasioned by nothing more serious than a pretty girl, whose name Lew promptly forgot.

It happened between dances that an actor's agent and manager, also enjoying a little relaxation, noticed Lew. He watched him dance. Lew appeared to be modest and good-looking. He carried himself well and had a most captivating smile.

"May I have a word with you?" the agent asked Lew a few minutes later.

Not knowing what portended, Lew went to the agent's table where the latter asked him if he would be interested in entering motion pictures. The idea was not exactly new to Lewis and the result of the conversation appeared a few days later when the agent obtained Lew's signature on a contract for Pathe.

After playing small parts for that company for several months he went to M-G-M where he played with Greta Garbo in "The Kiss."

* * * *

THEN came a lull in his advance on Hollywood's citadels of glory. Producers did not seem to realize the artistry which this mere lad was hiding under a cloak of shyness.

Universal purchased the screen rights to "All Quiet On The Western Front!" Who was to play the role of the boy?—Paul Baumer?

Practically every young player in Hollywood was interviewed. Scores of screen tests were made, for no one seemed to meet the requirements.

Lew was becoming discouraged and with little hope he went to Universal City to be interviewed. He was given a test and afterward spent the afternoon talking to various friends on the "lot."

Meeting Director Milestone as he was leaving the studio, Lew bade him "good-by," with a word that he'd "see him some time."

"Say, I've been looking for you. Come into the office."

Milestone led him to Carl Laemmle Jr.'s office where the contract to play the much desired role was set before him. His test had been a success and the role was his.

Lew could hardly believe it. He signed. The motion picture world knows the result. Before "All Quiet On The Western Front" was completed he had been signed on a long term contract.

In "East Is West" he plays his first romantic lead, that of Billy Benson, the American boy who falls in love with a Chinese girl, played by Lupe Velez.

WILLIAM FARNUM, whose crinkling brow, furrowed with anger, was an integral part of the vast structure upon which the motion picture industry was reared, struts and crinkles and furrows his way back into the medium he distinguished so virilely and colorfully in the Theda Bara era of Fox and makes his talking picture debut as King Louis XV of France in Norma Talmadge's "Du Barry," based on the Belasco play. The strong man of the north woods, gold boom towns, death valleys and hell ships of the silent films, has been accorded a considerable part of her picture by Miss Talmadge according to reports from Hollywood.

Something of the tradition of the motion picture that is embodied in the "Little Colonel" of "The Birth of a Nation," the Mary Pickford of the golden curls, the mighty hoofs of Chaplin and the timidity of the fluttering Gish is wrapped in Bill Farnum. Brother Dustin died a year ago on Long Island. All the other Farnums have gone and now it is Bill, after some years of illness and grief, who comes back again to the millions of Americans who thrilled to his right hand smashes and bunched shoulders in the days when vamps were vamps and villains villains.

Gary Cooper appeared in a Broadway theater recently in a film version of "The Spoilers," a talkie. That was Bill Farnum's first role in the movies. One day when he was walking down Broadway he encountered Rex Beach, the novelist, and Beach told him that Col. Selig was anxious to film "The Spoilers," Beach's novel, provided Farnum would act it. Farnum was well established on the stage at the time. A huge salary—for those days—transportation to Hollywood, an automobile to boot, these things were dangled as bait, and Farnum made the picture, which had its premiere in New York with Farnum on hand as the guest of Adolph Zukor. Zukor persuaded him to make "The Redemption of David Corson" and "The Sign of the Cross." Then Bill Fox, up and coming mogul, signed him to a contract and he made "Samson." Fox wanted him to play in "Riders of the Purple Sage" and Farnum agreed but only on one condition: he must have six months in which to prepare for this Western role. Six months that were devoted to horseback riding and target practice. Even today Farnum can whip a gun out of his pocket in Chicago time.

* * * *

DO you remember William Farnum in "Les Miserables," "A Tale of Two Cities," "If I Were King?" Those were grand film days, days when men didn't sing poor theme songs for pretty pennies. The days of towering figures on the screen, the supermen through whom clerks and haberdashery salesmen lived escape from ineffectuality. And when the brows were bunching and the knuckles itching

Music and the Economic Depression

Progress Being Made in Certain Quarters Despite the Unfavorable Conditions—A Stimulating Symphonic Season Promised Here—The Chicago Chamber Music Festival.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

EVERYBODY'S favorite ogre these days is the Economic Depression. Since he started on his rampage strong men have been quailing three times a day and beautiful ladies have decided to hold over that little old last year's ermine wrap for another season. In the circumstances nobody would have been surprised if Pan had thrown away his woodland pipes and taken a job as Icky the Goat-Man in Barnum's side-show. In other words the Music Industry had no reason to claim immunity from the reputedly remorseless operations of the economic law.

For that reason it is gratifying to report that music has not only held its own but in some quarters has actually made an advance. This refers only in part to the situation in St. Louis. The Symphony Society was extremely successful in its drive for funds. To pledge a total of $600,000 in the year of the Big Fright was an achievement of the first rank, one that involved a prodigious amount of labor on the part of the ladies and gentlemen who made the drive. One might also conclude from the comparative success of this drive that the business men of the community actually consider music a fundamental necessity for a civilized life.

Unfortunately the consuming public—the hypothetically art-hungry boys and girls for whom all this is being done—have not shown their gratitude by taking up all of the available season tickets. The management entertained the hope that the Odeon would be sold out this year, in which case more money might have been obtained from suspectible captains of industry for the purpose of increasing the manpower and improving the quality of the orchestra. It is possible, of course, that this hope still will be realized, but up to the present the takings have been slow.

Those who have been hanging back would do well to investigate the list of soloists promised for the coming season as well as the purely symphonic numbers which are promised. They would then realize that St. Louis audiences will hear the best artists available and that the music played will range through the best that has ever been put on paper. The variety and enterprise displayed in the programs given by the St. Louis orchestra for the last three years has been a matter of general comment. Vladimir Golschmann, the French conductor who will direct four pairs of concerts in St. Louis in January and February, told me last summer that he expected to have great difficulty in making up his own programs. "You seem to have heard everything important already."

St. Louis hasn't the best symphony orchestra in America for obvious reasons. But the programs are rarely dull.

A FEW of the signs and portent from other quarters which indicate that music is still carrying on bravely are as follows: The London Symphony Orchestra has abandoned its guest conductor policy and has employed Willem Mengelberg as permanent conductor. Mr. Mengelberg will be in charge for most of the season in London and will take the orchestra on an extended tour of the British Isles.

The string quartet formed by Jacques Gordon, lately concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has already booked more than 40 concerts for the present season. Chicago will have more recitals this year than ever before in its history. The Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Chamber Music Festival which was held last week in the Field Museum was a success, both artistically and financially, every concert being sold out. Arturo Toscanini will not only function as General Musical Director of the Bayreuth festival next year but will collaborate with Max Reinhardt in producing one of the Mozart operas at Salsburg.

THE Chicago Chamber Music Festival which was sponsored and underwritten by Mrs. Coolidge proved to be an event of the first importance—for it was carried through with the same thoroughness and good taste that have marked all of Mrs. Coolidge's projects in the East and abroad.

I was fortunate enough to hear the opening concert last Sunday evening when a program composed exclusively of the works of Paul Hindemith and Sebastian Bach was performed. Whether the conjunction of these two composers was arranged so as to show off their similarity or their dissimilarity would be hard to decide. A German commentator once said that the chief difference between Bach and Hindemith was that in Hindemith's music the points at which the several melodic strands are brought into consonance are wider spaced than in Bach. That is equivalent to saying that the important difference between Al Capone and Cardinal Mundelein is that the Cardinal wears a collar that faces to the rear. The internal differences are ignored for the moment—when that, after all, is certainly the only important difference. Any skilled musician can produce a fair imitation of Bach's contrapuntal web.

It seems to me that the Back-to-Bach slogan when used in connection with Hindemith does that composer a real injustice. Judged on his own merits, he appears as a composer who is not only capable of bold experiments, but as one with authentic musical ideas. The expression of those ideas may prove a little baffling—certainly at first hearing. A sonata for oboe, viola, 'cello and voice which was played at the Sunday evening concert was an essay in a poly-rhythmic and poly-tonal idiom carried to a point that made you wonder if Hindemith expected the auditor to listen to the work as a whole. As far as this auditor was concerned each of the voices was occupied with working out ideas that had neither an inward nor an outward affinity. The kinship may have been apparent to the composer, but to most of the audience the general effect would have been the same if he had assembled the parts from four admittedly different works. By adopting a different technique of listening, however, it was possible not only to abstract some musical sense from the composition but to enjoy it. One did this simply by concentrating on one melodic line at a time and pushing the others as far back in his consciousness as possible.

A sonata for two flutes in canonic style was another story. The melodic ideas had a commanding originality and distinction and the impish interplay of the two voices—not always strictly canonical—was skillfully contrived. The spirit of the number was airy, healthy and humorous—like two good-looking peasant girls making faces at each other.

A third Hindemith number written especially for Mrs. Coolidge and played here for the first time—was a concerto for chamber orchestra composed of several horns, trumpets, trombones and two harps. It was laboratory stuff and not to be taken seriously as music.

Among the participating artists were Georges Barrere, the flutist, William Kroll, violinist, d'Archambaud, lately 'cellist of the Flonzaley Quartet and a number of others. The festival lasted for five days.

STRICTLY DISHONORABLE STURGES COMEDY COMES TO AMERICAN THEATER

quality is sustained, St. Louis may look to Miss Hart and the Orpheum Theater this winter for some rare entertainment.

MISS BARRYMORE'S production of "Scarlet Sister Mary," coming to the Shubert, promises to be one of the outstanding events of the season. It is two years since the actress has appeared in a new role, and her present play takes on added interest through the fact that it is the story of a South Carolina Negress, the first of the kind ever acted by a member of the noted Barrymore-Drew family. The play also marks the debut of Ethel Barrymore Colt, daughter of the star.

Miss Barrymore selected "Scarlet Sister Mary" because of its qualities as a play and because Si May-e gives her a character which offers a sharp contrast to anything else she has given the theater during her notable career. Though it will be the first time she has worn the facial make-up of the colored race, it will not be the first time that she has hidden the famous Barrymore face in character disguise, for early in her career she was seen as the charlady in Galsworthy's "The Silver Box," and startled her admirers by her thorough-going sacrifice of beauty to art.

Sixty players support Miss Barrymore in "Sarlet Sister Mary." All of them are white actors. The only Negroes in the production ar the singers. In the cast are Estelle Winwood, Beatrice Terry, Georgie Drew Mendum, Anita Rothe, Ethel Barrymore Colt, Walter Gilbert, Horace Braham, William B. Mack, John Roseleigh, Leo Kennedy, Burke Clarke, Malcolm Soltan, Marcel Dill, Alan Campbell, Daniel Bagnell, Wilbur Cox and many others.

THE American's attraction the week of Nov. 2, will be Colleen Moore, well-known movie star, in person, in "On the Loose," a new comedy drama by Benjamin F. Glazer, to be presented here prior to its New York premiere. "On the Loose," according to report, will give Miss Moore an opportunity to show the many sides of her talent. Fundamentally a comedy, and a very light comedy at that, in the third act it is said to rise to heights of serious drama. Miss Moore's tour is being sponsored by Arch Selwyn in association with the Erlanger offices. The same managers will present Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque, also picture stars, in "Cherries Are Ripe" at the American the week beginning Sunday night, Nov. 23.

Amateurs in "Follies."

The "Alumni Follies" will be presented by the Alumni Association of the Morse School of Expression at the Toy Theater on Wednesday, Oct. 29, for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund. The program will consist of sketches, singing and dance numbers, arranged by Frances Dewey, president of the Alumni Association, and Charles R. Davis.

Pemberton to View His Production Here

BROCK PEMBERTON, native of Kansas and a well-known Broadway producer, given credit for having introduced Luigi Pirandello, internationally famous playwright, to the world, is to come to St. Louis this week to view performances of his production of "Strictly Dishonorable" at the American Theater.

Mr. Pemberton, graduate of the University of Kansas and former newspaper man, has produced many of the outstanding artistic successes of the past 10 years, including Luigi Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author." Until Mr. Pemberton sensed the dramatic value of that writer's works they had not been played outside of Italy. He later did his "Henry IV" as "The Living Mask."

Mr. Pemberton also produced the first plays of Zona Gale ("Lulu Bett"), Sidney Howard ("Swords") and Maxwell Anderson ("White Desert.") He later produced another Gale vehicle, "Mister Pitt," in which Walter Houston made his first legitimate stage appearance.

German Company in Comedy This Evening

A COMEDY, "The Magic Mirror," by Hans Sturm, a well-known German writer, will be given tonight by the German Theater Stock Co. in the German House auditorium, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues. The audience will be taken right into the farming country of Bavaria to make the acquaintance of the original type of Bavarian peasants and mountaineers.

The entire force of the German Theater Stock Co. will participate. Mrs. Anna Lohfink and Miss Bianca Mottle will make their first appearance on the German stage in St. Louis in leading roles.

The first performance of the season last Sunday, "Twelve Thousand," by Bruno Frank, was well received.

Organ Recital.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, Charles Galloway, assisted by Mrs. Paul W. Davis, contralto, will give the first of his 1930-31 series of organ recitals, which are part of the extension course of Washington University, and are free to the public.

At the top is Miss Velez in "East is West," at the St. Louis. Below is Joan Bennett, who is in "Scotland Yard," at Loew's and "Maybe It's Love," at the Missouri. The bottom photograph shows Philip Lord, Pierre Watkins, May Robson and Arthur Pierson, in "Mother's Millions," at the Orpheum.

FILM HOUSE CHANGES WHEN MUSICIANS COME BACK TO OLD POSTS

under their brass it was always the mighty Farnum who stormed into the scene and bashed the mutiny to somnolence, the mortgage villain to a cringing plea for life.

Nobody takes those old moments of transcendental power very seriously in these days of naturalistic acting but then the galleries howled and the kids cheered when Bill Farnum let 'em have it on the chin. There was substance to the thrillers, of the nickelodeons. Things happened to people, picts moved along, there was a lusty virility about the whole gauche business, an ingenious honesty too often mocked today. There is evidence of this in the sudden popularity of muscular Westerns, outdoor pictures, two-gun stories. They still pay off on virility in screen stars: Bancroft is merely the 1930 model of the 1914 Farnum.

In Miss Talmadge's "Du Barry" Farnum is said to have a strong role, a definite characterization. King Louis, who blusters and wavers and berates. And when a lane of 500 guardsmen forms for the approaching monarch a masculine figure in uniform strides toward the camera, cape bobbing rhythmically on the familiar hunched shoulders, forehead creased between the eyes, wide brow demanding a deserving toga to match its Grecian classicism. And Bill Farnum is back in the movies, furrowing and crinkling that brow sufficiently to terrify a thousand crews or armies or prospectors.

Hollywood needs tradition. The movies ought to have their background.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.

IF I could afford it, I'd——

Have a private barber to scratch my head an hour every morning.

Sponsor a club that didn't have a single rule.

Employ a commissionaire to buy every new pattern in shirts, ties and sox in Paris.

Hire a Strauss orchestra to give a concert in the public square of my home town nightly.

Present every neighbor with a rubber ash can.

Charter the Ile de France or the Europa and take all my friends on a round trip to Europe.

Pension all poets on $5000 a year.

Have a fully equipped cinema theater in my home, as Winnie Sheehan has.

Import a Kentucky cook just to specialize in corn pones.

Do without a telephone.

Always pay the check.

Buy out the theater and take all my friends when I wanted to see a play.

Replenish the treasury deficit and stop all this income tax annoyance.

Buy an island and banish those women in white ermine wraps who wave and talk out loud at first nights.

Revive vaudeville to the splendor of the early 90's.

Do nothing I didn't really want to do.

Buy my wife that 68 carat diamond at Cartier's in Paris.

Purchase the finest Oriental rugs for dogs to eat especially prepared lamb chops on.

And I wonder if I'd be any happier.

As exciting as the flight of the French flier Coste was, New York was strangely apathetic. Perhaps my barber expressed it with: "One ocean ain't enough any more; they gotta fly a couple upside down."

Until today I thought the most despicable of low callings was blackmail. But it has a rival. A neighbor suffered the tragic death of a beautiful daughter a month ago. The other day a letter addressed to his deceased daughter asked for a $300 check she had promised the charity designated on the letter head. The check was promptly sent. Today he learned it is a faked charity. It preys on relatives of prominent people who are listed in the death notices.

The other day a friend received an alarming cable from Baden-Baden. In 30 minutes he had his sister on the telephone there, the conversation being as clear as a bell.

Wise cracking from New York's City Hall has quieted down. In the light of what has happened, the metropolitan occupant of the Mayor's office has grown very sedate. His facial expression is beginning to show strain. Jimmy's second term so far has been far from a picnic.

Mike Donlin, the old Giant slugger, is scheduled for a Broadway play. It is a comeback for Mike, who was about dead a year or so ago. He has as many friends as any living ball player and deserves them. In his day there was no diamond celebrity so picturesque or clever.

Maier and Pattison In a Piano Recital

A RETURN visit of Guy Maier and Lee Pattison in a recital for two pianos marks the opening of the Principia concert and lecture course for this season. It will take place at Howard Hall next Friday night.

In announcing this as their farewell tour, Mr. Maier and Mr. Pattison explain that they feel they have reached the climax in this particular field of music. The repertoire of two-piano compositions, they point out, is not sufficiently extensive to remain fresh after 12 years of playing. In the future Mr. Pattison will devote a considerable part of his time to composition. Mr. Maier will continue to develop his ideas for children's and young people's concerts. Both will appear in solo recitals.

Fine Program for Concordia Concert

Presenting an unusual list of lectures and artists, the Concordia Seminary Lyceum committee opens the Fall Lyceum program next Friday, Oct. 24, at 8:15 p. m. The recitals and lectures will all be presented at the Concordia Seminary Auditorium.

The first program brings Max Steindel, solo 'cellist of the St. Louis Symphony.

In this recital Mr. Steindel will be assisted by John Faerber, violinist, and Edith Gordon, pianist. No admission will be charged.

Piano Recital.

Charles Anthony is announced for a piano recital at the Wednesday Club Auditorium on Thursday evening, Nov. 6. Anthony, a newcomer to St. Louis, has concertized extensively in Europe and America and has been a leading pedagogue with the New England Conservatory and the Minneapolis School of Music.

La Argentina Back.

La Argentina, Spanish dancer, opened her American tour with three New York recitals to sold-out houses last week. She will be at the Odeon Nov. 11. During the summer the Cross of the Legion of Honor was bestowed upon her by the President of the French Republic.

Fairbanks Prepares For His Next Film

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS' "Reaching For the Moon," now has the following cast: Bebe Daniels, Edward Everett Horton, Claude Allister, Walter Walker, Adrienne d'Ambricourt (the maid in Gloria Swanson's "What a Widow!") and June McCloy, late of the New York stage.

The story is by William Anthony McGuire with dialogue by Elsie Janis and the songs and production by Irving Berlin.

Mel-Harmonic Club.

Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, music director of the Mel-Harmonic Club, has announced a fine program for the club's meeting tomorrow night in the Musical Arts Building.

Behind the Screens

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.

THE Hollywood of today isn't a lot like the Hollywood of eight or 10 years ago. Then it was a sleepy village, a happy family, with but one interest—the making of motion pictures. On a Saturday night, swinging down the boulevard, you'd perhaps bump into Barbara LaMarr, Dustin Farnum, Lon Chaney, Theodore Roberts, Valentino, jolly little Mabel Normand, Wallace Reid, Milton Sills and countless other glamorous and colorful princes and princesses of the mysterious shadows. Where are they now? Just beautiful memories. And those lovable players little dreamed their pioneering work in the land of make-believe was designed to make the world safe for boop-de-boop yodelers and sound engineers.

Today's Hollywood is commercialized. It is a big city, teaming with traffic, trafficking with dance teams; sporting handsome trolley wires on which to hang banners when Sid Grauman is to be welcomed home after no absence, and with the world-famous Hollywood boulevard so Neon-ized as to resemble a fairy thoroughfare. Well, who cares? Anyway, we still have Peter, the Hermit, to say nothing of Bull Montana and Step'n Fetchit!

IT'S becoming almost necessary now, when invited to a party, to demand a squint at the guest list. Forewarned is forearmed, and someone at the festive board might nurse a secret grudge. Besides, the Hollywood American Legion Post, which has put a tidy fund in the old sock through the exploitation of socks, finds keen competition from restaurants and other eating places in the fight game. Latest food-and-fistfest occurred at the ultra-fashionable Embassy Club, where the elite were originally intended merely to eat and not fight. At a swanky party sponsored by Doug and Mary, Ernest Lubitsch, the director, appointed himself the Ambassador of Socko, and landed an energetic uppercut on the upper shirt-stud of the immaculate Hans Kraly, the erstwhile dancing partner of the assailant's ex-wife, still interlocuted. And 'tis said, Lubitsch, in annoyance, swung a haymaker from the floor and connected with the directorial clavicle. That's the kind of a girl to take to a dance! Scientists are endeavoring to discover just what peculiar phychology promotes this pugilistic urge in Hollywood eating places. Anyway, it puts a punch in the evening.

GRETA GARBO soon may have a rival as the screen's lady of mystery" in the person of Marlene Dietrich. However, the mystery about the German star probably will extend no further than a curtailment of interviews.

MARLENE DIETRICH

Miss Dietrich's resemblance to the Swedish star has been noted before, and by coincidence both are soon to be starred in talkies as woman war spies.

A bright press agent began Hollywood's mystery woman tradition years ago when he took Miss Theodosia Goodman of California, rechristened her "Theda Bara," spread rumors about her strange origin in the Orient, and set the chatter writers happily agog.

Then there was Jetta Goudal, now off the screen, whose nationality and birthplace are still subjects of conjecture, although she claims France as her native land, and French-Dutch parents.

GARBO, to date, outranks them all as the queen of mystery. That aura of glamour, arising at first from a natural reticence with strangers, no doube has been cultivated and carefully guarded by a publicity staff that knows its value.

Greta still refuses to see interviewers, and while the story of her life now is well known, the fact that she does not talk for publication, tell the fans what she thinks, eats, likes and dislikes, undoubtedly piques their curiosity.

Miss Dietrich, however, did not strike me as particularly the "mystery lady" when she arrived and was interviewed.

She was a bit aloof, true, due perhaps to a limited English vocabulary, but did not object to telling of her school days, of her father, a German officer, or of her stage and screen career.

In no interview has she mentioned her husband and baby in Germany, unless asked about them, but why should she? They're part of her private life.

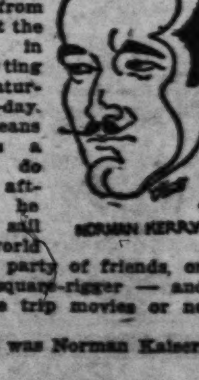
NORMAN KERRY once made news when, strolling down the boulevard with Lew Cody, he pounced upon a dog that was snapping viciously at his knee and returned the bite.

He makes it again now with the assertion, extremely rare from an actor, that the only thrill in movie-acting comes on Saturday, his pay-day.

And he means it. He has a contract to do four pictures, after which he plans to sail around the world with a small party of friends, on a fair-sized square-rigger — and he'll take the trip movies or no movies.



NORMAN KERRY

Kerry, who was Norman Kaiser, until after the war when Marshall Neilan, his director, re-christened him for movie purposes, is an actor only by chance.

He came to Hollywood from the wilds of Utah, where he'd been chasing cattle and such, and did a little extra work.

One day he was loitering near the then new, now defunct Paralta studio when Jim Young, Clara Kimball's husband, spotted him.

"YOUNG man," he said, "how'd you like to be Bessie Barriscale's leading man?"

Kerry leaped at it. His first duty, on location, was to "register" listening to her playing off stage. Scared and trembling, he "listened"—for three days to no avail.

"I thought you said you were an actor," Young said at last in exasperation.

"No," was the reply, "I only said I'd like to be Bessie Barriscale's leading man!"

They never took that scene, but Kerry stayed on in pictures and did well enough with that lead to play opposite Mary Pickford in her next.

He's an adventurous soul, it seems, likes to travel and does. He served in the British army until America entered the war, then joined the Yankee tank corps.

After it was over he returned to Hollywood. Like other silent stars, he hasn't been in great demand, until now, for talkies.

He doesn't seem to care what his picture fortunes are. As he says, he's going to take that sailing trip—movies or no movies.

FLAMING romances of the African desert so often glorified in Hollywood movies about sheiks who conquer the hearts of white women are far-fetched, in the opinion of a real sheik now here.

LESTER VAIL

Sheik Abdeslam (which he pronounces Absolom, like the biblical character) was one of the acquaintances the director, Herbert Brenon, made in Morocco on a camera tour last year, and he was signed then for possible future use in pictures.

Most men of his race, he holds, prefer their own women. The movies, of course, always playing safe, usually have their sheiks turn out to be, in the fadeout, white men adopted by desert chieftians and reared as their own sons. It's an old movie custom, always convenient.

THE sheik is working in "Beau Ideal," in which Brenon will introduce to talkies also a young stage actor, Lester Vail, as his newest "discovery."

Vail was "discovered," however, after he had been under contract for several weeks to another studio, which at that time had no roles for him. He was therefore easily borrowed, and now will take a role intended originally for Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

The continuing popularity of the war theme, incidentally, has given a veteran the idea of capitalizing on his collection of relics of the conflict. Some two years ago he established a "museum for war relics" in Burbank, near Hollywood, his exhibition including pieces used by various armies.

Demand for his goods for movie use in such films as "Hell's Angels," "Doughboys," and "She Goes to War" has been such as to encourage his establishing a regular movie rental business.

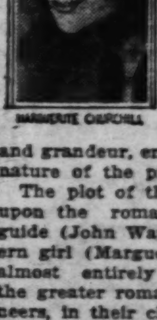
THE real value of the new wide film to the screen is demonstrated for the first time in "The Big Trail," the talkies' first epic of the pioneers of the West.



MARGUERITE CHURCHILL

Here, with tremendous backgrounds of deserts, forests, snow-capped mountains and desolate plains, the camera's enlarged scope affords truly panoramic vision, presenting in scene after scene, as the covered wagons forge painfully along, views of beauty and grandeur, emphasizing the epic nature of the production.

The plot of the film, centering upon the romance of a youthful guide (John Wayne) and a Southern girl (Marguerite Churchill), is almost entirely overshadowed by the greater romance of hardy pioneers, in their clumsy wagons, defying dangers of unknown country, hostile Indians, desert thirst, rain and snowstorms, and every conceivable hardship, all of which are depicted vividly.

STILL Wayne, as a result of his performance, so utterly natural it is, is already being acclaimed as stellar material, even though a few months ago he was a studio prop-man and extra, shortly out of college.

Other highlights of the cast include El Brendel as a Swedish pioneer, Tully Marshall as the guide's eccentric old friend and Tyrone Power as the blackest kind of roaring villain.

The premiere attracted, among other celebrities, that shyest of premiere-avoiders, Will Rogers. For the first time in his career he spoke on such an occasion, and the boulevard is still repeating, with chuckles, some of the remarks he made.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

FIVE DISTRICT BOARDS TO MEET THIS WEEK

First Inter-Racial Review, for Negro Scouts, Also Will Be Held.

Boards of Review, to examine all Boy Scout candidates for the rank of second class or first class scout, and all scouts who have on file applications for merit badges subject to review, will be held in each of the five districts of the Scout Council this week. In addition, according to William Puffer, educational director, there will be conducted the first Inter-racial Board of Review, for Negro scouts, to be held in this city.

The Inter-racial Board, which will be in all ways identical with the District boards, will be conducted at the Banneker School, 2840 Lucas avenue, Wednesday evening. It will be conducted by a special group of examiners.

The North District review will be held at the Farragut School, Sullivan and Warner avenues, tomorrow evening; the South District at the Fanning School, 3417 Grace avenue, Tuesday; West District, Church of the Ascension, Cates and Goodfellow avenue, also Tuesday; Central District, Gallaudet School, 1604 South Grand boulevard, Wednesday, and Suburban District, Webster Groves High School, Selma avenue near Lockwood boulevard, Webster Groves, Thursday evening.

While it is intended that candidates will appear for review before their own district boards, it is permissible for them to attend the review in another district. In such cases, however, the scout must notify headquarters in advance, and arrange for his application to be transferred to the file of the examining board.

No additional merit badges will be assigned for review during the remainder of the year, Puffer said, but scouts having applications on file bearing dates during which the badges have been subject to review must appear before a board before the badges may be awarded.

"Scouts should understand," Puffer explained, "that when a Court of Honor declares a certain merit badge subject is to be reviewed between certain dates, every badge on this subject on file at headquarters, and every application bearing a date showing the badge was passed during the review period, is considered subject to review. As the application is so rubber-stamped, the badge cannot be awarded at any Court of Honor until the chairman of the Board of Review has signed under the stamp."

Troop Notes

West District.

Troop 26 of Delmar Baptist Church will hold a Parents' night Friday evening, to which all parents and friends of the scouts have been invited. Special features will include a Tenderfoot Investiture ceremony, and an address on "Theodore Roosevelt" by Glenn Mohler.

Assistant Scoutmasters Louis Romansky and Louis Platt of Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A. are attending the Elementary Training Course in Scout Leadership being given by the local Scout Council.

Troop 60 of Union Avenue Christian Church will demonstrate the Angling Merit Badge at the Merit Badge Show. The scout of the troop are now working making artificial baits, nets, rods and other tackle in preparation.

Troop 90 is to demonstrate the chemistry badge at the show, and in preparation the scouts have been undergoing a course of instruction from Dr. J. Bertsch, research chemist. Five scouts of the troop received star badges at the last court of honor, another was awarded an eagle palm and two received certificates in swimming. Assistant Scoutmaster Carl Bauman received the eagle palm, signifying that he has earned 26 merit badges. Bauman was also the recipient of one of the swimming certificates, the other going to Scout Morton Pareira. Those awarded star badges were Scouts Robert Weguson, Herbert Levy, Ira Nathan, Harvey Zucker and Wallace Rindskopf. Nine new scouts have been admitted to the troop—Arthur Bierman, Edward Bearman, John Phiambolis, Milton Cohen, Herbert Schieber, Hanford Scher, Sam Cohen, Bert Rosen and Monty Silverblatt.

South District.

Scoutmaster Sparwasser, Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Bjorkman and 26 scouts of Troop 247, of the Froebel School, spent last Saturday and Sunday at their cabin near Pacific. A number of tests were passed during the camp. Scoutmaster Sparwasser received a certificate at the Fall Court of Honor, for successfully completing a training course in scout leadership. The troop is planning to give a minstrel show and dance at the Swiss Hall, Arsenal street and Iowa avenue, Nov. 1. One of the features will be a program "On the Hike."

Thirty-five tests were passed by 28 scouts of Troop 168 of St. Pius' Church, while on a hike to Fenton recently. Three new members were admitted into the troop at a Court of Honor two weeks ago.

An overnight hike to their camp on the Tesson Ferry road was held by Troop 200 of Rose Fanning School, two weeks ago. The Sioux patrol won an inter-patrol contest.

North District.

A campaign for new members is being carried on by Troop 40, of Third Presbyterian Church. The drive will last all fall. Games and a review of second class tests featured the last meeting of the troop.

Troop 149 of St. Paul's M. E. Church, is demonstrating the "Poultry Keeping" merit badge at the Merit Badge Show next month. The troop is at present working on the exhibit the scouts will have in their booth. A recent meeting, however, was devoted entirely to merit badge work.

Central District.

Troop 32 is well on its way to being among the first, if not the first, troop in the Central district to win a standard troop award. The goal of standard troop was set by Scoutmaster Kleykamp and Robert L. Spelbrink, chairman of the Troop Committee, when they took charge of the troop. At the fall court of honor the troop was represented in every group of awards by at least one scout or leader.

Paul Butler, newly appointed assistant scoutmaster of troop 80, of McKinley Intermediate School, is acting as scoutmaster of the troop. Under his leadership the troop has been reorganized, and plans have been made for an active year.

Troop 105 of the Assumption Church, has been reorganized under the leadership of Tom Barry, new scoutmaster, following the resignation of former Scoutmaster John Reinhardt.

A program of scouting, including several speakers telling of the advantages of the scout movement, was given by troop 118, of the Chouteau School, before a meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the school Friday evening. The program was held to familiarize the association with the activities of the troop.

The troop committee of Troop 141, of the Sigel School, has announced the commissioning of E. B. Brunk as scoutmaster of the troop, and of Lester Richardson as assistant scoutmaster. Scoutmaster C. W. Stockhausen, who has had charge of the troop for a number of years has resigned.

Cub Pack Notes.

Cub Pack No. 1, of Shaare Emeth, has been officially organized, and has held its first meeting, according to Supreme Cubmaster Reaves. C. Pareira has been commissioned as cubmaster, while Morton Pareira has been made Assistant cubmaster. Nathan Kohn, Fred Schoen, Fred Ruoff, Jim Delano and Alfred Fleischer are den chiefs.

Missouri Boy Amazes Mother

"Leslie's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. L. E. Vogt, 4119 N. Florissant Ave., St. Louis. "He was feverish and his breath was unpleasant. We found he was constipated.

"My mother used California Fig Syrup with us, so I decided to give Leslie some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a happy, strong and energetic boy again."

Millions of mothers know the quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor. It acts without griping or discomfort, increases appetite; helps tone and strengthen weak stomach and bowels.

For 50 years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product for constipation; to open the bowels during colds or children's diseases.

MORE SUPPORT ANNOUNCED FOR PROPOSITION NO. 6

Chambers of Commerce of Kansas City and Springfield Indorse Condemnation Proposal.

The Kansas City and Springfield Chambers of Commerce have adopted resolutions indorsing Proposition No. 6, the proposed Constitutional amendment providing for marginal condemnation of property for public improvements, according to information received yesterday by Luther Ely Smith, chairman of the committee conducting a State-wide campaign in its behalf.

In its resolution, the Springfield Chamber says: "Missouri voters will on Nov. 4 be called upon to pass judgment upon a proposed Constitutional amendment, known as Proposition No. 6, making it possible to apply the principle of marginal condemnation to the proposed river front improvement in the City of St. Louis. Be it, therefore, resolved that we indorse Proposition No. 6 and recommend to the voters of this and other counties an affirmative vote upon that proposition."

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 18. — Aroused to a fighting fury, unusual even to their far-famed fighting spirits, Knute Rockne's Notre Dame warriors today answered another mighty challenge in their march toward another mythical national footfall championship by routing the high-powered Skibos from Carnegie Tech, 21 to 6.

So decisive was the victory, earned by an impressive aerial attack and an alertness that surprised even the stanchest Notre Dame rooter, that hopes again bounded high in Rockne's heart tonight for another undefeated team.

Rockne's Prediction Reversed.

It was the third straight victory of the season for Notre Dame and with the bothersome Scots shoved definitely off the high road, Rockne and his fighting men rushed happily to the dressing room with an air of confidence that had been missing so far this season. Instead of being defeated by "two or three" touchdowns as "Rock" had predicted, they had turned the prediction almost around.

More experienced and more confident the Scots fought the reformed Ramblers on even terms for just the first period today. After that the battle took on the customary Irish complexion and what had been advertised as a "one-point" game turned into a crushing and unexpected Notre Dame triumph—the sixth in eight years for the Rockne men.

Score Twice in Second Period.

Held by a Skibo stone wall in the first period, Notre Dame got into action in double quick time soon after the second period opened and won the game in about 10 minutes, during which they ripped open their box of tricks that baffled the Skibos. Spinners, reverses, line smashes and lateral criss-cross

Spinach First, Yarn Second in the Latonia Championship

STAR LASSIE LANDS THIRD; ONLY FOUR STARTERS

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 18.—Winning easily and never extended, Spinach, an Eastern horse owned by William Ziegler Jr., New York, today captured the $25,000 added Latonia championship here today by finishing three lengths ahead of Yarn, the favorite. The race, run over a mile and three-quarter course, was one of the outstanding autumn classics for three-year-olds.

Spinach was not pushed and ran the distance in the slow time of 2:59 3-5. He paid $6.00 to win and $2.88 to place. Yarn paid $2.64 to place. Only four entries ran and there was no show money.

Jockey G. Ellis had the mount on Spinach and chose to let Alcibiades set the pace for the first mile. At that post Spinach was sent to the front. Alcibiades dropped from the picture and Yarn moved up and went after Spinach but never could get within two lengths of the winner. Yarn tired in the stretch and finished three lengths behind Ziegler's entry.

Star Lassie, a Western filly, ran in third place practically all the way and finished in that position 10 lengths back of Yarn.

Spinach's time was five seconds slower than the fastest time for the event, made by Chilhowee in 1924.

Bethea Big Star As Florida Beats Chicago U., 19-0

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—A Florida redhead, Leroy Bethea, streaked across Stagg Field this afternoon, leaving in his wake a 19 to 0 victory for the University of Florida over Chicago.

Bethea scored two touchdowns, one on a 70-yard run, and carried the ball into scoring position for the third.

ARKANSAS DEFEATS RICE INSTITUTE, 7-6

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 18.—Both Arkansas and Rice scored in first few minutes of play here today, but Porkers kicked extra point, which was the winning margin, 7-6. Game was hard-fought throughout, both squads playing fast football for conference win. Most of the game was played in Rice territory.

Arkansas scored first. Kyle carried the ball for a 20-yard gain on the first play. Ledbetter's pass was grounded. Ledbetter carried the ball to Rice's 11-yard line, and Kyle carried it over. Dale kicked goal.

Spinach easily best, raced close up under strong restraint for five-eighths. Ellis not required to lessen the restraint as Spinch went to the front after three-quarters and withstanding Yarn's bid in the final five-sixteenths, won with something left. Yarn saved far back for seven furlongs, raced very wide when passing Star Lassie and Alcibiades into second place, also suffered slightly when he followed wide in stretch and offered a game challenge but weakened badly in the final eighth. Star Lassie raced forwardly for seven furlongs, then pulled up sore. Alcibiades taken into lead set pace under strong reserve, developed lameness and was eased up.

$2 mutuels paid: Spinach, win $6.00, place $2.88, show out. Yarn, place $2.64, show, out.

AN ALL-INTERSCHOLASTIC TACKLE DOES HIS STUFF AGAINST PRINCIPIA

Nolte, the Pricipia's backfield ace, is shown being tackled in the second quarter of the Principia Colleg-Soldan game, at Public Schools Stadium. Vainiko, the Soldan player who brought him low, on this play broke through the Principia line and threw his man for a five-yard loss. Vainiko was an all-interscholastic tackle last year.

Miss Glenna Collett Wins Her Fifth U. S. Golf Championship

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 18.—Smiling Glenna Collett, the wonder girl of American golf, reached new and brilliant heights today when she stroked her way to her fifth national women's title with a six and five victory over Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, in the 36-hole final of the 1930 classic.

As calmly as though out for a couple of practice rounds, the defending champion of the last two years pitted her mastery of the woods and irons against the challenge of her younger rival. Oblivious to everything, including frequent applause from several thousand spectators, Miss Collett set a steady pace that produced the best golf of the tournament.

Pressed only during the first nine holes, which she finished one up on the Chicago contender. The champion made made golf history in the second half on the morning round. Three birdies and a spectacular eagle followed. She finished the morning round in 76, five under women's par for the Los Angeles County Club course.

Six Under Par for 9 Holes.

Her first nine card read 40, one over par, but she trimmed half a dozen strokes off par for the second nine. For the 31 holes she played, she was six under par. Miss Van Wie, poor off the tee and erratic in her putting, turned the morning round in 41-42—83.

Five holes to the good, Miss Collett was forced to bow to better golf on the 19th and 21st but at the 25th she had won back the two, and at the 28th increase her margin to six up. Miss Van Wie made a last desperate effort and won the 30th, but her par five on the 31st was not good enough for the birdie four posted by the champion.

Collett . . . . .435 5 x x
Van Wie . . . . .534 5 x x

Miss Collett's par-shattering morning round disheartened the Chicago girl. The first three holes were halved in 5s. Miss Van Wie went into the lead for the only time of the match when she won the fourth with a birdie 2 after putting her tee shot two feet from the pin on the 175-yard hole.

Champion Goes Ahead.

The champion squared accounts by winning the fifth with a par 5. It was the turning point of the match. They halved the next two holes in par 4s and Miss Collett went one up on the eighth with a birdie 5, Miss Van Wie being stymied. The ninth was halved in 4s.

Three birdies in a row then put Miss Collett four up. The Chicagoan birdied the thirteenth with a four, but Miss Collett posted an eagle four to win the 520-yard fourteenth. Her third, a fine spoon shot, left her ball 18 inches from the cup. They halved the

New York U. Swamps Missouri, 38-0; Tigers Threaten Only Once

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK Oct. 18.—The University of Missouri's efforts to stop the juggernaut attack of New York University met with little success here this afternoon as the Tigers succumbed, 38 to 0, for their third successive setback of the season. After holding the regulars of the Violet machine to a single score in the first quarter, the Tigers gradually weakened under the attack and three more touchdowns were made in the second period.

Missouri showing its smartest defensive play and at the same time making an aggressive stand against the Violet machine which had the starting lineup in play, the Meehan eleven was held scoreless in the third period.

Once more the Tigers lowered their colors in the fourth period when the reserves of Coach Henry could not withstand the attack of the second eleven of the Violet squad. Standing off repeated thrusts for a few fleeting moments, the Violet advance once more told. Two touchdowns were scored and a third was on the shadow of the goal posts when the game ended.

It was the third successive time that New York has defeated Missouri and the second time the Missourians were held scoreless.

Tanguay Scores Three Times.

The real thorn in the efforts of Missouri proved to be Jim Tanguay, New York's fine running back. Injected into the game late in the first period, he finally started almost a single-handed attack. Three times the scintillating sophomore broke up the Tiger defense. His first touchdown was the result of a combination play with Bob McNamara and Joe La Mark. Late in the second period, he crashed over from the one-foot line after two failures to score, and his final effort was in the fourth quarter on a drive from his own five-yard line. The other Violet scores came with Bill and Bob McNamara and Joe La Mark, each scoring on short runs.

WISCONSIN DEFEATS QUAKERS, 27 TO 0

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 18.—Pennsylvania, booming menacingly out of the East with a record of having rolled up 103 points to six for its opponents, ran its chin smack into a Wisconsin stone wall today.

The Badgers of Wisconsin, fighting and clawing as never before, administered a crushing 27-0 defeat to the Quakers. A shivering half dozen crowd of 41,000 witnessed the game.

SOLDAN BEATS PRINCIPIA, 14-0, IN SECOND HALF

By Harold Tuthill

Soldan pronounced itself as ready for the opening of the City High School League football season next week by defeating the Principia Junior College eleven, 14 to 0, yesterday afternoon in a nonleague game, at the Public Schools Stadium. Although it was the only afternoon game of interest in St. Louis, 500 people were present.

The West Enders were playing against an improved team, since Principia looked better yesterday than it did when it tied Central, 0 to 0, and lost to Roosevelt, 20 to 0. The victory stamps Soldan as a contender for the championship, which it has held for two years.

There was a great deal of action but no scoring in the first half of yesterday's battle. The Cadets got a bad break when they were penalized 15 yards immediately after the

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 18.—The famous jinx and cripple club from Northwestern playing as though fortune had done nothing but beam at Evanston this year, today gave Illinois its worst thrashing in its modern football history.

The score was 32 to 0, surpassing in severity the 24 to 0 trouncing administered by Michigan in 1922, and marked Illinois' first defeat in Memorial Stadium since 1926, when Ohio State sneaked out with a 7-6 decision.

Illinois, rated as almost an even bet with Northwestern, following loss of Hank Bruder, Harry Kent and Reb Russell, and wholesale vaccinations against smallpox, was a soundly licked football team. Bob Zuppke's passing attack not only collapsed as a ground gainer for Illinois, but was good for one Northwestern touchdown, while the running attack of the Illini, although better than the passing, was futile when the ball was near the Northwestern goal line.

If there were Northwestern stars, the names of Frank Baker, veteran end; big Pug Rentner, the boy from Joliet, Ill., and little Lee Hanley, who plays quarterback for his brother and coach, must be mentioned but the play of the Wildcat line, as usual, made the task of the ball carriers almost simple.

Rentner, a 184-pound halfback, gave the crowd of 50,000 homecomers their big thrill of the day, when in the third period, after he had fired a forward pass to Baker for a touchdown, he grabbed the next kickoff on his three-yard line, and behind beautiful interference, scurried through the whole Illinois eleven for a touchdown.

Baker was the leading scorer for the Wildcats, with three journeys over the Illinois goal line. His first two were honest pieces of work on forward passes from Rentner, one for 28 yards and the other gathered in on the goal line. The third one was a piece of thievery in the last period when he snatched a heave from Berry, Illinois halfback, and raced 54 yards for another touchdown.

The final Wildcat score was produced by a pair of substitutes, Roy Leming and Jimmy O'Mara, and came about two minutes before the finish. Leming tossed a lateral pass to O'Mara, who made his only run of the game—a 38-yard dash for a score.

C. B. C. Defeats Western, 18-7, in League Opener

Christian Brothers College opened the Prep League season yesterday by defeating Western Military Academy at Alton, 18—7.

Western opened the game by going to the Brothers two-yard line, but were held for downs. The Cadets again went down the field and were in scoring position at the quarter. Soon after the second period opened Cornelli went through guard for three yards, but fumbled the ball. Costa fell on the ball for the first touchdown.

A short time later C. B. C. started a drive and marched down the field from its own 38-yard line. Donahue carried the ball over from the one-yard line for touchdown. His kick was low.

Fuch scored the two touchdowns in the third with McDonald's aid he placed the ball into scoring position, after which he went off tackle for six yards and goal. An exchange of punts followed and on the return kick of Western, C. B. C. blocked and the Brothers recovered on the one-yard line. Fuch then went through the line and scored. The Cadets tightened their defense and the ball was in midfield for the last period.

THE ART OF SOCCER FOOTBALL No. 1.

One of Scotland's Greatest Stars Gives Some Tips to Soccer Players

"Any Youth Can Play the Game Well if He'll Take the Trouble to Study It," Wilson Writes.

By Andy Wilson,

Of Scotland and Chelsea. One of the Greatest of Modern Footballers.

Playing football is not hard. Anybody can put on a pair of boots, and kick a ball about, run after it, and say he has played football. But in Scotland, the home of science applied to football, it is always said that the easiest of all games is real football, and the only way to learn real football is to do everything properly.

It is my firm opinion that any youth can play football well, provided he will take the trouble to study those who understand the game well. But that is not possible to all, and my aim here is to assist those who cannot see the great players of England and Scotland. For, despite all that is said to the contrary, there are still many great footballers in England.

One great difficulty comes to all who desire to assist by means of the written word. Let me illustrate. A junior club near London asked if I could spare an evening to watch their team in action. I can always spare an evening to help where football is concerned. For half an hour I watched these young men. I noticed a player at halfback. He was doing some peculiar things that made him rather foolish. But it was plain to me that he was out of position. So, at half-time, I asked him to try as a fullback. His club agreed. He was instantly a success. Less than a month later he was signed up by a professional club, and today plays in the English League. I have played against him. So my handicap is that I must assume you have found your true position.

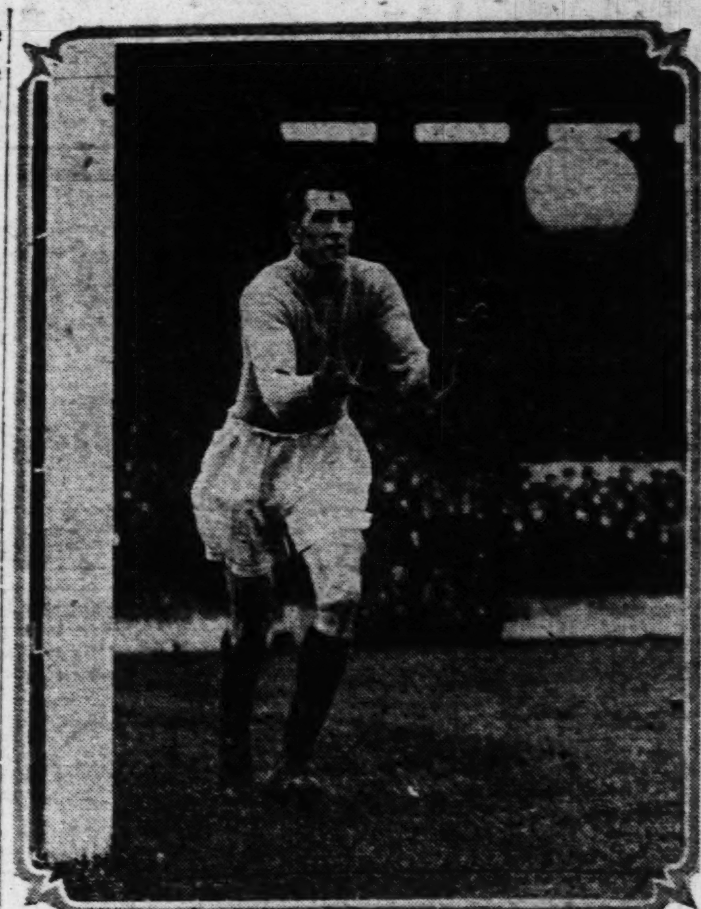
It's Detail That Counts.

Later I shall try to explain how you may determine, whether or not you are in your best position, but first I intend to go through the positions, and explain to you the theories of each particular one. Then each will be dissected in detail. It is detail that counts. In this instance I recall that, when a young boy, I used to watch the great Glasgow Celtic in training. My brother played for them. Many were the hours that I spent studying the great James McMenemy, and, because I had a brother there, I could ask questions.

He amazed me by the way in which he got the ball under control. I asked how he did it. This was how. When the ball was dropping at his feet he would lift his foot up. Before the ball touched the ground, his foot was high. It was then easy to bring his foot down on to the ball. My trouble then, and the trouble with many beginners, is that they start to take the foot up as the ball touches the ground. They are a fraction of a second too late. It is best to be early with the rise of the foot. Simple it sounds, but there it is—a crucial detail.

With each article or lesson I propose to give photographs in which I shall illustrate a detail explained.

It seems to me that the best way to start is by dealing with the goalkeeper. There is one golden rule for a goalkeeper. It is very wrong to take the slightest risk. It may appear clever to do something sensational, but think how foolish one appears when, instead of the ball being stopped, it goes over the line and into the net. Then one is not clever, but a goal has been given away. So I say, in our British motto: "Safety first."



Arsenals' goaltender, Dan Lewis, shows how a high shot should be gathered in.

Goalkeepers have been given the privilege of using their hands. That is, indeed, a great help, and advantage should always be taken of the help. Never kick the ball first time if you can pick it up with your hands. My experience of goalkeepers, in countries outside Britain, is that they often do take what we call a first-time kick at the ball. Whilst it does not matter much if a player in the field miskicks, it is fatal if a goalkeeper makes this mistake.

Face the Ball Squarely.

Take a very ordinary shot at goal. Not only do I advise you to pick up the ball, but I want you also to take care that you face the ball squarely. Not only do I want you to pick up or catch the ball, but I want you to see that the whole of your body is between the ball and the goal. Just remember this point. The ball cannot get through solid flesh and bone. So, if your hands miss the ball—and when the weather is bad this is easy, you have a second line of defense.

In this connection I want you to study the picture given. This is an action study of Dan Lewis, the great Welsh international goalkeeper of the London Arsenal Club. Notice the way he is running to the ball. His outstretched hands are ready to hug the ball to his body, but should they miss, the ball will strike his body.

Also note that he is looking at the ball. Now this is very important to all footballers. You must watch the ball. To goalkeepers this is doubly important. The fact that an opponent is coming towards you will often detract your attention. Your object is the ball; nothing else counts.

For the low shot, I advise you to go down on to your knees when gathering the ball. Especially do I advise this when the ball is slippery, or when it is light and bouncing about. Clutch it tightly to your body.

Probably the greatest problem of all to a goalkeeper is when to dash out of his goal and when to stay on his line. This much is certain. You must always narrow the angle when an opponent is advancing towards your goal. But the only time to rush right up to him is when he is clean through your defense. Whilst one of your comrades is in attendance, you must leave the tackling to him.

Remember this. Your colleague cannot look at you and the opponent. He expects you to be guarding the goal, but the moment you leave it your comrade is beaten, and the opposing forward is given the advantage. No longer need he strive to beat your colleague. He has an empty goal to shoot at.

But if your colleague is beaten, then by all means advance towards your opponent. By so doing you may get him worried. He will not be able to decide whether he should beat you or shoot. Now this is a case when you must worry about the ball. Keep your eyes looking at the ball, and, when you get near enough, dive down to the ball. You must get the ball.

So, for this lesson, I repeat that goalkeepers must try to get the whole of their bodies between the ball and the goal, take no risks, and always go for the ball. Nothing else matters.

There are still details of goalkeeping to study, the art of fisting clear, when not to try this, positional play, and dealing with different kinds of shots, but these must be left to my next article.

(The second article of this series will appear next week.)

opening kickoff. Soldan kept the ball in play within scoring distance during the whole quarter, but was stopped at the one-yard line on one occasion and within the 20-yard line several other times.

Principia Makes Threat.

Left End Woodard was injected into the Principia lineup before the start of the second period and made his presence felt by receiving passes from Becker, the Cadet quarterback. In the second quarter, the passing attack, coupled with a bad pass from center which caused Lee Handley to fumble on the fourth down, gave Principia the ball on the Soldan 21-yard line.

The Cadets plunged their way to first down on Soldan's 10-yard mark, but three rushes and an uncompleted pass netted only four yards. Handley's punt took a long roll before it was finally downed on the Principia 38-yard line. A pass, Becker to Woodard, was good for 12 yards as the half ended.

Scores in Second Half.

In the third quarter the ball was kept in play in midfield until little Roy Pohl decided that Soldan should have a touchdown. He broke loose from the 45-yard line and ran around the right side of the Principia line for the first score. Lee Handley added the extra point by place-kicking.

Kimble Moore duplicated Pohl's feat in the final period, running 37 yards around right end for the touchdown. Handley's perfect place kick made the score 14 to 0 in Soldan's favor.

Several times the Principia team started marches that threatened the West Enders' goal line. In the fourth quarter, Principia advanced to Soldan's 10-yard line, only to lose the ball by a pass over the goal line. Two passes, good for 28 yards, and a 15-yard penalty against Soldan, put Principia in the scoring position.

61-YARD RUN WINS FOR MICHIGAN STATE

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 18.—An inspired Michigan State College team today defeated the much vaunted Colgate College scoring machine, 14 to 7.

State's victory was achieved in the final period by Monnett, left half, who went off tackle and outran a Colgate tackler 61 yards to the goal, and then kicked the extra point. It was one minute before the final gun sounded.

next two holes, and Miss Collett went five up at the seventeenth. The eighteenth was halved.

Miss Van Wie won back a hole when she dropped an eight-foot putt for a birdie four on the nineteenth. They halved the twentieth, and Miss Van Wie cut her rival's lead to three up with a par four on the twenty-first. Miss Collett three-putted the green. The next two were halved. Par fours on the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth gave Miss Collett a five up lead again. Each had a birdie five on the twenty-sixth, Miss Collett barely missing an eagle. They halved the next hole in fours and Miss Collett went six up with a birdie four on the twenty-eighth. They halved the twenty-ninth.

The challenger won the thirtieth with a par four, to become five down. Miss Collett hooked her second into the crowd and was forced to play her third from beneath a small tree on this hole.

A brilliant recovery shot, after her topped second on the final hole had traveled 75 yards, left Miss Collett a 10-foot putt. Miss Van Wie had sliced badly on her drive, but she had a great second and her third was 12 feet from the pin. Her putt was weak, the ball stopping 10 inches from the hole.

Miss Collett stepped up and putted boldly. The ball rolled true into the hole.

Although her earlier rounds were not as spectacular as followers had hoped for, her finish left nothing to be desired. Her game today was sound and what few poor shots she made from the tee were quickly made up for by sparkling work with the irons and a bold putting touch that sent the ball holeward with no uncertainty.

Miss Van Wie experienced difficulty with her woods on the morning round and after she had corrected this trouble in the afternoon, she faltered on the greens.

As a girl of 19, Miss Collett won her first national title in 1922, and she repeated in 1925. Since 1928 she has ruled America's women golfers with an iron hand. Today's match was the second meeting of Misses Collett and Van Wie in the national finals, the former winning, 13-12, two years ago.

PURDUE DOWNS IOWA, 20-0, IN 'HAWKEYES' ONLY BIG TEN GAME

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 18.—Steam, accumulated since Michigan clamped a safety valve on the Boilermakers a week ago, drove the Purdue machine to a 20-0 triumph over Iowa here this afternoon.

A 60-yard march down the field in the first three minutes to play and a pair of sensational dashes around the ends for 80 and 70 yards, respectively, accounted for Purdue's three scores.

It was Iowa's third consecutive defeat and the lone big Ten game on the Hawkeye schedule. A Dad's day crowd of 25,000 saw the contest.

Iowa showed plenty of ground-gaining power, rolling up 11 first downs against eight for the visitors. Twice the Hawkeyes drove into scoring territory only to be halted by the failure of their pass attack. Thanks largely to the two long runs for touchdowns, the visitors were credited with 324 yards from scrimmage against 169 for the Hawkeyes.

Purdue's first tally came early in the contest when the Boilermakers took the ball on their 41-yard line. In nine smashes at the line they scored a touchdown, Horstman plunging over center on fourth down. Kissell place-kicked the extra point.

Shortly afterward Risk slipped out of Hay's arms and streaked around right end for 80 yards and a touchdown. Kissell missed the kick.

Late in the final period Pope, sub halfback, circled wide around Iowa's left end 70 yards for a touchdown. The marker was allowed after a heated debate as to whether the Boilermaker ball carrier had stepped out of bounds.

Edward Risk, a second-year sub halfback, who started for the Boilermakers, was the individual ground-gaining star of the day with 143 yards in 13 attempts.

Minnesota Beats Indiana, 6 to 0

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 18.—Minnesota won its initial start in the Big Ten football conference today by chalking up a 6-0 triumph over the University of Indiana.

Riebeth, whose fumble near the Hoosier goal line cost the Gophers one chance to score, ran 31 yards for the only score of the game after a series of line plays had pushed the ball into Indiana's territory in the first period.

Emond's attempted place kick from the Minnesota 35-yard line in the first period after Indiana had recovered a kicked ball Riebeth had touched, fell short. Two penalties when within scoring distance cost the Gophers chances to score in the last two periods.

Just before the final gun Riebeth intercepted an Indiana pass and ran across the goal line but was called back and the ball was put in play on the Hoosier 16-yard line, where he stepped out of bounds but Indiana repulsed the final Gopher challenge.

Army Turns Wood's Poor Punt Into Touchdown and Defeats Harvard, 6 to 0

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18.—The poorest punt that Barry Wood ever kicked for Harvard gave the hard-fighting Army team a touchdown and a 6—0 victory over the Crimson here today before the entire Cadet Corps and 57,000 other spectators who crowded the Stadium to its limit.

This victory, the second the Cadets have scored in the series of 16 football battles with the Crimson, was earned early in the opening period when Wood, who tied the Cadets last year by completing a last-minute scoring forward pass to Victor Harding, stood on the Crimson's 20-yard stripe and was so rushed by the Army's veteran forwards that he was only able to boot a 12-yard kick that was grounded on Harvard's 32-yard line.

The game was less than five minutes old when this break fell to the overjoyed Cadets. Carver, the starting quarterback, was promptly yanked in favor of the more experienced Bowman and the Army drive got under way.

Flint Fools Harvard.

Halfback Letzelter tested the Crimson line for a yard and Bowman plunged off his right tackle for 15 yards. Fullback Herb then faked a line smash, twisted about and drove outside of his left tackle. His feint drew the Harvard forwards over and, after, shaking off a bewildered Crimson straggler, he dashed over the Harvard goal line.

Letzelter missed his place kick try for the extra point and the Army was forced to fight off the Harvard attack, which wobbled and stalled four times inside the Cadets' 20-yard line, from that point up to the last two minutes of play.

Just before the game ended, the Cadets gained the ball on Harvard's 15-yard marker when Fields intercepted the forward pass that the desperate Wood attempted from behind his own goal line on fourth down. Harvard was pushed back 10 yards on two line thrusts, but time expired before the Cadets could add to their single touchdown.

Army Excels on Passes.

The Cadets' cutback and spinner plays gained just 31 yard more than the total advance made by Harvard ball carriers. The Army advanced the ball for a total of 187½ yards, 119 by rushing, and Harvard's total yardage was 156½ yards, 88 by rushing. Harvard, however, made eight first downs to Army's seven.

The Army's overhead game was far more effective than the Crimson's supposedly dangerous attack. Fields worked his short toss, usually to Bowman or Letzelter, successfully five times out of eight attempts, but one being intercepted. Harvard completed but one of its eight overhead tries and three of them fell into the clutches of the enemy.

Booth Stars as Yale Beats Brown

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18.—Albie Booth, mighty little man of Yale, flitted through a rugged Brown eleven today with all the fire and improbability of a sports hero of fiction, retired to the side lines, and then came back with the roars of 40,000 worshipers in his ears to stave off the desperate bid of the enemy and turn a football game into a rout.

The little fellow was all Yale had for an offense but he was all Yale needed. Starting his first game for Old Eli, withdrawn from the "climax" role that has been his part in the Yale plan of attack since he first dazzled the opposition last fall, Albie led every sustained attack, scored one touchdown, put the ball in position for another, and neatly drop-kicked a 25-yard field goal for his part in the 21-0 victory.

Cornell Trims Princeton, 12-7

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—Cornell conquered Princeton, 12 to 7, today before a crowd of 40,000 for the second year in a row, standing off a fine Tiger comeback in the last half after dominating the first half.

The Ithacans' spotty work in the kicking game was costly, but they stopped the Tiger running attack and closed the air route at the finish.

A Cornell offensive in the first period took the ball from Princeton's 43-yard line to the goal line, Viviano, sensational halfback, ripping through the Princeton line for the last 14 yards. Hunt missed the try for goal.

Cornell pushed over a second touchdown midway in the second period after a 70-yard drive. A 45-yard pass and run, Handleman to Leuder, put the ball on the Tiger's 25-yard line. Viviano made 15 yards in two plunges. Handleman scored from the one-yard line but Hunt missed goal.

Princeton, aided by the recovery of a fumbled punt on Cornell's 16-yard line scored a touchdown on an end dash by Nicholson in the third period. A sub, James, booted the extra point.

BILLIKENS IDLE THIS WEEK, FACE ROLLA OCT. 31

The St. Louis University football squad, coaches, players and many of the rooters who accompanied the team to Indianapolis Friday, witnessed the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech. game at South Bend yesterday. Had the Billikens lost to Butler, instead of winning, they would have been denied the privilege of seeing Notre Dame in action. Coach Chile Walsh warned the boys that they wolud be packed up and shipped back home immediately if they lost to Butler.

This is an off week in the Billiken schedule. Rolla is the next opponent, the game to be played on Friday night, Oct. 31.

WASHINGTON WINS FROM WESTMINSTER IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

verted both extra point tries by place kicks.

Westminster threatened to score only once. That was well in the last quarter when a long run from what looked like a pass-formation brought the ball to the Bears' seven-yard line. Here the Blue Jays tried the line twice unsuccessfully and then tried a pair of passes both of which were grounded.

Bears Not Impressive.

Washington's play as a whole was not impressive. The backfield seemed to function well enough, but the line, especially the right side, was not working smoothly. It was through this side that the wiry, hard-fighting Blue Jays poured to stop the Washington backs before they really could get going. Washington's line was far heavier than that of Westminster and should have walked through the Fultonites had the Bear formation been in top form.

In three games, the Bears have scored 55 points and have not yet been scored upon—really have not yet been threatened. Cochrane, Weingart and Miller were very helpful to Saussele and Hornsby in the backfield. The game at times was a bit rough but there were no casualties.

Play in the first quarter was fairly even and the Westminster forwards were clearly out-charging their opponents. Several times, Saussele was nailed before he could get away to a fair start. A pass, Saussele to Harvey Miller, put the ball on Westminster's 20-yard line, but the Bears were held and a try for a goal from the field by Hornsby fell short.

Westminster Weakens.

In the second period, the teams started on even terms, but most of the play toward the middle of the period and in the last few minutes was in Westminster territory. Finally, with less than two minutes to go Saussele saw an opening around the right side of the Westminster line and, gathering speed with every stride, crossed over for the first score of the game. Hornsby kicked the goal and the period ended shortly thereafter.

Beginning the third period, Westminster kicked off to Soest, who returned the ball eight yards. Washington kicked and Weingart intercepted a pass in mid-field. The Bears started a march which took them to within inches of the Westminster goal, but lacked the punch to put it over. Westminster kicked out of danger temporarily, but the Bears were not to be denied and soon started another march.

Saussele and Miller gained on end runs and Hornsby sandwiched in a couple of line plunges for first downs. Then, three yards to go, Hornsby plunged over for a second touchdown and later converted the try for point.

In the final period, there was little action and much kicking. Westminster battled gamely against their heavier opponents and prevented further scoring.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 18.—Michigan scored a 13 to 0 victory over Ohio State here this afternoon.

Tonight the Wolverines stand atop the Big Ten heap, while Ohio State has lost two conference games out of three.

Michigan waited until nearly two minutes of the first half remained before throwing its thunderbolt. Acting Capt. Wesley Fesler, Ohio's all-American end, had punted nicely to Quarterback Harry Newman of Michigan, who returned to his 46-yard line.

First Touchdown on Pass.

On the next play, Newman backed up, waited every possible second, and spotted his captain—Halfback Harrison Simrall, far down the field and over to the right. He threw the ball, Simrall faked center, Bert Nasman, who was covering him, out of position and caught it on Ohio State's 15-yard line. Quarterback Lewis Hinchman tackled him but Simrall shook himself loose and ran to Ohio State's one-yard line where Halfback Stuart Holcomb hauled him down from behind.

At this point Coach Sam Willaman sent Eugene Kile in at left guard and Carl Ehrensberger in at center, replacing Sam Selby and Nasman, right regulars. Newman called a quarterback sneak and went right over the two substitutes for Michigan's first touchdown. He place-kicked the goal with Simrall holding the ball.

The half ended shortly afterward. Michigan kicked off but took the ball after a punt by Fesler on Ohio State's 46-yard line. Simrall played back with Newman and his return was ruinous for the Buckeyes.

Hits Center for Score.

Newman called two line plays and then shot a pass to Halfback Jack Wheeler, again in Ohio State's left halfback territory, defended this time by Bill Carroll but unsuccessfully. Hinchman made the tackle but only after a 19-yard gain for the Wolverines. Hudson got two yards, Newman three, and then Hudson was sent at the Buckeye's center. He seemd surprisd at finding his own way clear and Ohio State's secondary seemed equally surprised at finding him among them. At any rate, he went 14 yards for a touchdown with two tacklers hanging by his belt the last five. Fullback Bob Horn blocked Newman's place-kick for the extra point but the damage had been irreparably done.

Ohio State scored 13 first downs to six for Michigan and gained 272 yards to 224 for the Wolverines but it didn't mean a thing. Ohio State tried 24 passes and completed only four for 93 yards. Michigan tried five and gained 85 yards.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 18.—Jarring Jim Bausch, aided by excellent interference, made two long runs today for touchdowns, and place-kicked twice for the extra points, to give Kansas a 14-to-0 victory over the Kansas Aggies in their twenty-eighth annual gridiron encounter.

The first run, a 95-yard sprint, came in the first half minute of play when Bausch returned Eldon Auker's kickoff, running through the entire Aggie team. The second, a 59-yard run from scrimmage around the Aggie right end, came in the fourth period. In between times the Jayhawkers appeared more powerful than the Aggies but the Wildcats put up a stubborn defense which time after time stopped the 200-pound Kansas backfield with little or no gain.

Only one long run was made by an Aggie, Captain Alex Nigro reeling off 39 yards in the first period on what proved a futile effort. The Aggie passes did not function as anticipated and except for one 32-yard flip from McMillin to Fiser in the third period, did not gain ground in scoring territory. On this occasion the flip put the ball nine yards from a touchdown but after Price Schwartz plunged once for four yards, the Kansas forwards threw back the Wildcats.

The Aggie plays evidenced in the deceptive attack Bo McMillan uses. Kansas worked from orthodox formations. Four times Kansas intercepted Aggie passes, of which there were 24 attempted during the game, nine being completed for less than 100 yards.

Favorites Win On West Coast

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—All the favorites came off victorious in today's big games on the Pacific Slope. Washington State College, conqueror of University of California and University of Southern California, added Gonzaga to its list of victims while Stanford, University of Southern California and Oregon also triumphed. The strong Olympic Club defeated California University, 13 to 7.

Washington State Takes Gonzaga, 24-0

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 18.—Washington State College beat Gonzaga University today, 24 to 0, in a light football workout.

State's second team dallied with Gonzaga for one scoreless period. Then the regular bone crushers entered the lists, smashed over three touchdowns and retired for the afternoon, having added the Bulldog collar to the California Bear skin and the Trojan armor now hanging up at Pullman.

25-Yard Forward Pass Wins for Oregon U.

By the Associated Press.

MULTNOMAH STADIUM, PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 18.—Plucking a 25-yard forward pass out of the heavens while heading full speed for the Washington goal line, Johnny Kitzmiller, big blonde half back of the University of Oregon, gave his webfoot grid eleven a 7-to-0 victory today over the huskies.

The ball was on Washington's 47-yard line when the pass resulting in the touchdown was thrown.

Stanford Gets a Scare From Oregon State

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD STADIUM, Oct. 18.—Oregon State College gave the Stanford football team the scare of its life before 22,000 spectators here today but the Cardinal eleven clung desperately to a one-touchdown lead gained in the first half, to emerge victorious 13 to 7.

After Oregon State had battled Stanford's second string team to a scoreless standstill through most of the first period, the Stanford regulars were inserted and scored twice in five minutes. Then they were kept in the remainder of the game to stave off Oregon State's frantic bid for victory.

WRAY'S Column

Reward of Merit.

TIGER CLINE, veteran of 300 battles, lay groveling on the Coliseum canvas, the victim of Mickey Walker's powerful lefts and rights. The end of his 12 years of hard-bitten ring experience found him a pitiable spectacle, helpless and momentarily "cuckoo."

"A guy ought to get a lot of money for being ruined like that," observed an onlooker, as Cline's seconds hauled all that was mortal of the Tiger to his corner and began mopping him back to consciousness.

Yes, Bo. It should be worth a lot; but it isn't. Strange to relate, in the ring it's the man who has the easiest path who is paid the most. The man who administers, not the man who takes punishment, is the individual rewarded. It is a game which exacts a prodigious penalty for incompetency.

Tiger Cline received $507 for his beating. Mickey Walker was paid $2538, half of the net receipts, for administering the punishment. After Tiger Cline had paid his manager 35 per cent, had paid his hotel expenses for a week in advance of the show and had settled his training bills perhaps he had a couple of hundred dollars for himself. And also, such a headache!

When picking out a life's profession, remember Tiger Cline's case. Try bricklaying by preference.

The Trail's End.

ON the grounds of a big institution near Los Angeles a stocky man garbed in sweater and pugilistic road outfit, was dog-trotting round and round the park, pausing now and then to indulge in those peculiar antics practiced by boxers in training and known as "shadow boxing." Round and round he sped, sweat pouring from his lean brown face.

An observer stepped up and greeted him, asked him how he felt.

"I feel great," was the reply. "Not an ounce of fat on me."

"What are you in training for?"

"Me? Hey, where've you been? I'm training for my title fight with Bat Nelson."

"When does that come off?"

"Why, tomorrow night, of course. I'll lick him, too," and with that he began his road work around the grounds.

"Who's that guy?" the observer asked a hanger-on. "And what kind of a dump is this?"

"That's a former lightweight champion of the world, Ad Wolgast, and this is the goofy-house where he has been for some years. He's been training for this fight for the past 10 years."

The fight was actually fought Feb. 22, 1910, and was one of the most brutal and punishing battles of history. It was won after 40 rounds of fighting by Wolgast, who today is what that and other fights helped to make him.

The paths of glory can lead to worse things than the grave.

Another Phase.

"OLIVER KIRK" was the name on the card brought back to the sporting department. As the attendant went out to extend an invitation to the card's owner to step back into the sports room the mind skipped back over a quarter of a century—26 years to be exact—when a handsome dark-eyed young athlete entered the ring at Francis Field, where the 1904 Olympic boxing contests were being held. A fine upstanding young fellow and a fast and clever amateur boxer was this youngster. He easily disposed of his opponent and during the three days of competition that followed he came through victorious in his class, the bantamweight, and bore off the Olympic medal. His name was Oliver Kirk of the Missouri Athletic Club.

"I just dropped in to say hello," a voice proclaimed and a slended young man dropped into the chair beside the desk—Ollie Kirk, 26 years after his first big stride to boxing fame.

Time had dealt rather kindly with this once dapper young man of other days, although Fortune apparently had rapped him a couple below the belt. Kirk, still refined in speech and manner, outlined what boxing had done for him.

"I made a terrible mistake and sacrificed a splendid opportunity when I turned professional," he said. "I had some good luck in the ring at the start, but in the end I lost out on the big stuff.

"Also, I lost out on at least two excellent chances in life. I was teller in the Federal Reserve Bank, at one time. Again, I was private secretary to a high official of the Pennsylvania Railroad. But I sacrificed both for boxing.

"Today I am having a hard time of it. Haven't had regular work for two years, although I can still do almost anything around an office. I have a family, too. And that's where the ring game has led me."

Kirk doesn't look his age. the ring has left few marks on him—but it has put a real dent in his career.

Such Language!

LOUD and unexpurgated language filtered out of the offices of the Coliseum Friday night about the time a showdown on the amount of money in the house became an acute demand. The attendance was not what it might have been, and some of that came under the classification known as deadhead. In fact, the legal limit of deadheading had been exceeded and the unclassified expletives referred to were the result.

It was the voice of Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker. In substance, he complained that the house was filled with paper and not money; and how in heck could anyone expect a champion of the world to eat paper?

"This city is the worst pass holdup on the circuit, and it's a shame to stick up fighters who come here to exhibit," Kearns moaned.

The complaint is not new. The promoters have been restive at the political and commission pressure put upon them for some time. The facts concerning the pass situation at last week's show follow:

Total passes issued—382.

Total attendance (including passes)—3679.

Ratio of passes to paid attendance—Approximately one pass to 8.5 paid admissions.

Legal passes allowed under Missouri Commission regulations—Two per cent of the seating capacity.

Seating capacity of the Coliseum—9500.

Legal passes allowed under regulations at Coliseum—190.

Excess passes issued Friday night—192.

Passes issued call for high-priced seats. If the 192 were cashed in at $5.50 it would have made a difference of $1056 in the gross receipts of the show.

And that's another thing for our two commissions, the city and State, to think about.

Speaking of Fouls.

SINCE the New York Boxing Commission discovered its foul-proof protector, there have been practically NO fouls in 500 New York fights.

But, here's the mystery:

In the 500 fights, only EIGHT of the boys have consented to use the protective device which insures safety!

What's the explanation? Why the device is too clumsy to use and fighters go back to the old metal or leather cup. If they are fouled, they no longer complain, but get up off the floor and keep on fighting.

That's because fighters are counted out if they don't get up, foul or no foul under the new commission regulation.

The answer to this is, as you can see, that the epidemic of fouls which began a year or more ago was not necessary and was mere advantage-taking by ring artists who were also good actors.

It bears out the assertion of many fighters that the old protective device was ample to protect a fighter from serious harm.

MASSEY'S 65-YARD RUN HELPS CLAYTON TO BEAT PRINCIPIA

Clayton High School's football team added another victory to its string by defeating Principia's "A" team, 25 to 7, at Taylor Field yesterday. Coach Davis' team scored touchdowns in the first, third and final quarters of the game, while Principia counted only in the third period.

With the exception of the third quarter Clayton outplayed Principia. One of the features of the game was an 83-yard run in the third period by Massey, Clayton halfback, who scored.

QUINCY DEFEATS CLEVELAND HIGH, 7 TO 6, ON A BLOCKED PUNT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

QUINCY Ill., Oct. 18.—A blocked Clevland punt, which rolled over the goal line and was recovered by Feld, enabled the Quincy High School eleven to defeat Cleveland, 7 to 6, here tonight. The deceding point was made by Peyton who crashed through the line for the point after the touchdown.

Mickey Ernst, Quincy halfback, blocked the punt on Cleveland's 23-yard line while Feld, left end, fell on the ball back of the goal line for the touchdown.

Neither team scored in the opening period, although Quincy pierced the Cleveland defense for five first downs, three of which came immediately after the kick off. Cleveland stopped the Quincy threat on their own 20-yard line. Cleveland got the first big break of the game near the end of the opening period when Schneidman's punt was blocked, rolling out of bounds on Quincy's 31-yard line. Two plays gave the St. Louisans a first down on the 21-yard mark as the period ended.

Vogt and Vonderbruege reeled off the necessary yardage to bring the ball to the seven-yard mark early in the second period and after being held for three downs without a gain, Vogt slipped through tackle for a touchdown. The try for the extra point was ruled void on account of an ineligible receiver.

At the resumption of play Quincy again began to tear through the St. Louis line and Cleveland drew two penalties, the first for holding the second for off-side, placing the ball in mid-field. Peyton gained nine yards on a criss-cross play and then hit the line to make it another first down for Quincy. A bad pass from center cost the Quincy team six yards and Cleveland took a punt on its own 25-yard line. The St. Louis team punted out of danger and Affree, Quincy safety man, touched the ball, but allowed it to get away from him. Cleveland recovering on the Quincy 48-yard mark as the period ended.

EAST ST. LOUIS USES PASSING ATTACK TO DEFEAT KAHOKS

East St. Louis High continued its drive for the football title in the Southwestern Illinois Conference yesterday afternoon when Coach Jack Nolan's lads won their second straight game at Collinsville, 18-6. The defeat was the second straight for Collinsville and another loss will eliminate the Kahoks from title competition.

The East Siders had things their own way and after the first period, the Flyers kept the ball in Collinsville territory with the exception of the last quarter when Coach Nolan sent his second team in to relieve the scoring-tired first eleven.

Punting opened the game and the ball hovered in mid-field with the East Siders threatening the goal once but they were held on the 20-yard line. The Flyers then scored once in each of the following periods with the passing combination of Kavalier to Warfield sending the ball down into scoring position.

SUMNER WINS, 20-6, OVER WEBSTER NEGRO HIGH

The Sumner High School football team defeated the Webster Negro High School, 20 to 6, yesterday at Tandy Park. Sumner's three scores were all the results of long runs.

All the scoring was done in the first half, Sumner counting twice in the first quarter on a 60-yard run by Robinson and a 35-yard dash by Duckett. Webster scored in the second quarter when Brown carried the ball over from the six-yard line. Harris broke through for a 40-yard run to count Sumner's third touchdown in the second period. Duckett and Akin each scored a point after touchdown.

By Dent McSkimming.

The professional soccer season is only one week old but it is already apparent that the fight for the league championship rests between two clubs, the Tablers and the Hellrungs, and these two meet this afternoon. Later, the Ben Millers and Phil Kavanaugh's team, called the Coca-Colas, may possibly become factors in the race, but by the time they get going, either the Tablers or the Hellrungs probably will have a fair-sized lead. Which of the two is to get to the top first will be determined today.

In last Sunday's opening game, some players showed to particular advantage, even though they were on a losing side, and the managers have made some lineup changes as a result. One such change brings Gene McAuliffe into the picture as the outside left for the Tablers and sends Buddy Brengle to outside right. This means that Al McHenry will not start the game, The oldest player in the league in point of service, McHenry, has not slipped backward very much but McAuliffe seems to have so much talent that Johnny Marre is forced to find room for him. Brengle, in adapting himself to the right wing position after having played regularly at outside left, has an opportunity to prove himself one of the truly versatile players in the league.

Billy Foley will give a new fullback, Gurule, a West Coast player, an opportunity to win a job beside Frank Vaughan. This means that young Justin Keenoy, a good fullback prospect, must try to play right halfback.

Kavanagh, too, will shift his players. Johnny Worden has contracted a bad cold and may not start, in which case Bochnicek will go over to inside right. Sullivan will start at outside right in place of Grenon, and Lee Hennessy will be the outside left. Barnes, who played the left-wing position last Sunday, has been pulled to the inside position.

Joe Hand came out of last week's game with a badly bruised hip and probably will not start in his customary left fullback berth, giving young Gamewell a chance.

Muny Needs Two Clubs.

Municipal Soccer League managers will meet at Sherman Park Community Center tomorrow evening to elect officers, adopt by-laws and form their groups for the opening of the season, next Sunday.

There is still room for one senior team and one junior team in the league.

Practice Games Today.

The Cook A. C. and the Universal teams of the Municipal League will play a practice game at Sherman Park this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

Andy Fredrick's Bly-Moss team will meet the Longos at 10 a. m. on Grounds 4 at Fairground, and at the same hour the Andy's club will oppose the D. A. Club on Grounds 3.

TENNESSEE DOG WINS PHEASANT TRIALS

DANSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Schoolfield, Southern-bred white and lemon colored pointer, owned by Gaines and Rufkin of Knoxville, Tenn., handled by Luther Smith of Jefferson City, Tenn., won first in the national pheasant dog championship field trials and is therefore the first dog, setter or pointer, ever crowned a national champion on pheasants.

The stake brought out a field of 17 starters, the heats were one hour in length and, while all the competition cannot be termed brilliant, there is at least no question but this young pointer Schoolfield, still less than 3 years old, easily headed the lot.

The dog is not what can be termed a pheasant-trained one, his education being on quail in the South and prairie chicken in the Northwest, but the young Knoxville pointer took to his new class of game well and his performance was easily the class of the stake, in spite of the fact that he competed against the veteran setters and pointers of the East.

plays carried by Marty Brill, Joe Savoldi, Frank Carideo and Marchy Schwartz sent the Scots back on their heels on their own 13-yard line and then, in a surprise play, Schwartz tossed a short pass over the line of scrimmage to Ed Kosky, who caught it as he fell over the goal line. Carideo promptly added the first of his three extra points by a placement kick.

Coming right back, after the Scots failed to dent the Notre Dame forward wall, the Ramblers opened another march that ultimately combined with one of the "breaks" of the game to net them their second score. On the 25-yard line Schwartz passed to Conley again first play, Melvin Jones, substitute Scot halfback, intercepted the ball on his own five-yard line, and the drive looked in vain. But on the first play, Melvin Jones, substiute Scot center, threw the pass wild to Armentrout and the alert Tom Kassis pounced on it, giving Notre Dame the ball on Tech's two-yard line. Schwartz plowed through the center of the line on the first play for a touchdown and Carideo added the extra point, increasing Notre Dame's lead to 14 to 0.

For the rest of the period, Notre Dame played a waiting game with Carideo keeping the ball in Tech territory with his long, well-placed boots.

The Skibos, fighting the inevitable, came back into the ball game right at the start of the third period, however. Fowie Eyth received Carideo's kick-off five yards back of his own goal line and raced it back to his own 12-yard stripe. Eyth and Ted Rosenzweig lugged the ball to the 18-yard line and then Eyth reeled off the classic dash of the game—a 72-yard sprint for Tech's only score. The dash caught the Ramblers so unawares that once 10 yards beyond the scrimmage line, Eyth had a clear field ahead of him and ended his run by jogging across the Notre Dame goal. Sample's kick for extra point hit the goal posts.

Three minutes later, again aroused, Notre Dame ripped the Scot line to shreds, advancing the ball by straight line smashes and lateral passes to its own 44-yard line. Then Schwartz stepped back and heaved a 41-yard pass to Conley, who evaded two tacklers and raced 15 yards for the score. Carideo's place kick split the uprights perfectly.

After that Rockne gave his regulars their first rest of the game and the Scots tried vainly to score via the aerial route.

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 18.—Richard Grefe, lanky sophomore sub quarterback, sped across State Field today to turn what had appeared a typical Nebraska powerhouse onslaught into near victory for Iowa State. The final score—Nebraska 14, Iowa State 12, tells only part of the story.

The Cornhuskers played Iowa State off its feet in the first half. Scarlet thatched Young and Sophomore Mathis led the way to two touchdowns, one the direct result of an Iowa State fumble.

Frahm, veteran halfback, converted both points after touchdown and Nebraska seemed well on its way to victory. It was then that Coach Noel Workman called for Grefe. He squirmed through small holes for yardage when it counted, and fired long passes into the arms of mates.

In the third period, Iowa State got the ball on its own 32-yard line. A pass and several line plays advanced the ball to Nebraska's 40-yard line and then Grefe opened up with a 36-yard heave to Bowen. Nebraska interfered with a pass after two line plays and the Cyclones were given a first down on the three-yard line, from where Teglund plunged over. Bowen tried to pass for the extra point, but it was grounded.

Iowa State's final score came in the fourth, partly as a result of a "break." An Iowa State punt was interfered with and the ball was awarded to the Cyclones on their 43-yard line. Grefe cut off tackle for 13 yards, then tossed a long pass to Moen for the touchdown.

In their final bid, the Cyclones were penalized twice for incomplete passes before Grefe connected with Swoboda for 55 yards and a first down on the Cornhuskers' 20-yard line. Line plays failed and Long of Nebraska took Grefe's final toss on the three-yard line to end the threat.

"Drunkenness Is a Disease and I Can Cure It"
—Leslie E. Keeley, M. D., LL. D.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

Conclave forced the pace to the top of the home stretch where she went to the front with a rush, shook off The Heathen in the last furlong and was going away at the end. Latter cut across to inside going to the first turn and drew away into a command lead entering the back stretch, set a fast pace and hung on well until the last sixteenth. Ned O crowded back at the first turn, where Questionnaire went to his knees, a couple of times, throwing Workman out of the saddle and upon his neck. Mr. Sponge, sharply cut off at first turn. Coltiletti made his run too soon with Sun Beau and he hung in the last quarter. Her Grace stumbled and lost her rider after passing the half mile pole.

$2 mutuels paid: Conclave, win $15.80, place $7.70, show $5.40; The Heathen, place $19.80, show $11.90; Ned O, show $10.20.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—Sun Beau, winner of the classic Hawthorne gold cup, came back to Maryland today the favorite to win the $10,000 Laurel stakes, but when the dust had cleared, W. R. Coe's Conclave was leading the field of classy milers home, while Sun Beau was not to be found among the leaders.

The victory of Conclave came almost as much surprise as did the defeat of Sun Beau, which was the well-backed favorite. As the result of her neglect in the mutuels, the Coe colt, which was coupled with Maya, paid $15.80 for a $2 mutuel. Back in the also rans along with Sun Beau, were Questionnaire, the 3-year-old that gave Gallant Fox his greatest race of the year; Hot Toddy, Mr. Sponge and Her Grace, one of the most consistent 3-year-old fillies of the year.

Victory was not easy for Conclave, however, as she was forced to step the mile in 1:38 2-5 to defeat C. H. Pierce's The Heather, another outsider, which paid off at nearly 8 to 1 to place. Third went to G. W. Foreman's Baltimore owned Ned O., which paid $10.20 to show.

Sun Beau's failure to land in the money may have been caused by a bit of roughing in which Questionnaire and Ned O. also shared. Her Grace even lost her rider, A. Adams, who escaped uninjured.

Jefferson City Wins 12 to 0, From Kirkwood

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 18.—Coach Eph Markey's Jefferson City High School Jays displayed a superior all-around brand of football here today to defeat Coach Ernie S. Lyon's Kirkwood High School eleven 12 to 0. It was the first victory of the season for Jeffreson City, also the first time they had scored in four games.

The Jefferson City team functioning smoothly, scored in the second and fourth periods. Schmidt, Jefferson City fullback, carried the ball across for the first touchdown in the second period, after he and his teammates had marched down the field to the one-yard line from their own 20-yard line with a series of line plunges and end runs. A sensational 65-yard run by De La Barre, right halfback, in the final quarter, accounted for the second Jefferson City touchdown. Attempts for extra points at placement were unsuccessful.

Kirkwood had the ball within several yards of the goal on two differtn occasions, but fumbled, and on one occasion a five-yard penalty, for offside kept Kirkwood from scoring. Three "breaks" went against Lyon's team. This, combined with costly fumbles and the more consistent play of the Jays, accounted for Kirkwood's defeat.

Schmidt, De La Barre and Countryman, backfield players, starred for Jefferson City. Capt. Brink starred for Kirkwood.

Paulino Knocks Out French Foe

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Paulino Uzcudun, of Spain, technically knocked out Maurice Griselle, French heavyweight, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round bout here tonight. Francois Descamps, Griselle's manager, stopped the fight by throwing a sponge in the ring.

Paolino's American experience evidently had made a new fighter of him since his last appearance here. He battered Descamps' battler with tremendous swings to the body which burst a blood vessel in Griselle's chest.

The French fighter spurted blood from his mouth in such volume that it appeared to cover the ring floor.

Griselle won only the second round but put up one of the gamest fights seen in Paris in many years.

He's Better Off.

If William Shakspeare were alive today he would be in Hollywood writing for the talking screen.—James Rennie.

IF Shakspeare lived in Hollywood,
No doubt the path of folly would
Entice him to its course.
He'd do as Hollywoodmen do,
And his beloved Anne would sue
Her Willie for divorce.

And Bill would write scenarios
With Romeos and Dromios,
As only he could write 'em.
Another wife, of course, he'd take,
Who in her turn would get the shake,
And so ad infinitum.

And so we're glad that William died,
And left a name to be the pride
Of future generations.
We thank whatever gods may be,
That Shakespeare never lived to see
His own "screen" presentations.

LOUGHRAN AND SCHAAF AGREE TO BOX HERE NOV. 21

Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion, and Ernie Schaaf, young Boston heavyweight, have agreed to meet in a 10-round fight at The Arena, Nov. 21, according to announcement last night by Joe Broderick, who is promoting the fight.

Loughran and Schaaf have met three times, with Loughran winning the first two bouts and Schaaf the third, held in Philadelphia, Loughran's home town, last July.

Schaaf broke his hand about a month ago in a bout with Babe Hunt and since that time has been giving the hand a rest, according to word received from his manager by Broderick. He started exercising the hand several days ago but will not engage in any fight until his St. Louis appearance, Broderick said.

It is planned by Broderick to have two other 10-round bouts on the card, a six-rounder and an opener of four rounds. Broderick will attempt to match Eddie Shea of Chicago and Andy Martin of Boston in the semi-windup, with Johnny Roberts meeting Al Stillman in the other 10-round event.

Kidder Eleven Wins.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Oct. 18.—Kidder College defeated the Kemper Reserves here yesterday, 25 to 6. The feature of the game was the long runs of Vandyne, Kidder halfback. Frequent fumbles by both teams marred the play.

Country Day Wins Over Latin School Of Chicago, 20-0

In its home-coming game for which nearly a thousand turned out, the Country Day School football eleven ran over the Chicago Latin School, 20—0, in the first game of the Tri-City League yesterday afternoon on the Country Day field.

The visitors were heavily outweighed and despite the fact that Country Day had a sick fullback, B. Morgan, in its lineup, it plowed through its opponents' line for three easy touchdowns. Coach Hughes of Country Day sent in ten second string men at the half, leaving Skinner, quarter to run the plays.

Country Day scored all its points in the first period. Taking a punt in midfield, it went to the 30-yard line, from where Putney went around right end for a touchdown. His place kick was good. A few minutes after Swift of Codasco took the ball from his own 40-yard mark to the other 40-yard line. Putney again was given the ball and went off tackle to score.

For the third score Country Day took the ball on downs on the visitors' 30-yard mark. Skinner went through center to the 20-yard line, and after line plays advanced the ball five yards through center to the five-yard mark. Morgan was given the ball and although he fumbled it, he managed to cross the goal. Putney made his second good place-kick.

$3 TOP, INSTEAD OF $5, DECIDED ON BY MALLOY FOR NEXT SHOW

By Damon Kerby.

Ticket prices of $1, $2 and $3, plus tax, will be put into effect by Promoter Mique Malloy at his future boxing cards here at the Coliseum, in an effort to bring boxing within the financial reach of a greater number of people, he announced last night. The top price at the Walker-Cline card Friday night was $5.50.

The new prices will go into effect at the next show to be promoted by Malloy within the next three weeks.

Malloy, a Chicagoan, said that despite the slim crowd which attended the Walker-Cline card, he believed he could do as well in fight promotion in St. Louis as in any other city. He attributed the disappointingly-small crowd to general business conditions, rather than to a lack of interest in boxing. Therefore the lowering of the ticket prices.

Assails Ringside Smoking.

"I have only two complaints to register about the card,' 'sail Malloy. "Those complaints concern smoking in the Coliseum and the large pass list. Both are harmful to boxing.

"Concerning smoking, I noticed at Friday night's show that most of the smoking was done by spectators around ringside who were in free seats, other than the press row. It 'burned me up' when I looked around and saw fellows whom I knew didn't pay a cent to see the show continue to smoke even after the request had been made to stop smoking.

"If smoking would harm only those who do it, I wouldn't care, but it affects the performers in the ring. They can't do their best when their lungs are filled with smoke. It's unjust even to ask them to fight in such a smoke fog.

Obscures View From Gallery.

"Also, smoking at ringside is unfair to the gallery boys, whose view is cut off by the smoke haze. Every one of those boys up there put up a dollar to see the show; no free tickets up there. Yet their view is practically cut off by the smoke from the free seat-holders.

"Passes?" Malloy asked. "Now, that IS a proposition. Every one that I talk with seems to think that a big pass list is an evil, yet nothing seems to be done about it. Perhaps Commissioner Taylor will work out a satisfactory plan for future shows.

"A large pass list pulls down the caliber of boxing shows, especially when you demand that boxers work on a percentage basis. Good boxers can't be brought in on a percentage basis if they know that many of the spectators enter the front door via the free ticket method."

BOWLING NOTES

Russell Harstick, rolling in the South Side Kiwanis League, missed a perfect game by two pins on the Cinderella alleys Thursday night when he left the 5 and 8 pins standing on the final ball. Harstick, captain of the Cubs, totaled 679. He will receive a bronze medal from the American Bowling Congress for his feat as the Kiwanis League is a sanctioned league.

The Hogan Trucks captured a special three-game match from the Wassmers on the Beresford alleys, Thursday night, toppling the pins for a 2901 total while the Wassmers were getting a scratch sum of 2819. Martin Balzan had his hook working and he compiled 666 to lead the winners. He had games of 234, 176 and 256. His teammate, F. Barry was also in the spotlight, getting a series of 642. M. Herzog, anchoring for the Wassmers, shot 603.

The Held and Melene Recreation teams will renew their team and doubles matches this afternoon on the Melen alleys. The Helds won the first three games with Horneker and Mataya gaining a doubles decision over the Heibel brothers, George and John. The match is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Wilson and F. Obst won the first mixed doubles contest of the season on the Arway alleys, rolling 1238. Mr. and Mrs. E. Hettinger placed second with 1194 and Mrs. L. Wilson and Ed Deters third with 1177. The next mixed doubles contest will be held Oct. 26.

At the end of last Thursday's bowling, five teams were tied for first place in the Cotton Belt League. The Freight Accounts, Rates Disbursements, Purchasings and Lone Stars, have scored 14 victories each. In last week's round of play, the Engineers won two from the Purchasings, the Disbursements took two from the Freight Accounts, the Rates won two from the Traffics and the Lone Stars won two from the Publicity Five.

The league leading Savings team was whitewashed by the Lindells in the Outlying Banks league Friday night. The losers gave the Lindells a handicap of 73 pins per game which enabled the Lindells to win the three games. Ahrens, 548, and Bakula 560 were high. In the other matches the West St. Louis Trust won two from the Northwesterns, the Cass Banks took two from the Eastons and the Natural Bridges won two from the Lowells.

The Silver Seal Five was the only team to win three games in the Mound City League Thursday, taking the contests from the Oak Hills. The Hauptmans took the odd one from the Tydols, thereby moving into fourth place. Illig of the Hauptman's rolled 256 for the seasons' high single, while A. J. Antoine of the Tydols rolled 611.

The Jule Scheske won two from the Excelo's, the Golden Eagle's won two from the Beckmans, the Tormentors took the odd game from the Dierls and the Connelly Specials took the odd game from the Gra-Hawks; in the other matches.

WILLEN TO MEET JOEY PARKS IN AMATEUR BOUT

Fred Willen, a South Side featherweight, who has lost only one decision in a score of bouts during the past 18 months, will be pitted against Joey Parks, Elks' Club star, and Western A. A. U. senior champion of his division, in an interclub bout announced last night by Matchmaker Willie Miller as one of the special events on an amateur ring program to be held Thursday night, Oct. 30, at the South Broadway A. C.

In his last 10 fights Willen defeated Harold Downs, Randall Melloh, Paul French, Ellis Mason, Bill Trout, Eddie Vessels and Harry Greb. He defeated Downs twice and Trout three times. The only setback on the South Sider's record was chalked up early last season in the first bout of his career.

Parks, in his last two matches, disposed of Mike Logaglio and George West, teammates of Willen on the South Broadway squad. Logaglio was runner-up to Edgar Terry in the last Mississippi Valley A. A. U. championships, while West is a former Western A. A. U. titleholder.

Les Schulte, National A. A. U. junior heavyweight champion; Johnny Miles, light-heavyweight champion of the Mississippi Valley association; Cliff Doetzel, Valley bantam champion, and Joe "Peanuts" Borich, bantam king of the Western A. A. U., are in line for other specials on the South Broadway program.

The preliminary events are open to registered amateur boxers of every weight division. Prospective contestants will be allowed free use of the South Broadway gymnasium for training workouts.

DUSEK SIGNS FOR WRESTLING BOUT AT COLISEUM, OCT. 29

Having disposed of such wrestlers as Jim Clinstock and Milo Steinborn in his last two engagements on the Coliseum mat, Rudy Dusek, Memphis and Little Rock grappler, must eliminate at least one more wrestler in order to qualify for a match with Jimmy Londos, Promoter Tom Packs has decided.

Announcement was made last night by Packs that he has signed Dusek for the main event of a Coliseum wrestling show to be held on Wednesday night, Oct. 29, and that Rudy has agreed to take on any one of a group of six matmen from which Packs intends to select his opponent. Packs' list of candidates for the bout includes Roy Steele, Dick Shikat, Hans Steinke, Paul Jones, Kola Kwariani and Ghafoor Khan.

Londos has tentatively agreed to meet the winner of the coming Coliseum match in a one-fall finish tussle on or about Nov. 10, according to Packs.

SEVEN EVENTS ON AUTOMOBILE RACING PROGRAM AT CREVE COEUR

Seven automobile races are on this afternoon's program at the speedway at Upper Crève Coeur Lake Park, the second of the fall series being held by Don C. Onley, Omaha promoter. Time trials got under way yesterday and will continue this morning. The first race will start at 2 o'clock. It is the management's plan to have the last event finished by 5 o'clock.

As a result of the rain of the past week, application of oil and the work of road machinery, the half-mile oval was pronounced by the drivers yesterday as being in the best shape for high speed since its reconstruction early this year. The surface is solid and firm.

Six Autos in First Race.

An elimination heat of eight laps for the six cars making the best records in the time trials is the first scheduled sprint. It will be followed by three other dashes of the same length, cars being grouped according to their qualification times.

A consolation race at five miles, open to all non-money-winners, will follow the eliminations. In a special match event over four miles the four fastest cars at the track will compete. The afternoon's headliner will be a 20-lap sweepstakes, open to the first finishers in the four eliminations and the two machines which make the next best time over a preliminary lap.

Two Stunts on Program.

Despite the fact that last Sunday's program required no added thrillers, in view of the eight smashups and mishaps that several times came near being catastrophes, two stunts are scheduled. Bert Thomas, for 13 years a dirt track driver, parachute jumper and professional daredevil, will engineer the head-on collision of two automobiles traveling at high speed. Jack Early, Hollywood stunt man, will drive his motor cycle through a wooden structure ablaze with gasoline.

The track is about 12 miles west of the city limits. The route for automobile traffic is out Olive Street road to Little Creve Coeur Lake road, and north a mile and a half to the park.

Drivers and their cars include:

Bryan Saulpaugh, Indianapolis, No. 100; Johnny Boyd, Tulsa, No. 26; Art Withrow, St. Louis, No. 101; Red Campbell, Corona, Cal., No. 7; Joseph M. Cagany, St. Louis, No. 10; Wilbur Dickie, St. Louis, No. 3; Ray Meyers, Indianapolis, No. M-1; Ralph "Red" Marley, Indianapolis, No. A-4; Tony Segro, Springfield, Ill., No. 700; Lew Renolds, St. Joseph, Mo., No. X-3; Maynard Clark, Milan, Ill., No. 200; Howard "Speed" Adams, Cedar Rapids, Ia., No. 300; L. NATIONAL CUP SERIES DRAWS 115 CLUBS; 4 FROM ST. LOUIS

The specter of hard times apparently has not frightened soccer promoters, if one may draw a conclusion from the list of entries in the National Challenge Cup competition, as announced by the committee. Whereas a year ago 118 teams filed entries, there are this year 115. The eastern division is represented by 57 teams and the western by 58. It is in the west that the only loss is recorded for last year there were 61 teams competing from this section.

St. Louis is again represented by the four teams of the St. Louis Soccer League. The national committee, through T. W. Cahill, made an effort to bring some of the stronger teams of the Municipal League into the competition this season but the necessity of interrupting the regular schedule of the public parks league proved a serious objection. There is, however, a possibility that next year four or more teams may be entered as a preparatory step to bringing out Olympic squad material.

All teams of the Eastern League, nine in number, have been granted exemption from the preliminary rounds and in the West there are 14 exempted clubs, including the four St. Louis professional clubs. Chicago leads all cities with eight exempted teams.

Preliminary round games are to be played on or before Sunday, Oct. 26. In the Missouri district only two clubs are involved and both are Southern Illinois teams. They are the Gillespie Merchants and the Royalton Stars.

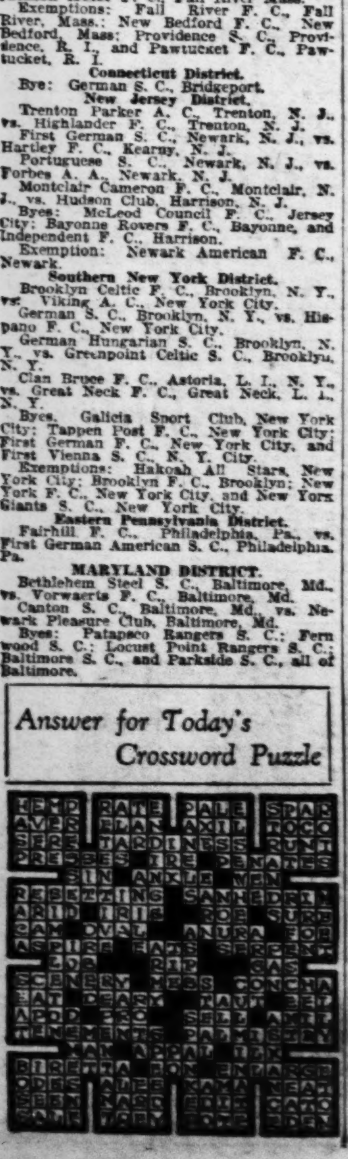
Answer for Today's Crossword Puzzle



A master Stroke! New "COLD-TREATMENT" seals flavor and freshness in cigars

FELLOW cigar smokers, the thrill that used to come once in a lifetime, you can now have every day. Probably every one of you has smoked, at least once, an absolutely fresh, new-made cigar. And no other smoke has ever quite hit the spot like that one.

It lives in your memory the way the taste of a fresh peach would linger with a man who had always eaten dried ones.

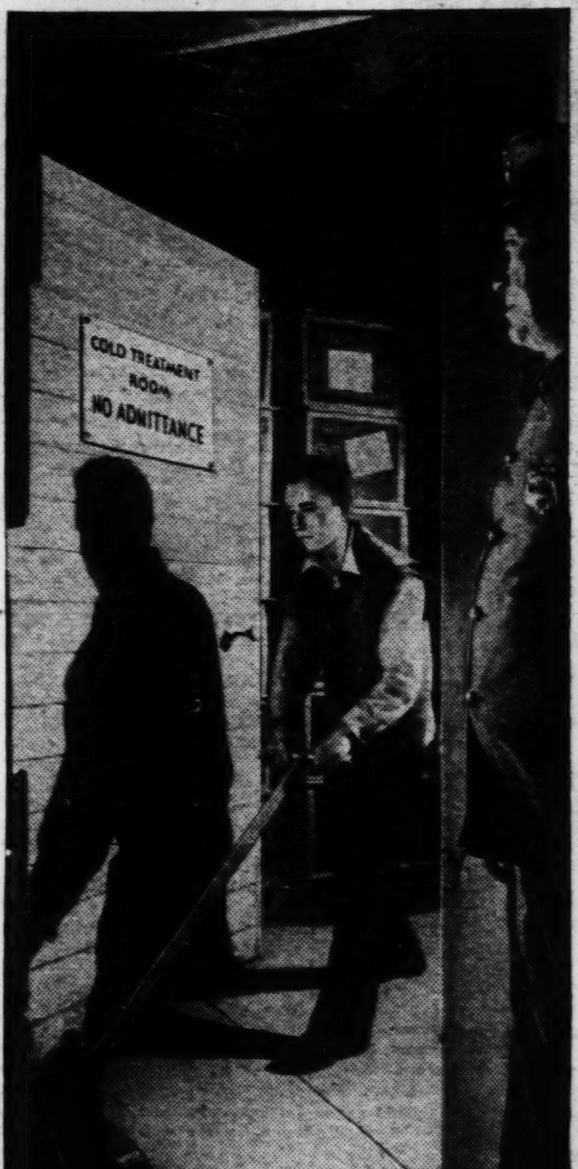
How to preserve that "Peak of Perfection" flavor and aroma in a cigar has been a problem that cigar manufacturers have wrestled with since the days when smokers used to buy cigars right at the factory.

And now Dutch Masters' "Cold-Treatment" does it! This pioneering new process takes each Dutch Masters cigar just as it comes from the factory . . . just at the moment when its fine tobaccos are at their richest, most fragrant perfection. . .

And then "seals" that "new-made" freshness within the cigar—to stay there until your match releases it in long, fragrant puffs.

No matter when you buy a "Cold-Treated" Dutch Masters—days, weeks, or months after it is made—you'll find that it carries you back to that greatest smoke-thrill of your life—the cigar you smoked when it still held all its new-made flavor and aroma.

Check up on this new "Cold-Treatment." Stop at the next cigar counter, buy a Dutch Masters, and enjoy the new delight of a cigar that will be as fresh the moment you light it as it is the moment it's made!



Behind this massive door is the "Cold-Treatment" room where Dutch Masters Cigars are having their new-made freshness and flavor sealed in by this amazing new process.

MANUEL A. SUAREZ, Ex-Senator of Cuba, and President of the Tobacco Dealers and Growers Association of the Island of Cuba, says . . .

"I wish to congratulate the makers of DUTCH MASTERS Cigars on their new 'Cold-Treatment.' This great achievement accomplishes for the first time, something that all cigar manufacturers have sought for years—that is, the preservation of 'peak' freshness and flavor in a cigar until it reaches the smoker. 'Cold-Treatment' assures cigar smokers of enjoying the true mellowness of the Havana tobacco."

Dutch Masters is an agreeable companion. It is a mild cigar—you can enjoy its "Peak of Freshness" flavor as often as you wish each day.

Miss Louise Goddard Shares Honors With Prophet Queen —Functions for Miss Betty Rathmann and Miss Irene Williams.

DESPITE the age-old tradition that the Veiled Prophet ball annually opens the formal social season, this week, a fortnight after the historic event, finds the debutantes attending their first large parties. Fittingly enough, Miss Jane Perry Francis, the Veiled Prophet queen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Talton T. On Nov. 12 Mrs. Harvey McKay will be hostess at the first breakfast of the season at her home in Wydown terrace for Miss Rathmann.

Blaksley Collins, 50 Portland place, will be hostess, Miss Francis, Miss Adeline Ely Smith, Miss Margaret Vieths and Miss Christine Fordyce, debutantes of the season, will share honors.

Miss Smith, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith, 5321 Waterman avenue, and one of the four special maids of honor, will also be the guest of honor at two dinners at the Saturday night dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, in December. Brinckwirth will give at their home in Carswold, for her sister, Miss Margaret Ellen Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Wagner, 603 Moorlands drive. Fashions of 1830 Worn At Haase-Rountree Nuptials

AN October wedding characterized by fashions approved in the romantic age of 1830, was that of Miss Virginia Rountree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rountree, 6643 Kingsbury boulevard, and Edward Theodore Haase, 3523 Longfellow boulevard, which took place last night at the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves. The Rev. Dr. Wofford C. Timmons of the First Congregational Church of St. Louis, a friend of the bride's family officiated.

The bridal party passed through a candlelit aisle, marked by tall cathedral tapers, and stood before a background of palms and woodwardia fern interspersed with yellow chrysanthemums at the altar. Each bridesmaid, her empire gown of acquamarine chiffon cut to floor length, was followed by a flower girl, whose costume was an exact copy of that of the young woman preceding her. The frocks were designed with an off the shoulder bodice, and the skirts edged with deep flounces of matching lace. In lieu of hats they wore close fitting caps of lace and tulle and carried old-fashioned bouquets of yellow and bronze button chrysanthemums. The maids were Miss Marion Ervin, Webster Groves; Miss Ruth Napier, Chicago, and Miss Aloha Graham, Kansas City.

Mrs. James Hart Price Jr., Tyler, Tex., her sister's matron of honor, wore golden yellow chiffon, made like those of the bridesmaids. The flower girls were Dianne Rountree and Clair Price, nieces of the bride, and Doris and Margaret Calhoun, nieces of the bridegroom. They carried gilt baskets of flowers.

The bride wore an empire gown of deep ivory satin, with a train built into the full folds of the skirt and depending from the high waist line. There were tiny pearl-embroidered cap sleeves, and she wore lace mitts, lent her by Miss Napier, whose grandmother wore them. Her bridal veil was of old family lace, and she carried a round bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Walter Haase, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Edward Blank, Frederick Hageman and Arthur Leonhardt, groomsmen. Mrs. Mary Blackwell Stevenson played the wedding music.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Kansas Cityans to Ride at Bridlespur

THE Mission Valley Hunt Club of Kansas City will be represented in the second annual Bridlespur Hunt Club point-to-point steeplechase race meeting which will take place Saturday, Nov. 1, on the club's spacious grounds in Huntleigh Village.

They, with guests from other cities, also will attend the many breakfasts, teas and dinners that will be given at the club and private homes in Huntleigh Village during the week of the steeplechase.

The members of the Executive Committee, of which Louis A. Hager Jr., is chairman, have agreed that a nationally known horseman will be selected as judge of the races. Six events will compose the program.

Work already has been started on the grandstand from which the entire course can be seen. Twenty boxes, which will be used by members of the club and their guests, are being constructed. In addition a large space of ground has been laid out for those who wish to witness the races from their automobiles.

BOOK CIRCULATION INCREASES

Circulation of the St. Louis Public Library last month totaled 286,174 books, an increase of 30,362 volumes over the corresponding month last year, according to announcement by Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian. This is a 50 per cent gain over the September circulation five years ago.

The Carpenter branch, at Grand boulevard and Utah place, issued 22,598 books during the month, the largest number distributed by a branch. New holders of cards totaled 4450 last month. The library had 166,791 cards in force Oct. 1, women holding 65,149 of them.

"Marie, How Do You Keep Your Skin so Lovely?"

"THAT'S easy. I just use Resinol Soap as my regular toilet soap every day, and if I have a pimple or any suggestion of a rash or roughness, I put on a little Resinol Ointment and it clears it right up."

Many women whose complexions you admire are using just this treatment. They find that Resinol Soap not only helps to overcome pimples, blackheads, oiliness, etc., but its daily use tends to prevent those conditions. Its clean tonic odor is delightful and its action is so gentle it is agreeable to the most sensitive skins.

They use Resinol Ointment too because it so quickly improves those minor skin irritations which everyone has sometimes, and they find it a soothing dressing for burns, sore corns, chafing, blisters, etc.

2 WAYS at once!

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids the constant "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

More mothers each year . . check Colds

2 WAYS at once!

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids the constant "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

Big Stations Reveal Loss Of Millions

But WMAQ Is Beginning to Make Money—WGN Is Losing Only $15,000 a Month—WENR Runs Behind $300,000 a Year—WBBM Clears $142,000 in 12 Months.

By MARTIN CODEL.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Does broadcasting pay? Consider these figures, submitted to the Federal Radio Commission by the leading Chicago broadcasters during the commission's hearings on high power. These stations are among the 25 or more seeking authority to build new transmitters of 50,000 watts power, which would entail additional capital expenditure of $250,000 each.

WGN: From 1924 to Aug. 31, 1930, the total cost of operating this station, owned by the Chicago Tribune, was given as $2,078,186, of which $187,275 was depreciation. Accepting advertising accounts in the last two years only, its total revenue has amounted to $652,333. Its net operating loss, therefore, has been $1,425,853. In the first eight months of 1930, operating expenses were $354,895 and revenues $244,559, entailing a net operating loss of $110,336. Its manager, Henry Sellinger, estimates that losses this year will be about $164,000.

WMAQ: Since 1922, this station has entailed an investment of $1,750,244. Its revenues have amounted to $722,093. Although the Chicago Daily News has more than $1,000,000 sunk in the station, its income has reached a point where it is exceeding its operating costs. William S. Hedges, president of the station, estimates its present income as $43,000 a month and its operating costs about $40,000 a month.

WENR: Established in 1927, the capital investment in this station has exceeded $1,000,000 and the operating loss has been about $750,000. Owned by combined public utility interests, it's losses in the first eight months of 1930 averaged about $20,000 per month. It is the only Chicago station which uses 50,000 watts power.

WLS: Established in 1924, this station represents expenditures during its first four years of operation of $959,650. It began accepting sponsored broadcasts only two years ago, so that in the last two years its expenses have totaled $675,836. The net loss in operations during these two years has been only $3732, according to Edgar Bill, its manager. Owned by the farm periodical, Prairie Farmer, it has a permit to build 50,000 watts.

WBBM: This station's capital stock, two-thirds of which is now owned by the Columbia Broadcasting System, is $150,000. Its net assets were given by its manager, Ralph Atlass, as $329,731. During the fiscal year ending July 31, 1930, it earned a net profit of $142,892, so was the only Chicago station to show a profit and one of the few major stations in the country to reveal real profits. This, despite the fact that it operates only four-sevenths time on its cleared channel.

Then there is WTMJ of the Milwaukee Journal, which since 1927 has represented a cash investment of $331,496, and up to Aug. 30, 1930, has shown a net operating loss of $162,281, exclusive of executive supervision, studio rent, general building overhead, which would amount to about $25,000 a year but which are not charged to radio operation because the newspaper conducts the station as part of its general promotion activities.

Why, then, are these broadcasters and so many others eager to spend still more on equipment and operation?

The answer is that they have great faith in the future of broadcasting both as a self-sustaining enterprise and as an invaluable adjunct to their newspaper or other activities. It will be noted that losses suffered during the early years of operation have decreased lately in most cases. In fact, there is now no good reason why any full-time station should suffer large losses if properly managed. Moreover, for some of the owners a radio station represents certain intangible assets and good-will revenues that cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Radio City In Chicago Now a Fact

Largest Studio in World One of Six in Two-Story Pent House Erected by NBC on Roof of Mart.

The National Broadcasting Co.'s new "radio city" in a large pent house on top of the world's largest building, the Merchandise Mart, in Chicago, will be opened to the public this week during the Chicago radio show.

The new mid-west "radio city" occupies two floors, the nineteenth and twentieth, with a total area of more than 66,000 square feet. In it are housed six of the finest and most scientifically constructed broadcasting studios in the entire world. One of these, Studio "A," is the largest in the world. Tentative plans include the erection of at least four more studios.

Studio A is 72 feet long, 47 feet wide and 26 feet high.

There are four net work control booths which are, in fact, miniature studios, to prevent tying up the larger studios when network programs are piped through. The four larger studios are literally floating rooms—boxes within boxes. They rest on springs. Four of the studios have sound locks at the entrances. These locks are small vestibules with two sets of doors lined with lead. Thus, when one door is opened, sound to and from the studio does not carry through the second door.

Studio A is lighted by sun-ray lamps designed in the laboratories of the General Electric Co. This is the first commercial installation of such lights.

Dimensions of the studios other than Studio A are as follows: Studio B, 45½ feet by 31 feet; Studio C, 26 feet by 21 feet; Studio D, 57 feet by 42 feet; Studio E, 54 feet by 42 feet; Studio F, 26 feet by 21 feet. All are two stories high, except C and F.

Automobile Trip to Reelfoot Lake Interesting

Good Shooting and Fishing on Large Body of Water in Tennessee, Near New Madrid. That Was Formed During Earthquake in 1811.

Typical vista from the shore of Reelfoot Lake, where duck shooting and fishing still are good enough to make a visit worth while.

By F. A. BEHYMER

Now comes the time of year when hunting men overhaul their guns and gear and get ready to go duck shooting at Reelfoot Lake, down in sunny Tennessee, sunny still when summer has merged into mellow autumn. Not with such great expectations as in times past when Reelfoot was more inaccessible than now and ducks more numerous, but still with the assurance of good shooting, for not all of the myriad birds that migrated there in former years have been driven to other haunts by the motor invasion.

Not only for hunters, but for motorists at large who like an autumn tour southward, a trip to Reelfoot Lake, which may be routed through four states—Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri—is varied, attractive and interesting, with the lake itself as the culminating point of interest. The lake is unique among bodies of water in this country, but because of its origin 110 years ago and its present appearance, with the trunks of thousands of trees, submerged in 1811, still standing in the deep water, their bare tops showing above the surface.

Tradition is that before the New Madrid earthquake of December, 1811, the wooded valley running parallel with the Mississippi River, starting in the southwest corner of Kentucky and extending 35 miles into Tennessee, opposite the New Madrid bend in the river, was the hunting ground of the Chickasaws, and was called the Reelfoot country after the Chickasaw chief, so dubbed because of his reeling gait, due to a deformity of one of his feet. Which accounts, if the tradition is credited, for Reelfoot Lake's name.

What seems to have happened in the earthquake was that parts of the floor of the valley sank and the water of the Mississippi, driven back by an upheaval near New Madrid, rushed in and filled the depression, forming a lake about 35 miles long, from one-half to eight miles wide.

For upward of a century the lake, difficult of access, was the habitat of an isolated race of hunters and fishermen, who lived upon the easily won bounty of the fish that filled the lake, the game that

Congestion Relief Said To Promise Big Market

Relief of New York Street Jams Might Be Made to Create Possibility of Selling Million More Cars a Year, Engineer Declares.

By CHRIS SINSABAUGH.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 18. — Right under the eyes of the automotive industry is an area that could absorb at least 1,000,000 more cars a year than it does now if—.

That place is New York City. The man who points to it is John Younger, professor of automotive engineering of Ohio State University and vice president in charge of production of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Immediately following the production meeting of the S. A. E., in Detroit, Younger startled some of his car manufacturing colleagues, who are seeking new markets for their product, by pointing out the possibilities of New York City in-

ECONOMICAL
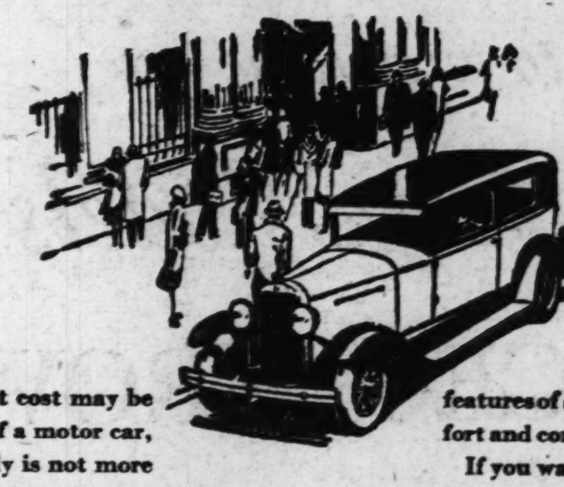
TO OWN ...



Important as first cost may be in the selection of a motor car, first cost certainly is not more important than the economy which can only be measured in terms of driving and owning a car over a period of time.

Such sound economy, the kind that has won nation-wide favor for Oldsmobile, is actually nothing more or less than a reflection of its staunch dependability.

If you want to know how thoroughly dependable Oldsmobile is, just examine the sturdy, enduring construction of the car itself . . . its big, powerful engine, so remarkable for efficiency and simplicity . . . its staunch, dependable chassis, with quiet, easy-acting clutch, steering, and gearshift; positive-acting, weatherproof, four-wheel brakes; long, flexible springs and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers. Inspect Oldsmobile's roomy, luxurious body by Fisher—with all its desirable features of style, strength, comfort and convenience.

If you want to know how important these things are to fine performance and comfortable, care-free travel, just take the wheel of an Oldsmobile and drive.

And if you want to know about the satisfaction Oldsmobile gives over the months and miles, make inquiries among your friends who drive this car.

Then you'll realize why Oldsmobile has earned the reputation of being so dependable. And when you consider these facts in the light of Oldsmobile's surprisingly moderate price, you, too, will say that Oldsmobile is a truly economical motor car . . . to buy . . . to drive . . . to own.

New Lubrication System Designed To End Guesswork

Tells How and Where to Alemite Every Make of American Passenger Car.

A new system of auto lubrication that eliminates guess-work is announced by Dan F. Hyland of the Alemite Co. of St. Louis. Prepared with the assistance of every large automobile manufacturer, insures complete and scientifically correct lubrication of the entire chassis and engine of every American-built passenger car.

"Nothing is more important in passenger car lubrication than that every single lubrication point should receive the proper kind and amount of lubricant at regular intervals," says Hyland.

Every Point on Car Located.

"The new system we have just adopted is known as 'Alemite Chek-Chart System.' It practically puts a factory-trained lubrication engineer at the elbow of the man who is going over your car. It points out to him all lubrication points and the kind of lubrication for each one and leaves no room for his making a mistake.

"This system consists of a book of big, legible lubrication charts of every passenger car made, including the very latest as well as models several years old. The charts were carefully prepared with factory service engineers and are correct in every detail.

"Every point on the car requiring lubrication is numbered and located by an arrow on the diagram of the chassis. Beneath the diagram these numbers are listed in order with the name of every part opposite its number as well as the character of lubrication that particular part should receive.

How System Operates.

"When your car comes in for lubrication the operator turns to the proper chart, checks it with the serial number on the car to insure absolute identification. Then, starting with No. 1—usually the righth front spring bolt—works right around the car, treating each point in order and missing none.

"The charts show the capacities of crankcase, transmission and differential. Not a single important factor has been overlooked in their preparation.

"So, as the life and service of a motor car depend on the care and thoroughness with which it is lubricated. We now have an automative lubrication encyclopedia that enables us to guarantee an Alemite-ing and oiling job to be as complete and efficient as it would be done at the factory where the car was built."

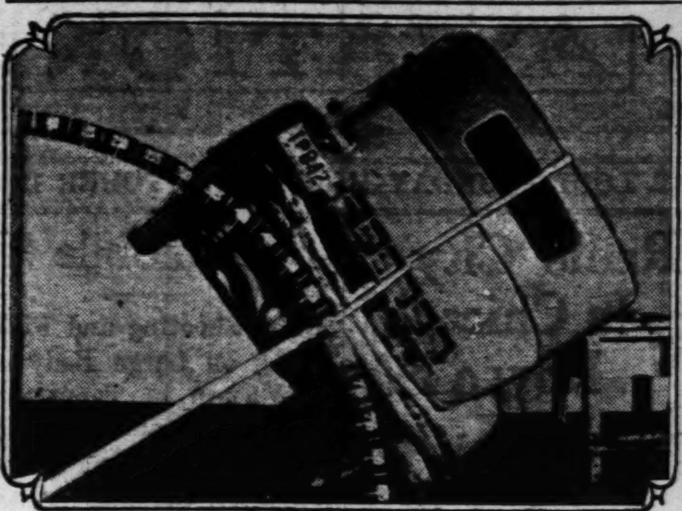
'Marathon Car' With Other Champions

Dodge "Marathon Mileage" Eight, which is being run to and fro around the country in an effort to wear it out, photographed with St. Mesrob and Peter Handsome, unbeaten champion roadster team at the St. Louis Horse Show, and their owner, George J. Peak of Winchester, Ill. The two horses have won a total of more than 1500 blue ribbons.

Cars Always Run as a Unit

Three Bantam Austin merchants' delivery cars delivered by the Austin American Co. to the Hanley & Kinsella Coffee and Spice Co., St. Louis, and used only as a three-in-one unit.

Showing Strength and Balance



One of the new Chrysler eights in a pose demonstrating that double drop frame construction and all-steel, low-swung body make for strength. The sedan is tilted at an angle of 60 degrees and leans against a fragile telephone stand. A finger push righted the car, which weighs 3500 pounds.

Fleet for 'Drive-It-Yourself' Service

Fleet of Plymouth and De Soto cars just bought by the Hall Drive-It Yourself Co., 5033 Delmar and 3630 Olive street, from the Mound City Motors, Inc., distributer. The cars were assigned to the Delmar avenue branch, which was opened the past week.

All Standard Oil Stations Now Handle Telegraph Messages

Complete Postal Telegram, Cablegram and Radio Shop Service for Motorists.

Telegrams to any place in America, cablegrams abroad and radio messages to ships at sea may now be sent from any Standard Oil Co. service station on roads to and from St. Louis. Similar arrangements have been made by the Postal Co. with service stations of affiliated Standard Oil companies in other parts of this country.

"Motorists, salesmen, truck operators and drivers can send messages from any of the Standard Oil service stations without leaving their machines," says M. S. Hausladen, local Postal Co. manager. "Transportation is dependent upon good, quick communication. We believe that this arrangement by Postal and the oil and gasoline companies is one of the most progressive moves yet made in speeding up communications and industry in general."

Using this new service, truck fleets can get into communication with headquarters at any time of day or night without loss of time. Motorists can telegraph for hotel reservations with utmost convenience. Salesmen can maintain any degree of contact desirable with their firms and prospects. Bus passengers now have the same degree of telegraph service offered passengers on the crack express trains.

New Spark Plug In All Graham Cars

Graham engineers have developed a new series of spark plugs in both metric and ⅞-inch sizes which, while "hotter" in design according to previously accepted theory, are said to eliminate pre-ignition troubles and to reduce fouling to a minimum.

These tests, the engineers say, contradicted the accepted theory that the size, length, and position of the insulator were the cause of pre-ignition, for after running the plugs at top speed, it was found that the insulators were in no way damaged, even after pre-ignition had begun.

Further tests showed that by using a solid copper gasket, and increasing the thickness in the "skirt" so as to carry the heat away, then projecting the insulator further into the combustion chamber, an additional reduction in fouling characteristics resulted.

The new type ⅞-inch plug has been used in Graham engines for 100 hours with wide-open throttle at 3000 r.p.m., continuously, whereas a year ago it would have been absolutely necessary to use a "cooler" plug than that used in production engines in a dynamometer of this kind, even for an hour or so.

These new spark plugs are now being used in all Graham sixes and eights.

Overseas Shipments Of Pierce-Arrows Continue to Increase

Pierce Arrow overseas shipments continue to show an increase over those of last year. The company's export shipments up to Oct. 1, not including those to Canada, are 7 per cent above shipments in the first nine months of 1929.

"Of all the PierceArrow export markets Argentina has been the most active, although a number of European countries have not been far behind. In a majority of the foreign countries the higher-priced body types have been in greatest demand," says A. J. Cavanter, first vice president.

U. S. Tire Production Schedule Increased

A daily production schedule 22 per cent greater than in August was maintained in September by the tire department of the United States Rubber Co. It is planned to continue this increased production schedule through October.

In spite of these production records, U. S. tires show an inventory of finished tires on hand, both at Detroit and in the field, of 25 per cent below the figures as of September last year.

Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., Take Over Willard Distribution Service

Firm Acquires Battery Company's Branch and Station in St. Louis.

Distribution of Willard batteries in the St. Louis territory, and the Willard branch and service station at 2918 Washington boulevard, have been taken over by Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., which will also continue to distribute Zenith radio receivers, Audiola radio, Frew-Clark midget radio sets and Copeland refrigerators.

M. Lindeman and A. C. Hoffer, heads of Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., said that C. W. Lockhart, who has been manager of the Willard Storage Battery Co. branch, would continue to be associated with Willard distribution and servicing here, and that the Willard organization generally was to be retained.

In addition to Willard distribution and servicing, the firm will continue to distribute, install and service transitone motor car receivers.

The Lindeman-Hoffer firm will also retain its headquarters for radio and refrigerator distribution at 2914-16 Washington, adjoining the Willard service station.

The firm will be Willard distributer in ten counties in Eastern Missouri and ten Southern Illinois counties, including East St. Louis and the "East Side" district.

Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., came to St. Louis from Kansas City several years ago and for a while maintained headquarters in bith cities for distributing Zenith radio. Recently, however, the firm has concentrated its merchandising efforts in St. Louis and the Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois trade area.

Its acquisition of the Willard branch here is the result of a change in policy by the Willard Storage Battery Co. of Cleveland, O., which has been gradually discontinuing branches in many cities.

Star Square Stores Distribute and Retail Brunswick Tire Line

Will Have Exclusive Handling of This Make in St. Louis District.

The Star Square Auto Supply Co. has taken the exclusive distribution and retailing of Brunswick tires in St. Louis for its 13 stores—the main store at 1129 Locust boulevard and 12 stores scattered throughout the city. Three carloads of tires have already been received and are going out to motorists.

The Brunswick is a first line tire made of the best materials and designed to compete with the highest quality tires. It is made in all the varieties and sizes for passenger and truck use, and with both standard and super service in mind.

In addition to tires, there is a Brunswick "air fast" inner tube, which is declared to be non-puncturable. This tube is made of extra heavy rubber which has been compressed to such an extent that if a nail penetrates the casing and then the tube, it is gripped so tightly that no air can leak out. Then, when the nail is pulled out, the rubber in the tube closes solidly and still there can be no air leakage.

H. J. Sacks, vice president of the Star Square Auto Supply Co., is the purchaser for the tire department of the company. He also is president of the Reliable Tire Co., and has been in the tire business for more than 20 years.

Never Before Such Automobile Values, Frampton Declares

St. Louis Distributer Points Out How Public Has Benefitted This Year.

Commenting on increased sales resulting from the decrease in Hudson and Essex prices, R. C. Frampton, head of the Hudson-Frampton Co., distributer, says that never was the public offered such automobile values as it is today.

"It is true of the automobile industry that it alone in the past five years has increased quality consistently, yet prices were always reduced. Year after year," says Frampton, "automobiles were improved beyond any expectation, yet the prices held the same or were lower. In the case of Hudson and Essex cars, the Hudson factory has not only increased quality in style and performance, it also reduced the cost of running the cars as well, thus bringing about a double reduction for the motorist.

"This is the twenty-first year of the company's existence, and a comparison of the first offerings of the company with those of today would show the tremendous improvements that have been made. Yet these former automobiles were the style of the day and gave performance that amazed that generation.

"The executives, who have been with the company since it was organized, recognize today what they have always recognized—that the automobile buyer is a discriminating buyer, one who knows value and where to look for value, and they gave me the assurance that will always be the policy of the company. That they have held to that belief for 21 years is evident from the large number of Hudson and Essex owners who year after year, or with every new model, continue to buy the cars."

Goodrich Builds Tires for Packard Car Made in 1899

Tire manufacturing equipment that a quarter of a century ago was relegated to oblivion by automobile advancement was recently recalled to service by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. in Akron.

The occasion was an order from the Packard Motor Car Co. of Detroit for a set of single tube 34x3 tires for the first automobile built by the late J. W. Packard. The car will be sent to Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa., to be set up in the Packard engineering laboratory soon to be dedicated.

Goodrich built the tires over specifications used years ago, the construction being done by workmen who were identified with the company when similar tires were an outstanding achievement.

The tires were of the old lug type, with brass bolts molded in the tire and fastened through the rim. Rubber cement also was used to secure the casings.

Advancement in automobile design since the first Packard was built in Warren, O., in 1899, has seen Goodrich pioneering pneumatic, cord, low pressure and balloon tires, outgrowths of 60 years of rubber products research and manufacture.

Says Cost of Tires Today Is Only 25th Of That 17 Years Ago

Tire mileage costs now are only one twenty-fifth of what they were 17 years ago, according to O. L. Rhoads, of Goodrich Silvertown, Inc., formerly the Standard Tire Co., who has received figures compiled by S. B. Robertson, vice president and general manager of the Pacific Goodrich Co., the California plant of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

"For example," Rhoads says, "a 33x4 cord tire cost $55.80 in 1913. The equivalent of that tire costs only $12.80 today. Seventeen years ago, mileage expectation was approximately 3000 miles. Now the motorist gets at least 15,000 miles, or rides at a rate of 80 cents a thousand miles on tires.

"Actual upkeep costs show that tires cost less per mile than any of the major factors in automobile operation, such as gasoline, oil, greasing, washing, polishing and repairs.

"Both the tire engineer and chemist are responsible for this nominal cost. High priced tires were almost all rubber, but the introduction of minerals into the wearing compound have added mileage in tremendous proportions."

Hot-Water Heater For Autos Developed By Perfection Co.

H. C. Merry, Inc., announces the Perfection hot-water heaters for autos. For five years the firm has represented Perfection heaters in St. Louis.

For the past two years the company has been working on and perfecting a hot-water heater, which is of patented type and operates by diverting hot-water from the engine to the water jacket and circulating through the radiator core of the heater. A silent motor-driven fan forces the clean, odorless hot-water heat to all parts of the car.

There are four models of Perfection hot-water heaters; three are for installation on the dash and one for the rear compartment.

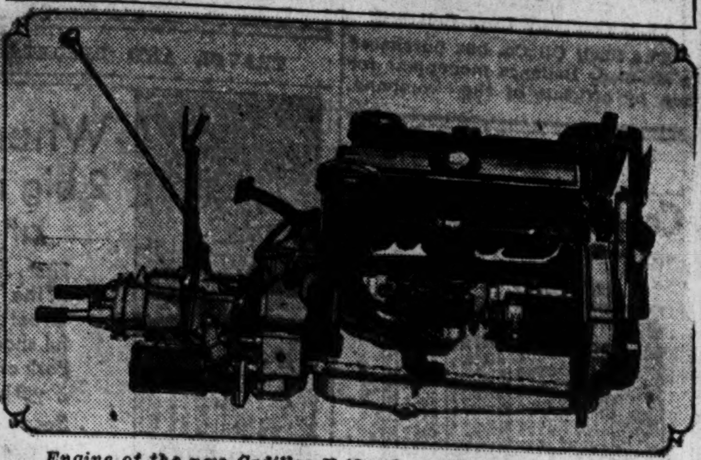
It Powers New Cadillac V-12



Engine of the new Cadillac V-12. It is similar to that of the V-16, but has 12 cylinders instead of 16. It develops 135 horse power. Carburetor noise is silenced by two mufflers on the air intake. Cadillac V-12 models are now being displayed in salons by the Oliver Cadillac Co., local distributer, and distributers and dealers throughout the country.

Cadillac V-12 Models Displayed in a Salon Exhibit in St. Louis

Shown for First Time With V-16, V-8 and La Salle Cars of All Types.

A special salon display of the new Cadillac V-12 models is being held this week by the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue, distributer, and its associate dealers, and by Cadillac distributers throughout the country. This will be the first time that all the Cadillac lines may be seen together—the V-16, the V-12, the Cadillac eight and the La Salle eight. F. o. b. prices of the V-12 line range from $3795 for the two-passenger coupe to $4895 for the all-weather phaeton.

The V-12 engine, with 12 cylinders of 3⅛-inch bore and 4-inch stroke, develops 135 horsepower. It has the syncro-mesh non-clashing transmission.

In general, the exterior lines of the V-12 follow the style motif first revealed in the Cadillac V-eight. The first impression is of sweeping length, even lower raciness, and greater style and spirit.

Heavy single bar bumpers are almost identical with those of the V-16. A chromium-plated screen covers the radiator. Massive chromium headlights of V-16 design carry between them, on a curved bar, a V-12 monogram on a blackground of blue. Like the V-16, the V-12 has two chromium horns. Hood ports are used instead of the conventional louvres, and a side cowl ventilator of the same size and shape as the ports serves to accentuate the impression of length at the front end.

Except in the seven-passenger sedan and Imperial, the contour of the back swings out and to the rear in a graceful curve which blends with the valance over the gas tank.

While six of the body styles on the V-12 are produced by Fisher and four by Fleetwood, the interior trim and upholstery in all 10 executed by Fleetwood craftsman. Thus, the V-12 provides the upholstery material options which Fleetwood alone can furnish, and the noticeably richer fabrics exclusively produced for Fleetwood by the world's outstanding weavers. Vanity cases, lighting equipment and hardware are of Fleetwood design. Upholstery is of the plain type with smart leather piping around the edges of cushions. The rear compartments of V-12 cars carry two foot rests of hassock type, carpet covered to match the upholstery, and spring upholstered. The driving compartment is equally rich and luxurious.

Willys-Overland Head Praises Co-operation Of the Local Bankers

"Co-operation of the banks of this country already has been of incalculable value in helping automobile dealers carry through the depression," said L. A. Miller, president of the Willys-Overland Co., in commenting on President Hoover's address to the American Bankers' Association at Cleveland.

"The best friend a progressive merchant in any line can have is a progressive banker. Never has the courage and sound judgment of all bankers played a more important part than it will be called on to play in the next six months.

"Of the 705 new dealers Willys-Overland has added to its organization since the first of the year, scarcely one would have been possible without the active co-operation of the local banker. Through the help and co-operation of local bankers, also, Willys-Overland dealers have put their houses in order. They are ready on a sound basis to get their full share of business when motor car sales volume turns forward again, and as that time approaches, the closer relationship which dealers have established with their banks will add to their profit."

Open Used Car Store

A used car store has been opened at 2516 South Jefferson avenue by the Davenport & Hinson Auto Sales Co., which was organized recently to deal in used-automobiles. Dave Davenport and Allen Hinson, the owners, were members for some years of the sales staff of the Big Four Auto Co. They have had much experience in merchandising both new and used cars.

Motor Trip To Reelfoot Lake

came to its shores and the fowls that migrated there. They had their own code and were to a great extent a law unto themselves. They were willing to share with sportsmen the hunting and fishing rights which they felt belonged to them. But they resisted the attempt to introduce commercialized fisheries, challenging the authority of the State and only yielding, sullenly, when soldiers were sent to camp on the bank of the lake.

In recent years, the isolation of the region has been ended by the building of hard roads, particularly to the southern end of the lake. The increased accessibility has brought thousands of sportsmen to fish and hunt, in season, against scores who formerly found their difficult way to the hunters' and fishermen's paradise. Because of the invasion the lake is no longer the paradise that it was, in the judgment of the old timers among duck hunters, but the ducks still come there by the thousands and sportsmen who are not as exacting as the old timers find plenty of them to shoot at.

For motorists who want to get the most out of the trip the suggested route is through Illinois to Cairo, ferrying the Ohio there, then along the edge of Kentucky through Fulton to the Tennessee line, and on through Union City to the lake, returning by way of Caruthersville through Missouri.

The shortest way through Illinois to Cairo is by State Routes 13 and 152 (Hot Shot Trail) to Carbondale and U. S. No. 51 from there to Cairo. No. 13 leads through Belleville, Freeburg, New Athens and Marissa to a junction with No. 152 at a point four miles beyond Marissa, 49 miles from St. Louis. Route 152 is a short cut through Tilden and Coulterville to Pinckneyville. Pinckneyville may also be reached by staying on 13, but this route, through Sparta, is about eight miles longer. The two, 13 and 152, join again at the edge of Pinckneyville and 13 is used from there, through Vergennes and Murphysboro to Carbondale, 100 miles from St. Louis. From Carbondale to Cairo, over U. S. 51, is 60 miles, through Cobden, Anna, Tamms and Mounds. The road, up hill and down dale, winds among vast orchards until it comes to the great lowland at the far tip of which, where the Ohio and Mississippi meet, lies Cairo behind its high flood wall. The approach to the city, after passing the National Cemetery at Mound City, is between rows of shade trees that line the trail and interwine their branches overhead.

In Cairo it is worth while to turn aside, to the right, into Washington boulevard, sometimes spoken of as the most attractive residence street in the State.

The route, except for this deviation, leads past the Alexander County Courthouse and the Federal Building, both on the left, through the business section to the protecting wall at the top of the Ohio's high bank and through an opening in the wall and down the levee to one of the waiting ferry boats, the one that plies directly across to the Kentucky shore or the one that drops down stream a few miles to Wickliffe.

It is the part of prudence to inquire, at Wickliffe, whether the road reconstruction between there and Fulton, on U. S. 51, has been completed and, if not, whether there are detour difficulties. This reconstruction work has been going on for several months, necessitating detours at one point or another, and although the detours have been well maintained, one of them might be difficult in bad weather. For those who do not like detours, if these are still to be encountered when the trip is made, there is the alternative of going the longer way—U. S. 60, gravel, to Paducah and U. S. 45, concrete, from Paducah to Fulton, although this is nearly twice as far as following U. S. 51 from Wickliffe to Fulton. The distance this way, through Bardwell and Clinton, is 44 miles, not counting detours.

From Fulton to Union City, over U. S. 45, is 15 miles and it is 11 miles further to Troy, where No. 45 is left and the trip to the lake, 12 miles farther, through Hornbeek, is finished over an excellent state road.

The approach to the lake is at its lower tip and the state road, following the bank around the lower end, leads on to Tiptonville. A well-kept county road runs north a mile or so to Samburg, a resort with considerable native atmosphere, from where boat trips may be made over the lake or skiffs obtained for hunting or fishing or for pushing about among the yoncopins. Back along the state road are camping grounds along the shore and across the road from the lake a summer resort of the more elaborate sort. For those who do not camp there are hotels at Samburg, on the lake, and at Hornbeek and Tiptonville, only a few miles away.

From Tiptonville, starting on the return trip, the way is south over state routes Nos. 78 and 79 to the Caruthersville ferry. The fee, $2, is high, but the river is wide and in such matters every ferryman seems to have ideas of his own. Out of Caruthersville U. S. 61 is picked up for the homeward run of 232 miles of St. Louis through Sikeston, Cape Girardeau and Fredericktown, concrete all the way, unless one chooses to take the shorter graveled route, Missouri No. 25, from Jackson, through Perryville and Ste. Genevieve. By the longer way through Fredericktown the distance from start to finish is 540 miles.

Packard Built in 1899 Still Runs

The first Packard car built, Model A-1, dating back to Nov. 6, 1899, which is to be removed from the Packard factory in Detroit to Lehigh University, as a "loan exhibit" in a building given to the college by the late J. W. Packard.

Recently the old car, fitted with a set of new tires made for it by the Goodrich Rubber Co., was taken on the 2½-mile test track on the Packard proving grounds with E. F. Roberts, vice president of manufacturing, at the wheel. It did a quarter of a mile at nearly 20 miles an hour, then its engine "went dead". A loose connection on the ignition coil was fixed, and again it chugged awa , making a round of the track.. Its engine was run for an hour longer.

At St. Louis Airfields

A FLYING club organized under the National Aeronautic Association plan was formed last Tuesday by St. Louis aviation enthusiasts at a meeting at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport.

Thirty-three persons attended the meeting and received an explanation of the plan from Lieut. J. F. Fisher, Naval Reserve pilot, who has been active in promoting the club.

There will be three types of membership. The first, requiring a $200 initiation fee and $25 annual dues, entitles the member to flying instruction at $7 an hour and to subsequent flying time at a moderate fee. The $200 is invested in flying equipment and the member thus has a financial share in the club. The second class is composed of social members, who pay $25 a year and participate in the affairs of the organization. The third group comprises plane owners, who wish to avail themselves of the storage and service facilities of the club and pay $10 a year for the privilege.

Six $200-members were obtained at the first meeting. A second session, at which officers will be elected and a name selected for the club, will be held Tuesday night at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport. Included among those who have taken out membership are Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, dean of aviation enthusiasts; T. Preston Sulton, Harold Bixby, one of Lindbergh's backers; Maj. Phil R. Love, commander of the National Guard Air Service, and Maj. C. Ray Wassall, former commander of the National Guard unit. Majors Love and Wassall have agreed to serve as instructors for their fellow club members.

The plan has been favorably received in other cities, and is expected to be successful here. The old St. Louis Flying Club had 400 members, and it is expected that a large number of these enthusiasts will join the new club.

New Air Mail Service Saturday.

The new transcontinental air mail and passenger service through St. Louis will start next Saturday, officials of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., announce. Planes will leave Newark Airport and Los Angeles simultaneously. The schedule calls for an elapsed time of 36 hours from coast-to-coast, including an overnight stop at Kansas City. A second transcontinental service, supplementary to the other, was started last week through St. Louis to Amarillo, Tex., with stops at Springfield, Mo., and Tulsa and Oklahoma City, Ok.

95 Pilots at Lambert Field.

Ninety-five pilots are registered at Lambert-St. Louis Field, a census taken by Field Manager Parks shows. The list does not include T. A. T.-Maddux pilots, who are being reassigned at present.

Exhibitions at Parks.

The regular Sunday afternoon flying programs at Parks Airport will be continued throughout the fall season. Today's events include glider exhibitions and two parachute jumps by Jack Merrell.

Good Day for Sight-seers.

As a result of the mild weather last Sunday large crowds visited the three local airports and commercial flyers did a good business in sightseeing rides.

C. T. Batts Visits City.

Carl T. Batts, who opened Curtiss-Wright activities here several years ago, was a visitor here last week. Batts is an assistant vice president in charge of sales.

$104,050 Sale of Planes.

The Detroit Aircraft Corporation announces the sale of 15 planes having a total value of 104,050 for the 10-day period, Oct. 1 to 10. Ten planes valued at $81,000, ordered previously, were delivered in the same period, the company reports.

Engine Testing Base Here.

Lambert-St. Louis Field has been designated by the Department of Commerce as an engine testing base. There are four similar bases in operation now, and four more, including the local airport, have been designated.

Ticket Office Opened.

M. P. Bickley, formerly traffic manager here for Safeway Airlines, has opened a consolidated air travel ticket office at 1201 Locust street, in Hotel Jefferson. The office will represent both domestic and foreign air lines.

Students Visit Steinberg.

Students of the aeronautical class of Central High School visited Curtiss-Steinberg Airport last Wednesday and made an inspection of the hangars and shops. A number made sight-seeing flights over the city.

Construction for Year Finished.

The last material for runways at Lambert-St. Louis Field was laid Thursday morning, marking the end of the year's construction program.

Party Inspects Lambert Field.

Fifteen foreign representatives of the Shell Oil Co. inspected Lambert-St. Louis Field during the week.

Transcontinental Flights.

Transcontinental flyers were active last week, despite bad weather, which caused passenger lines to cancel trips.

Miss Laura Ingalls, until recently a student at the Universal Flying School here, stopped overnight Thursday on her way from Los Angeles to New York, following a flight westward 10 days ago. Miss Ingalls' record for the cross-continent trip for women flyers was broken by Mrs. Keith Miller, who reached Los Angeles Thursday. Miss Ingalls resumed her flight early Friday in an effort to set a women's record for the West-to-East trip. Accompanying her were Milford Sator and Ross Mahachek, former instructors at the Universal School here. They flew a second plane to be on hand in case Miss Ingalls had trouble with her plane.

GIRL FLYER

MISS EDNA RUDOLPH

ST. LOUIS girl, who holds a pilot's license and flies her own plane at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport.

Robert Buck, 16-year-old licensed pilot from New Jersey, passed through Friday on his way east after setting a new transcontinental record for junior pilots.

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, stopped on Wednesday on a flight from Los Angeles to New York. He was a passenger in a Lockheed-Vega piloted by Harry Ashe. McAdoo is interested in several air mail companies.

Universal Graduates.

F. B. Fawcett of St. Louis completed the limited commercial course at the Universal Flying School last week. E. Luebben, a transport student, was another graduate. Charles Kiewel of Thief River Falls, Minn., enrolled for the refresher course.

Shell Company Buys Bellanca.

The Shell Oil Co. has purchased a six-place Bellanca monoplane for use by officials of the company. The ship, powered with a Wasp engine, has a top speed rating of 155 miles an hour. Complete night flying equipment is included. The plane will be flown to Lambert Field today or tomorrow by M Girton, Shell pilot. The Bellan replaces a Fokker, which was cently destroyed in a hangar f at Chicago.

Lutheran Hour Next Thursday to Originate in St. Louis—City Also to Be Featured in Gold Medal Broadcast—A&P Gypsies to Review Seven Years of Broadcasting Tomorrow Night — NBC Leases WTAM, at Cleveland.

St. Louis will be the point or origin for next Thursday night's Lutheran Hour broadcast over the Columbia chain. The musical program will be given by the Walther League's a capella choir of St. Louis, directed by William B. Heyne, and will go out over KMOX as well as the other 34 stations linked in the network for this feature. There will also be a brief address by Dr. Walter A Maier of Concordia Theological Seminary, who is the speaker on all Lutheran Hour programs.

St. Louis will be advertised nationally next Wednesday night, when the Gold Medal broadcast over the CBS chain will be dedicated to it. Attention will be called during the program to points of interest in and around the city, including the Lindbergh trophies in the Jefferson Memorial. Material for the broadcast was furnished by the Chamber of Commerce.

KSD is to broadcast a concert by Isham Jones' Coronado Hotel Orchestra from 1 to 1:40 each afternoon, except Sunday. These concerts will be in addition to those by Isham Jones six nights a week, from 11 to 11:30, except Wednesday when the time is 10:30 to 11 o'clock, and Sunday.

The National Broadcasting Co. has leased WTAM, the 50,000-watt station at Cleveland, O., which tunes in on 1070-kc., two channels away from KMOX. In 1928, the Van Sweringen railroad interests and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., bought WTAM at the request of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, and built it up as a matter of civic service. The management of the station will not be changed, but, of course, WTAM will have the benefit of the NBC's vast resources in artists and entertainers. It may be recalled that a few weeks ago the NBC "loaned" Vaughn de Leath to WTAM for six months.

A series of children and young people's concerts by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society will be broadcast over the Columbia chain at 10 o'clock Saturday mornings, beginning Oct. 25. The concerts will be directed by Ernest Schilling, pianist-composer. The concerts will be graded in three progressive series of five each—for primary, intermediate and advanced grades. Explanatory talks will be given by Schelling. The concerts, of which there will be 15, will be broadcast from Carnegie Hall, New York.

Following weekly the Friday morning concerts by Walter Damrosch over KSD, KWK and other NBC stations, these CBS concerts will help to make two forenoons a week notable for school children of the country and millions of women.

Beginning Monday, Oct. 27, Amos and Andy will go on a "three-a-night" schedule. They will broadcast at 7 o'clock over Eastern time zone stations, which means that the 6 o'clock St. Louis time broadcasts will continue over WLW; at 10 p.m. over Central zone stations such as KWK, and at 9 o'clock mountain time over stations in that time zone instead of 9:30.

KWK, St. Louis, which broadcasts on 1350 kilocycles, has filed application with the Federal Radio Commission for construction permit to move its transmitter from St. Louis to Kirkwood, Mo., and install the equipment formerly used by KMOX. Its engineers have assured the Commission that they will be able to operate the 5000-watt transmitter at 1000 watts, the power which KWK is authorized to use.

Tests of a 158,000-watt transmitter to be operated at Warsaw, Poland, on 1411 meters are being completed by the British Marconi Co. at Chelmsford, England. It should be operating in Poland by Christmas day. A Soviet station uses 100,000 watts, as does the Italian station, ROMA. The Warsaw station's two aerial masts will be 600 feet high. The transmitter is three times as powerful as any regularly authorized in this country.

KDKA, Pittsburg, will soon be on the air in after-midnight experiments with 400,000 watts, and WGY, Schenectady, has conducted such tests with 200,000 watts. The Federal Radio Commission recognizes such high-powered broadcasting as experimental only.

Little Jack Little is back on WLW on a six-day schedule. He may be heard at the following times: Saturday, 11 to 11:30 p. m.; Sunday, 11 to 11:30 p. m.; Tuesday, 11:30 p. m. to midnight; Wednesday, 3 p. m. to 3:15; Thursday, 9:45 p. m. to 10, and Friday, 11 p. m. to 11:30. Sandy MacGregor is to take part in some of his programs. Little's Tuesday night broadcast will be as master of ceremonies of WLW's cabaret program.

Sherlock Holmes, the detective, and his companion, Dr. Watson, created by the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, will do their detecting on the air when a new series, "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," is broadcast over an NBC network from 9 to 9:30 Monday nights, beginning tomorrow. William Gillette, actor and playwright, famous for his interpretation of the role of the master detective, will play Holmes in the first program. KSD will be unable to broadcast this series because of sharing time with KFUO.

The first episode in the series, which is sponsored by the George Washington Coffee Refining Co. will be "The Adventure of the Speckled Band."

The new musical signature of the General Electric Hour on KSD Saturday nights is by Walter Damrosch, conductor of the orchestra. Requiring the use of every instrument in the 60-piece orchestra, it is an elaborate fanfare. It was completed last week Friday morning, barely in time to be scored for the orchestra's use the next night.

The feature, "Moonshine and Honeysuckle," is to be back on KSD fom 1 to 1:30 Sunday afternoon. KSD is to broadcast the Mystery House program Thursday nights from 10 to 10:30, and the Pilgrims at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoons.

A special "Musical Festival" program is to be given by the A. & P. Gypsies over KSD at 7:30 tomorrow night, reviewing music that has won them the most "fan" mail in their seven years of radio work.

The A. & P. Gypsies are the second oldest American broadcasting organization from the viewpoint of continuous service on the air. They have broadcast over KSD for more than three years.

Debaters from Scottish universities and Bates College, of Lewiston, Me., will argue the virtues of Frugality in an international debate to be broadcast over an NBC network, at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday. The question is, "Resolved, that thrift is not a virtue." The Bates College team will take the affirmative, attacking thrift, and the Scottish debaters will defend its virtues.

Reports from Washington are that the synchronization experiment by WHO, Des Moines, and WOC, Davenport, Ia., which at first was hailed as highly successful, has proven impracticable, as it did with WBZ, Springfield, Mass., and WBZA, Boston. The company operating the two Iowa stations believes that far better service can be rendered by one 50,000-watt transmitter, centrally located, and this is its chief reason for joining the rush for super power.

Frank W. Elliott, general manager of the company operating WHO and WOC, told the Radio Commission that results of synchronization did not justify the cost and that listeners in some 3000 square miles between the two stations got virtually no programs because of "mushy" signals.

Some 35 scientists of international reputation are to speak in an NBC series Wednesday evenings, beginning Nov. 5. The talks will cover the past century of scientific research. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a Nobel Prize winner, will open the series, discussing the X-ray.

An elaborate series of electrical transcriptions will be broadcast over 84 stations, including KMOX, beginning at 10 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 26. They will be called the Plymouth World Tour and will be sponsored by the Chrysler Corporation. Ten radio technicians and continuity writers have been sent to Europe to record music by European orchestras, bands and choirs, folk song and songs by noted artists and messages and addresses by statesmen and other famous men and women.

When Graham McNamee announces a commercial program he gets $250 in addition to his salary, and during the winter he usually has at least four commercial programs a week.

What's New in Radio Industry

Sparton Adds Mantle Type, Small Console and Record-Changing Combine —Bosch Tone Control Is by Any Gradation Desired— How Records Are Made on New Westinghouse Receivers—Trade Notes.

Sparton Adds Models.

A mantel type set, a low priced console model and a record-changing radio-phonograph combination in the medium priced field, have been added to the Sparton line of receivers. Record changes are made in four seconds in the combination by a new mechanism developed by Sparton engineers. A "breakdown" test of this mechanism is still under way at the factory with more than 15,000 changes without a failure or breakage. The changer has a capacity of 12 records, either 10-inch or 12-inch. The combination has the 10-tube standard Sparton Equassone circuit.

The new low priced Sparton, called the "Jewel," has two screen grid tubes and push pull audio. The new mantel type set, known as the Sparton Junior, is said to be a real radio set in a small cabinet.

The three new models do not displace any of the regular Sparton line.

Bosch Has Full Tone Control.

Full tone control applied to the audio side of the receiving set as on the new Bosch radio models is different from the ordinary tone control. With it, tone control is not limited to three or four or any definite number of tone gradations, but is so designed that the slightest turn of the tone control knob modifies the tone a minute fraction. So, a listener may select the precise shading of tone he prefers or which best suits the acoustic properties of the room.

Some rooms are large, have high ceilings, hard bare floors, and are without draperies or hangings. Such rooms have an abundance of "echo." For such a room the tone control may be adjusted for a deeper, mellower tone. If the room is smaller, has heavy carpet or rugs and hangings, and upholstered furniture, there will be less reverberation, and the tone control may be turned up to emphasize the higher, brilliant tones.

The Bosch tone control simply reduces the intensity of the "higher frequencies" as it is turned down. It acts also as a static minimizer for both natural and man-made static is composed of sound vibrations which are found among the higher frequencies, and by turning the tone control down the intensity of these vibrations is reduced. Another advantage is the ability of the owner to adapt his receiver at a moment's notice to the change in broadcasting quality as sent out by different stations.

Westinghouse's New Set.

The home record making features of the new Westinghouse receivers have been attained without compromising the radio or phonograph design.

In recording radio programs, the receiver is tuned to the desired program and the switch is turned to "radio recording." This operation splits the output of the receiver approximately 93 per cent to the phonograph for recording and 7 per cent to the speaker for monitoring. This recording is made with a special needle in place and a special weight on the pickup head.

The same records are used for radio recording, and the same method of producing the home recorded record is used, except that in reproducing radio-recorded records a special weight is placed on the head of the pickup.

Chinese Priests Like Radio.

Chinese Priests in Wuchang Hupeh find American-made receivers a never-ending source of interest and entertainment, according to a letter received by officials of the Crosley Radio Corporation from Fr. Julian Hartig, O. F. M., American missionary stationed there. Most of the programs received are Russian and Japanese.

Priests at the mission reported the Crosley set as one of their most cherished possessions.

To Reduce Fading.

A way greatly to minimize fading in receiving short wave radio stations is the use of several directional aerials, according to George Perryman, chief eigineer of the Perryman Electric Co., Inc.

"Several short wave experimenters," says Perryman, "have virtually eliminated fading by the use of such aerials. The most common practice is to use the so-called umbrella type of aerial; that is aerials radiating in different directions from a central point. The lead-in is attached to this center point."

A drive to have reception troubles of listeners dignosed by expert radio technicians is being sponsored by the National Union Radio Corporation, for which Harry J. Brockman is factory agent. The better reception movement is designed to help set owners to get the fullest benefit from the millions of dollars' worth of entertainment which is continually on the air. Thousands of local listeners, says Brockman, are probably missing hearing brilliant programs, or are hearing them in an unsatisfactory manner, because of some minor difficulties with their sets which hinder good reception.

Television Far From Practical.

R. C. A.—Victor engineers have been working on television for a number of years and have made truly phenomenal strides toward its practical use. But the apparatus necessary to carry out successful television today is totally unfitted, by reason of its character, to installation in homes," says E. E. Shumaker, president of the R. C. A.-Victor Co., Inc. "In a word, television is a laboratory success, but appears to be a long way from practical and general use."

When you hear the KENNEDY you will want one, too

We find most Kennedy s are bought that way

OF COURSE, the beauty of the various cabinet designs immediately impresses everyone—but it is the true-to-life tone of the Kennedy that produces the irresistible urge to own it.

How often you hear your friends praise the tone of their radio—its selectivity—its power or some other one desirable feature. It may seem exaggeration to say that a Kennedy gives all that radio offers, but put one in your home and even your friends will admit it.

With the Selectone Control you get just the shading of tone texture that pleases you—from rich, mellow bass to bell-like soprano and never even the murmur of a hum.

Straight through the maze of congested air channels the Kennedy brings your program to you. No "cross talk." The duo volume control stops that.

Whether it is the voice of a singer—the surging tones of an organ—the sweeping music of a great orchestra—the rythmic tempo of the dance or the voice of a famous preacher in a high vaulted cathedral—you have only to close your eyes to believe you are in the same room.

And Kennedy has a fascinating, new experience for you—short wave reception. Programs from foreign cities—voices of ships at sea—the mystery of messages from far corners of the world.

It takes skill to tune in on short wave, but Kennedy has made it easy to acquire that skill and when you tire of hunting DX, click the switch and come back to your favorite "home" station.

Let the Kennedy convince you.

Congestion Relief Said to Promise Market

creasing its automobile ownership by 25 per cent a year.

"If figures prove anything, I can make you see New York's possibilities," said Younger. "I have found that in all states other than New York the ratio of car ownership is one in five persons; in the New York City area with its 10,000,000 population, the ratio is one in 10. If New York could absorb enough cars to bring it to the one-in-five ratio, 1,000,000 more cars a year should be sold in that section.

"Traffic congestion is responsible for New York not measuring up to its automobile ownership possibilities. Solve this problem and the new market is created. How to do it is one of those things we all are thinking about. My solution is double-decking such main thoroughfares as Fifth avenue, Forty-second and Fifty-ninth streets, parts of Broadway, and streets leading from the Holland tube and the bridges. This would furnish traffic relief.

"It would give a vast impetus to construction work while these improvements were going on also it would give the city a larger trading area. Further double-decking would speed up trucking which could be confined to the lower level."

Drawing for space in the national automobile shows to be held this winter in New York and Chicago discloses that there will be several makes of cars making their first appearance. Austin, the bantam car, comes in for the first time as an American product. While it was displayed two years ago, it was English built at that time.

The front-drive Ruxton was not ready for the last shows, but now it will get into the national limelight. Duesenberg heretofore has confined its show displays to the salons.

Reference recently was made to a rumor that one of the show surprises might be a 12-cylinder front-drive car. Gossip had it that Peerless was to be its sponsor. That rumor has been spiked by J. H. Bohannon, president of the company, who declares that while Peerless owns the French Buccali front-drive patents, it is not its intention at the present time to use them.

How Insurance by the State Would Work in Workingmen's Compensation

Experience of Ohio and West Virginia Shows Saving to Missouri Employers Would Average $2,000,000 a Year

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 18.

THE writer has completed an examination of records of the Missouri Insurance Department covering operations of the privately owned insurance companies writing Workmen's Compensation insurance in Missouri, and has compared their costs with the costs of the Ohio State Insurance Fund, which performs the same service for employers and workers in Ohio.

The result of the comparison is a finding that, after making liberal allowances for differences in the payments under the laws of the two states, Missouri employers carry a liability insurance from 30 to 50 per cent in excess of that borne by industry in Ohio. This, in effect, is a tax on business which Ohio industry does not bear. It is either passed on to the consumer in increased prices or, if absorbed by industry, puts Missouri industry at a disadvantage in its competition with industry in other states.

On one-fifth of the compensation insurance business of the private companies in Missouri, it was found that Missouri employers paid to those companies $1,626,584, while for protection for the same amount of payroll, Ohio employers in the same lines of business would have paid only $786,156, less than half the amount the Missouri employers paid. This was found on an application of the rates effective in both states on actual payrolls in Missouri aggregating $264,435,300 in 37 classifications of employment, insured by private companies in 1927.

Penalty Figures for Missouri.

These classifications were used for the purpose of the comparison because they were the same in both states and an exact comparison was possible. This could not be done in many classifications because of the different methods employed by the private companies and the Ohio fund managers in classifying risks.

While these figures indicate that Missouri business is penalized 100 per cent by the failure of the State in the past to provide State insurance, the penalty is not that great. Insurance actuaries estimate that the actual penalty is approximately 30 per cent, a conservative figure, which is arrived at by properly taking into consideration the facts that Ohio meets the expense of its State insurance fund from appropriations from the general revenue, while Missouri proposes to make its fund, if created, self supporting, and that payments under the Missouri Workmen's Compensation law are higher than those under the Ohio law.

The maximum weekly benefit in Missouri is $20, while in Ohio it is $18.75. Ohio has a longer waiting period before compensation begins than has Missouri.

In 1927 private insurance companies collected in premiums from Missouri employers for this class of insurance $8,371,114, and in 1928, they collected $6,166,007. If the 30 per cent estimate of actuaries as to differences in rates is accepted as correct, the $8,371,114 in premiums would have been reduced to $5,859,780 under State insurance, a saving to business of more than $2,500,000, and the $6,166,007 would have been reduced to $4,316,205, a saving of nearly $2,000,000.

40% Used to Get Business.

According to insurance company reports to the Missouri department, they have not sought rates which would give them a profit on the writing of the business, being content with the banking profit, which is quite a handsome earning. The companies have reported that their expenses of operation have been approximately 40 per cent of their premium income, and that the payment of claims has taken the remaining 60 per cent.

But is is not to be assumed that the companies are operating without profit. The extent of the so-called banking profits, which the companies have taken, will be realized from the official reports of the State funds in Ohio and in West Virginia. In 16 years the Ohio fund received $22,806,084.10 in interest on its investment in securities and on bank balances. In 1928 alone its income from interest was $2,959,937.36, and it now has invested in interest bearing bonds a total in excess of $50,000,000.

In 17 years the West Virginia fund has collected $7,719,617.96 in interest. For the year ending June 30, last, its interest collections were $913,196.51. That fund now has $17,341,700 invested in bonds and $770,268.18 on deposit in banks.

On investment of their larger premium receipts due to higher rates the private companies' banking profit would be proportionately larger than that of these State funds. The private companies take this for distribution in dividends, or to increase surplus, making the value of their stock more. The State funds use it to decrease rates, and to increase surplus.

Ohio Spends But Five Per Cent.

The huge saving to industry by State insurance is due to two major factors, the lower expense of operation, and the saving due to the use of the income from interest.

State Insurance Departments permit privately owned companies to figure in making rates that their expense of operation will equal 40 per cent of the premiums they collect. The remaining 60 per cent is for the payment of claims, and, if anything is left above the claim demands, for profit. The companies report that virtually all the 60 per cent is required for claim payments. On this basis, it will be seen, the companies collect from employers $100 for each $60 they pay to injured employes or the dependents of employes killed.

State funds enjoy a marked saving over private companies in the matter of expense. Instead of the 40 per cent of premiums taken for expenses by the companies, the proposed Missouri law permits the use of not more than 10 per cent of the premiums for expenses. As a matter of fact, the experience of State funds is that the expense item runs far below that figure. In West Virginia it is 4 per cent and in Ohio, including the appropriation from the general state funds, the expenses amount to only 5 per cent of the amount of the premiums.

The largest item of expense in the private companies' accounts is 17½ per cent for acquisition of business. This would be entirely saved to the State fund, as the employer would be forced to take his insurance in the State fund, unless the commission permitted him to carry his own risk. At least, there would be no competition for the business. In 1927 premium collections of $8,371,114 this expense alone amounted to $1,464,944. In 1928 on premium collections of $6,166,007, it amounted to $1,074,051.

Where Private Costs Go.

Their other expense charges are 8 per cent for investigating and adjusting claims, 2 per cent for payroll auditing, 2½ per cent for inspection and accident prevention work, 7½ per cent for general administration, and 2½ per cent for taxes, in all 40 per cent. A state fund is relieved of much of this expense. It would have an adjustment expense, which would be small, however, as under a State fund the incentive to quibble over just claims would not exist. There would be an inspection expense, auditing expense and administration expense, but under the law the total expense would be limited to 10 per cent. The State fund, of course, would pay no taxes, though admittedly the State would be the loser to the extent that taxes come from private companies now doing the business.

The Ohio fund is recognized as probably the most successful of the 17 state funds in the United States, none of which has ever failed. It has been in operation since 1913, and in that time has collected $146,000,000 in premiums and has paid out $113,000,000 on claims and for refunds. It has assets of $56,366,885, of which $46,778,588 is held as a reserve to meet claims.

The latest published report of the Ohio fund shows that 40,077 employers are insured in it, and only 309 employers are self-insurers. Under the proposed Missouri law, as under the Ohio law, an employer who can satisfy the commission of adequate financial stability is permitted to carry his own insurance, but is not permitted to insure his liability with a private company.

For several months the Ohio fund has been feeling the effects of the business depression. Decreased business payrolls means decreased premium receipts, and such receipts have been

One Hundred Per Cent More in Missouri

THIS table presents a graphic illustration of the high price which employers in Missouri are paying the private stock insurance companies for Workmen's Compensation liability insurance. It shows that 37 of the larger groups of employers in Missouri pay almost exactly 100 per cent more for this insurance, which is required by law, than they would pay if located in Ohio, where industry enjoys the benefits and lower rates of a state-operated compensation insurance fund.

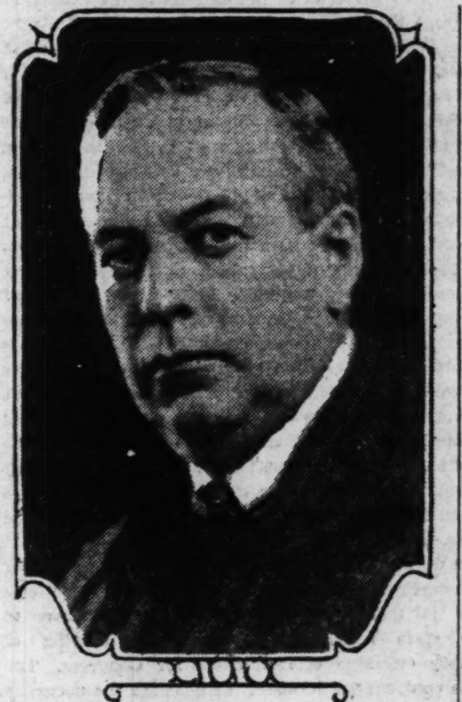
Another Federal Judge to Face Congressional Investigation

Judge Harry B. Anderson, of Memphis, Appointed by President Coolidge to Succeed John Will Ross, Who Died Mysteriously, Accused of Permitting "Bankruptcy Ring" to Flourish in His Court.

Disruption of Social and Business Alliances of Judge's Father Explored for Possible Bearing on Action of Court—District Attorney Among Accusers—Disposal of Liquor Cases Challenged.



JUDGE HARRY B. ANDERSON.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18.

THE stage is set here for developments which probably will determine the fate of another Federal Judge. Within the last four years two members of the United States judiciary, appointed by the President for life "or during good behavior," have resigned under impeachment charges, and a third has undergone formal censure by the House of Representatives. To this community, threatened with its second judicial scandal in five years, the present situation is especially distressing.

Five years ago Federal Judge John Will Ross of the Western District of Tennessee was indicted on embezzlement charges, growing out of unfortunate land speculations which resulted in the failure of a Jackson bank. At the height of the scandal he drove his car over an embankment into a creek and was drowned. A life insurance company resisted payment on his policy, contending he had committed suicide, but the official verdict was death by accident.

Now his successor, Judge Harry B. Anderson, whom President Coolidge appointed in 1925, shortly after Judge Ross' death, faces a congressional investigation. Hearings are scheduled to open here next month before a special judiciary subcommittee of the House, appointed for that purpose during the last session of Congress. Meantime, Department of Justice agents, assigned to work for the subcommittee, have almost completed their task of examining court records, bank records and other evidence bearing on the investigation of the Judge's conduct.

Most of the scandals that have overtaken Federal Judges in recent years have involved accusations of fraud or irregularities in the handling of bankruptcy cases. Such accusations figured heavily in the investigations which led to the impeachment and resignation of Federal Judge English of Illinois; the resignation of Federal Judge Winslow of New York, and the censure passed upon Federal Judge Moscowitz of Brooklyn. Judge Anderson's case follows the rule, to the extent that it involves the familiar accusation of a "bankruptcy ring" operating in connection with the court. Here, as in other instances, it is charged that a Referee in Bankruptcy, appointed by the Court, has favored a small circle of friends with lucrative receiverships, trusteeships and attorneyships; and that assets entrusted to the court have been "milked to death" through the allowance of excessive fees to the favored individuals.

New Treatment of an Old Theme.

New variations of the old charges occur in this case. For example, it is alleged that a huge fee was allowed to an official of a bank to which the Judge's father was heavily indebted, and that bankruptcy funds were arbitrarily removed from one bank and transferred to another, and that this action coincided with a loan from the second bank to the Judge's father. Subsequently, the second bank failed. In the handling of some of these loans, there is evidence indicating violations of the banking laws.

It is alleged—apparently without contradiction—that a Referee also acted as receiver in a number of cases, accepting fees in both capacities. One man who was favored with a large number of lucrative trusteeships was afterward removed, following an inspection of his accounts by Department of Justice examiners, and the filing of a petition by the United States District Attorney alleging serious irregularities.

Climaxing these more or less characteristic charges, are others, novel in character, which relate still more directly to the personal character and conduct of Judge Anderson. Among them is the charge that he cashed Government pay vouchers issued to his Negro messenger, and withheld part of the proceeds. Another is the charge that he instructed the Clerk of the Court to withhold court records from the inspection of Department of Justice examiners.

In addition to all this, it is known that the House subcommittee contemplates a thorough inquiry into circumstances surrounding the issuance of a warrant charging a former business associate of the Judge with a violation of the Mann Act. Subsequently the warrant was dismissed by the United States Commissioner, and the man against whom it had been issued purchased a large block of stock owned by the Anderson family.

Considering all the charges, the hearings scheduled for next month may be expected to produce an extraordinary display of fireworks. Judge Anderson has made an emphatic general denial of all the accusations that affect him personally, and has denied some of them in detail. He is a fighter, possesses many engaging personal traits, and is entrenched behind a local political machine that is one of the most formidable of its size in the United States. He is a Republican, but Democratic and Republican leaders have joined in defending him.

La Guardia Is Chief Accuser.

On the other hand, his chief accuser is the redoubtable Fiorello La Guardia, Progressive Republican Congressman from New York City, who provoked the investigation which led to the resignation of Judge Winslow. La Guardia is a relentless prosecutor, and he is a member of the subcommittee appointed to investigate Judge Anderson's conduct. Another member is Representative Hatton Sumners of Texas, who took a leading part in the impeachment of Judge English and the investigation of Judge Winslow. Representative Hickey of Indiana, also a veteran of the English case, is chairman, and the remaining members are Representatives Sparks of Kansas, and Browning of Tennessee—the latter a recognized partisan of the Judge.

Heading the committee's staff of investigators, who are charged with the actual work of digging up the evidence and preparing it for presentation, is "Uncle Sam's star manhunter"—Edward E. Conroy, normally in charge of the St. Louis office of the Department of Justice's Bureau of Investigation, and celebrated, among other feats, for his capture of the notorious De Autremont twins, train robbers and murderers. The committee "borrowed" him for the present occasion, just as similar committees borrowed him in the investigations of Judge English, Judge Winslow and Judge Moscowitz. Conroy never discusses investigations while they are in progress, but nobody aware of his record doubts that the present inquiry has been thorough.

The case is full of dynamic factors and powerful personalities, and the atmosphere surrounding it is surcharged with bitter antagonisms. Among the Judge's accusers, for example, is the United States District Attorney of his district. Several of the leading members of the Shelby County bar will be called as witnesses.

History of the Case.

Judge Anderson was born 51 years ago in Michigan, but removed to Memphis with his parents at the age of 10. His father, Seneca B. Anderson, entered the lumber business here with Claude J. Tully, who arrived from Michigan at about the same time. They built the Anderson-Tully Lumber Co. to great proportions, each becoming very wealthy. The eventual disruption of the firm, and the estrangement of the families, constitutes one of the tragic elements which enters into the present case.

After receiving an extended legal education Harry B. Anderson practiced law and entered politics, temporarily leaving the Republican party in 1912 to follow Theodore Roosevelt. During the war he was attached to the Twenty-sixth (New England) Division as Judge Advocate, where he formed friendships that are credited with influencing his subsequent elevation to the Federal bench. It is said that William M. Butler, former Massachusetts Senator, friend of President Coolidge, and ex-chairman of the Republican National Committee, prevailed on the President to appoint him. Meantime, he had served two years as Referee in Bankruptcy in his present district—a circumstance now advanced by his accusers as an argument that he should have been thoroughly familiar with that department of the court's duties. There was some opposition to his confirmation in 1925, but the Senate Judiciary Committee unanimously approved the nomination.

An interesting political situation prevails in Memphis and the surrounding territory. Edward H. Crump, once ousted as Mayor of Memphis, still reigns undisputed as the Democratic boss of Shelby County. Most of the Republican voters are Negroes, and they are dominated politically by Bob Church, one of the most astute political leaders of his race in the South. In local campaigns, it is notorious that Crump and Church "understand each other" perfectly, although each permits his followers to vote their respective party tickets in national elections.

Prior to last year factional fights occurred in the State between the Crump organization and that headed by former Senator Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell, capitalist. The Lea-Caldwell interests own three large Tennessee newspapers, including the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. Recently the two factions have made peace, and at present they control Democratic politics in the State with an iron hand.

Church, as Republican boss, is credited with having first advanced Judge Anderson's name for appointment to the bench. In the present instance, Crump's Democratic machine and the Lea-Caldwell Democratic newspapers apparently are prepared for a last-ditch fight to keep him on the bench. It is a novel situation, such as occurs when politics is managed on both sides by "practical" men.

Many Trusteeships for Two Men.

One of Judge Anderson's first judicial acts was to name Charles H. King as Referee in Bankruptcy. There is another Referee, but his name has not figured in any of the charges. In appointing trustees to administer bankrupt estates, King showed a liking to two men—Cullen H. Elliote and F. M. Robertson. Elliote is said to have received about 30 such appointments, and Robertson a slightly smaller number. They have received many thousands of dollars in fees and allowances.

In 1927 Attorney-General Sargent appointed Arthur Brode, Memphis lawyer, to the post of Assistant United States Attorney in this district. Brode had been involved in various professional difficulties, and the local bar association objected strenuously to the appointment. Judge Anderson, however, gave Brode an emphatic indorsement.

Serious differences developed between Brode and his immediate superior, District Attorney Lindsay Phillips, and early in 1929 Brode resigned. Almost immediately he acquired a large practice representing persons charged with violating the Federal prohibition laws. His success in obtaining acquittals or light sentences in Judge Anderson's court attracted much attention, thus further enhancing his practice.

District Attorney Phillips in May of last year wrote a letter to Attorney-General Mitchell complaining against Judge Anderson's disposition of liquor cases, and calling his attention to certain other matters in connection with the court. At about the same time Department of Justice examiners, making their routine inspection of the Referee's office, reported to Mitchell that the accounts were in bad condition. It was pointed out, in this connection, that in none of the numerous bankruptcy cases which had passed through the Referee's hands, had a single one been submitted to the District Attorney for action under the criminal statutes.

When Department of Justice agents attempted to expand their investigation of bankruptcy affairs, they learned that Judge An-

Liberty's Position in the Illinois Race.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LIBERTY MAGAZINE advances a purely political defense of Ruth Hanna McCormick's evasion of the prohibition issue in her senatorial campaign over in Illinois. It also indorses her position when she says that she, a dry, "will be guided in her future stand by the Illinois referendum on prohibition." The referendum, of course, was offered to give Mrs. McCormick an "out" on this issue, which is becoming more difficult each month for candidates to side-step.

The Liberty editorial, deploring the candidacy of a sincere dry Republican, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, implies that all dry voters of that party should desert their cause and vote for Mrs. McCormick. It blames the Anti-Saloon League for thus attempting to teach a lesson to those who will not obey its dictates by causing a defection of dry votes from Mrs. McCormick which might encompass her defeat. It is, in reality, an appeal for party regularity, regardless of anything else.

Liberty itself, like the Chicago Tribune, is opposed to prohibition, but it defends a dry candidate, who would think so little of personal honest convictions that they would be abandoned overnight on the result of a referendum. This is proof that partisanship goes deeper in some quarters than a desire to stop the many wrongs that are being perpetrated under the holy name of prohibition, which include murdering a woman in her home not far from Chicago by reported drunken prohibition raiders.

Wickersham's Cat-o'-Nine-Tails.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF the cat-o'-nine tails is all Wickersham can think of for the present great wave of crime, he and his commission are discredited before their report (long overdue) is received by the public.

Prohibition put us back 300 years and this recommendation will put us back beyond the Roman era. No Roman citizen could be either scourged or put to death, no matter what his crime. The severest penalty which could be inflicted was exile and confiscation of property. And we call them pagans.

Favors a Machinery Tax.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN your editorial discussion of the question, "Will the Machine Commit Suicide?" in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch you conclude a long and interesting argument on the final outcome of labor-saving machinery by declaring that "some way will have to be found to distribute the benefits among the many if our present industrial and social order is to live." This is what seems to puzzle everybody, but so far nobody has been able to see a way out of the woods.

It may be of interest to learn that there is to be found in the pages of the September issue of a modest little eight-page community paper published in Louisville, Ky., called the Portland Civic News, a "remedy" for unemployment that is different from anything so far seen in print, and that may in a measure meet the questionings of those who are seeking a solution of this serious problem.

The periodical referred to is published by a civic club made up of men and women who work for a living—mostly among machinery—and who do not belong to the writing fraternity. It is for this reason the "remedy" suggested may be worth some outside publicity.

The remedy offered is to tax all labor-saving machinery on the principle of protection that lays a tariff on importations from abroad. As set out in this community paper, the primary purpose of this tax would be to secure a fund to finance the unemployment insurance that will inevitably have to be adopted to take care of the human element thrown out of employment by the advent of machinery.

Those who sponsor this new idea say there is no intention on their part to cut out or even to discourage the use of labor-saving machinery. That is something that has come to stay and will go on increasing from year to year. What they want to do is to make the owners of such machinery who are reaping big profits by its use, divide those profits with the work people who have been displaced by machinery and who must live. The application of the principle of protection would operate in this instance more directly and unerringly than it does today as a tariff on imported goods, and for that reason would afford more real protection to those whom it would seek to benefit.

There is one point made by the writer in this amateur paper on which I think everyone can agree: At the present moment the use of labor-saving machinery is a greater menace to labor in America than all the so-called underpaid workmen in Europe, and conditions are growing worse, not better. Then why not put a tax, tariff or royalty on that sort of machinery or its products?

CORRUPT PRACTICES IN PRIMARIES.

If the Democrats of North Carolina test in court the legal right of the Senate to investigate campaign expenditures, as now seems probable, it will raise and possibly settle controversial questions on the subject of the Senate's power to inquire into facts and records concerning candidates for the Senate before election. It will emphasize the duty of Congress to adopt legislation regulating campaign expenditures of candidates in primary campaigns.

No one questions the right of the Senate or House to be the judge of the qualifications of members. That is a clear constitutional right, and there follows from it that either body can obtain all the facts and records of candidates bearing on the question of qualification after the election of the candidate. There is no doubt of the power of the Senate to obtain facts by investigation for the purpose of information bearing on legislation. There is no bill now pending in the Senate touching campaign expenditures in the primaries, but the Senate could plead that regardless of any pending plan of legislation it is justified in obtaining the information in advance. Probably that will be the crux of the defense of the Senate in the event that a suit is brought in court.

The Senate has definitely decided, in the cases of Vare of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois, that it has the power to investigate primary campaign expenditures after the election in order to determine the qualifications of a candidate. In fact, in the case of Smith, it obtained information before the election.

Strong objections are urged to pre-election investigation into primary expenditures on the ground that it is an interference with the campaign for election, and that a dominant party in Congress by following this policy might attempt to bring about the defeat of a candidate of the opposing party by merely vexatious inquiries. The argument is that the Senate can obtain after election all the information it needs to decide the question of qualification. Of course, the voters of a state ought to know whether or not the candidate for the Senate makes excessive expenditures for primary nomination, in order that they may determine the fitness of a candidate. But this information in advance of the election concerns only the voters, and not the Senate.

We do not doubt the power of the Senate to order an investigation at any time of primary elections, since the Constitution gives Congress the power to alter state legislation touching the holding of primary elections of candidates for Congress. The whole controversy, however, emphasizes the necessity of a law specifically limiting and regulating the amount of money that may be expended in a primary election.

In 1921 the United States Supreme Court, in the Newberry case, declared unconstitutional those sections of the corrupt practices act of 1910 covering primary expenditures. The vote was 5 to 4. But one of the majority of the bench, Justice McKenna, reserved opinion as to whether a Federal law on primary expenditures would be constitutional if enacted after the adoption of the seventeenth amendment for popular elections of Senators in 1913. This leaves the question of unconstitutionality in grave doubt. The decision of the court might be different under the 1913 amendment.

Under this ruling so far the Senate has contented itself with denying a seat to candidates who have expended excessive amounts in campaigns for either primary or regular elections. It has definitely decided on that policy. It has denounced large expenditure as corrupt and tending to degrade the Senate. What expenditure is excessive? What amount of money spent for nomination or election lowers the dignity of the Senate and promotes corruption? The Senate has never defined the limit. It has merely judged what it regards as excessive, after the money had been spent and the candidate had been elected.

How much better it would be if Congress by legislation fixed a limit for expenditures in primary elections. By thus defining sound public policy in elections by fixing a limit on campaign funds to be expended in primaries by any candidate, candidates would know how much they could legitimately and properly expend, and the people would be warned against candidates who attempted to buy nominations for congressional office.

Congress has fixed the maximum of legal expenditures in election for the Senate and House. The maximum of legal expenditures in the primaries ought to be fixed. The case of Mrs. McCormick, candidate for the Senate in Illinois, whose primary expenditures have been enormous, is a good point to start the work of legislation. A new statute based upon the popular election of Senators might be put up to the Supreme Court and, if necessary, a constitutional amendment submitted.

The Senate and the House will then have definite ground upon which to pass a legal judgment on the qualifications of candidates, instead of as at present indulging in merely a moral judgment without a definite law on which to base action.

Corrupt practices in primary elections should not be immoral only, but illegal.

A HYMN TO AMERICAN QUANTITY.

Mr. Hoover in the course of his King's Mountain address hymned bigger and better America in a jubilant statistical vein hitherto heard chiefly from eloquent keynoters at conventions of incumbents. "The most advanced other country of Europe" (charitably nameless) shows up very shabbily on the President's score card. In college attendance the United States has a walkaway, 6½ to 1; in homes owned the score is U. S. 2, Europe 1; in electricity burned up, 4 to 1; in radio sets, 4 to 1; in autos, 7 to 1. Only in public charges does Europe surpass us, 20 to 1. Incidentally, Mr. Hoover omitted mention of that field in which our leadership is perhaps the most pronounced—crime.

In applying the great American yardstick to national accomplishment, Mr. Hoover tacitly indorses quantity as against quality. Our sculptors doubtless chip more cubic yards of marble per annum than did the ancient Greeks, but it was the quality of their work that made Greek art endure. Our college students, laid end to end, would make an impressive spectacle, but they might not measure knee-high to poor old Europe's entry, one Einstein. We have more dial telephones than the Patagonians, more salad forks than the Zulus, more washing machines than the Igorotes. But geography, ancestry and climate have all been on our side.

Such impressive statistics as Mr. Hoover quoted have been known to sway impressionable voters in an election year. But other nations, hearing our chief executive boast thus of material well-being, will accept the enticing figures merely as more of that irritating American braggery.

ANOTHER POWER TRUST VICTORY.

A ruling by Attorney-General Mitchell that a navigable stream may be considered "non-navigable" if wanted for private hydro-electric development, is the latest victory scored by the Power Trust in its campaign to tie up water power sites. The ruling was made in connection with an application of the Appalachian Electric Power Co., a subsidiary of the Electric Bond & Share Co., for "minor" licenses on the New River in Virginia and West Virginia. According to the Popular Government League, if such licenses are granted "a precedent will be set which will destroy national control over more than 90 per cent of our power sites, including licenses now issued and those to come." The league is advised "by able attorneys who aided in drafting the power act that Mitchell's opinion negates the very purpose of the act, flouts the plain statement of Congress and the people and ditches 25 years of conservation effort."

The advantage to power companies under the ruling is that, by receiving "minor" licenses on so-called non-navigable streams, they escape the rigid accounting supervision of the Federal Power Commission, are enabled to issue securities of such character as are not now permitted and avoid the recapture provision by which the public is authorized to buy back the development after 50 years has elapsed. If the New River "minor" licenses are granted, the Power Commission will be compelled to grant such licenses to power developments on similar rivers. The Alabama Power Co. has already made application to have its license changed to conform to Mitchell's ruling.

It is argued by the opponents of the Mitchell ruling that the term "navigability" is carefully defined in the Federal water power act, and that no discretion is left with the Power Commission on that point. Moreover, it is pointed out that for 150 years the New River has been declared navigable in Federal and state legislation. The Popular Government League thinks the final decision on the Mitchell ruling should be left to the new Federal Power Commission, which will take office when Congress confirms Mr. Hoover's nominations. However, Secretary Bonner of the present commission is urging an immediate meeting of the present commission to pass on the Appalachian company's application.

The incident is a fresh illustration of the steady encroachment of the Power Trust upon the greatest natural resource left in this country, and the necessity for a mobilization of public opinion to the end that proper protection be thrown around our water power sites. This public opinion must combat not only the Power Trust but public officials who are apparently unable to resist its importunities.

SUCCESS OF THE "BREATHING MACHINE."

Miss Frances McGann, a Chicago nurse, owes her life to an ingenious new device, the Drinker respirator, which for more than 30 days has kept her lungs functioning after infantile paralysis had left the respiratory muscles useless. Physicians now think she will recover, for muscular power is gradually returning as the effects of the disease wear off.

The respirator is a large box in which the patient lies, only the head projecting. It provides the equivalent of natural breathing by lowering the pressure on the interior, whereupon air passes from outside through the respiratory organs into the lungs. By motors and pumps, the rate of respiration, the temperature and moisture are controlled. The pulmotor, useful for inducing artificial breathing over short periods, could never be employed for so long as in this case, for the shooting in of artificial air currents would damage the lung tissue and do other harm.

The respirator's success in this instance, and in several others, marks the advent of a new method in saving lives. Only a few of the breathing machines have been put in use, but there will be a demand for them from hospitals after this conspicuous success. Adding them to hospital equipment will be costly, but will be necessary in the unending fight against disease.

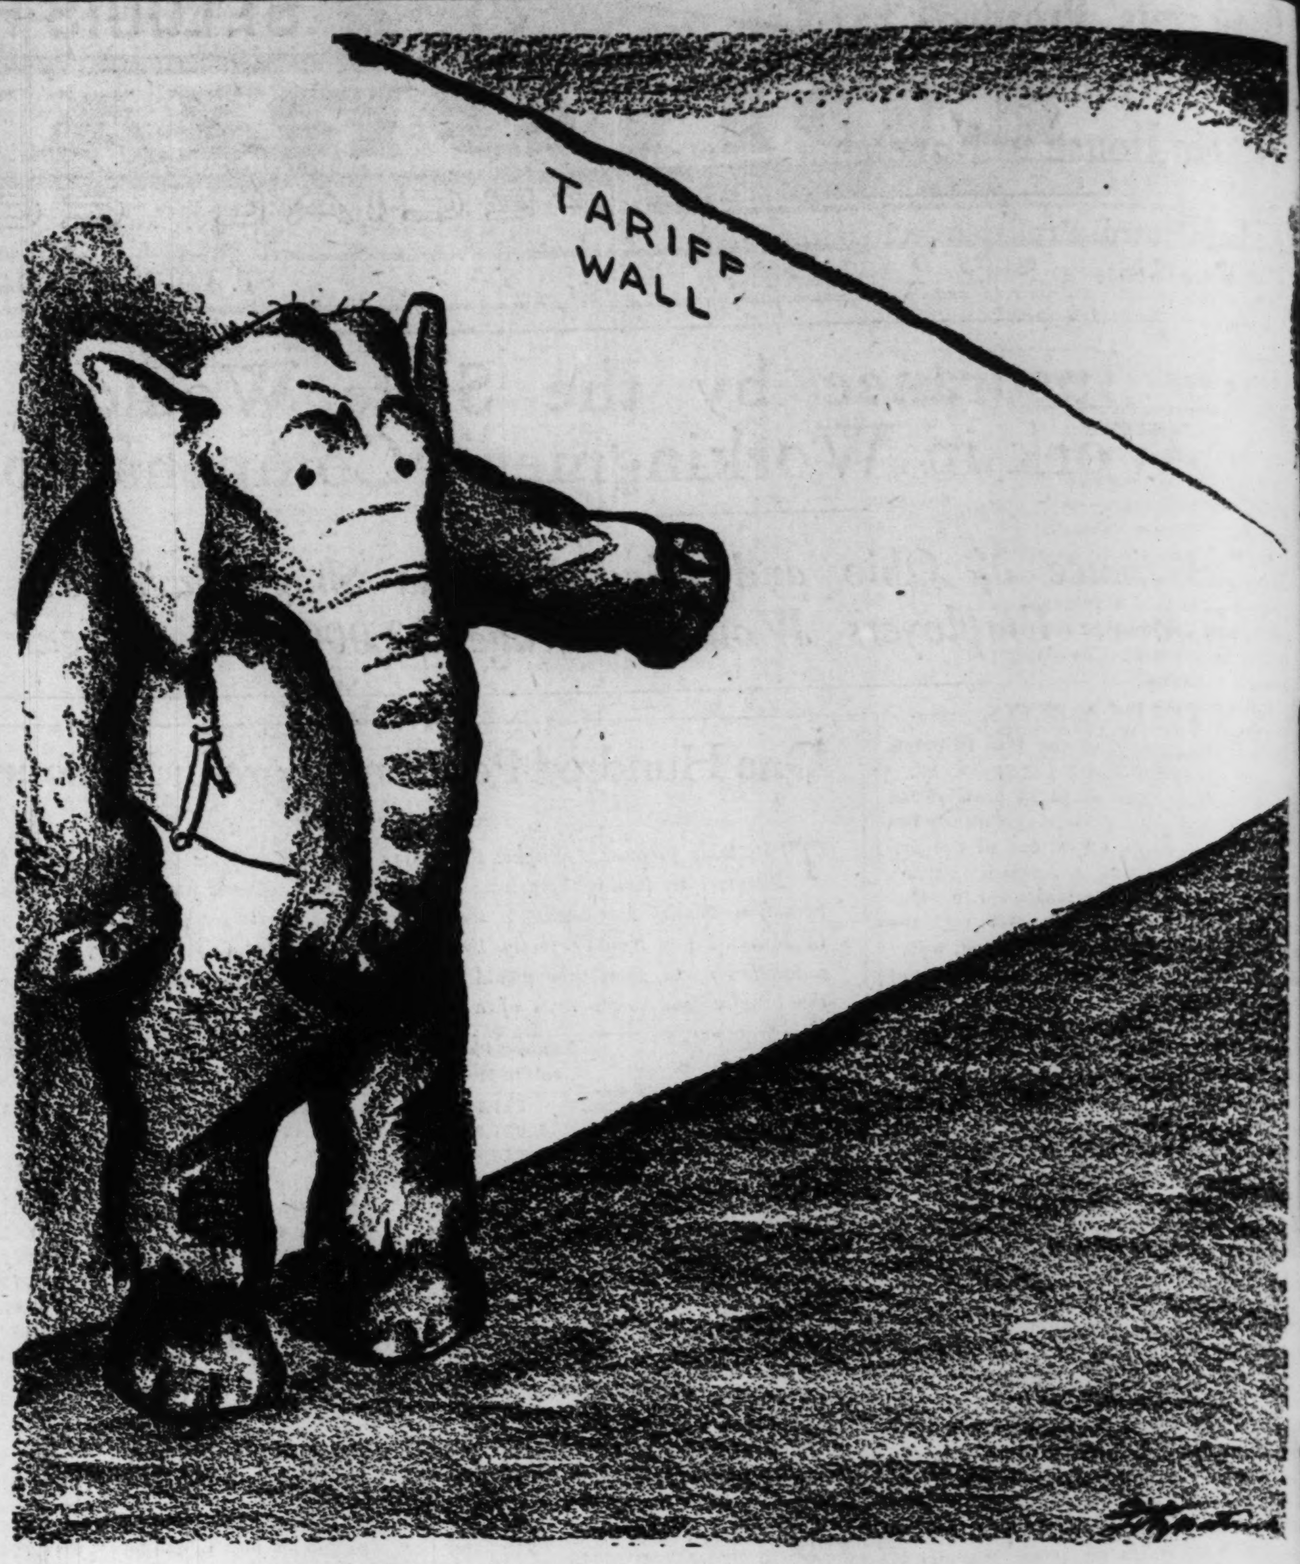
ARCHEOLOGICALLY SPEAKING.

What a season this is for archeological discoveries. Princeton announces the discovery of dinosaur eggs 75,000,000 years old in Montana, and New Jersey reports finding a gigantic tooth in an excavation. A Harvard expedition uncovers extensive fossil deposits in Wyoming, including bones of the three-toed horse, mesohippus; a necklace of centipede joints, 20,000 years old, appears in a Nevada gypsum cave, and from Binghamton, N. Y., comes word of an Iroquois feast pit, a dinner scene of 1500 years ago. Arizona yields ruins suspected to be those of "one of the gold-built fabled Seven Cities of Cibola" and a Utah cliff dwelling gives up a prehistoric surgical kit dating back to the basket weavers. Two weird stone carved statues have cropped out in Arkansas. Upper Cretaceous times, oligocene deposits, promerycocoerus skeletons, rhinoceros caenopus, everywhere it seems but in Missouri. No wonder the census dropped us a notch. A state can't expect to get ahead without a prehistoric monster or two. Let's get our spades and go archeological. Maybe we can scratch around and turn up something—maybe even a political party.



"PROSPERITY? JUST AROUND THE CORNER."

The Humility of Scientists

Although scientists have opened new worlds and made modern progress possible, they no longer claim infallibility; instead, as their achievements increase, their humility grows; research in world of atom and electron is bewildering, even to investigators; doubts replace dogma, but search for truth continues relentlessly.

From the Manchester Guardian.

THE magnificent assurance that characterized nineteenth century science is completely absent from meetings of the British Association today. We no longer expect a counterpart of Prof. Tyndall to rise up and tell us, with authority and no nonsense, just where we are all wrong and science, spoken of as a sort of abstract entity, all right. Indeed, science in that sense can no longer be said to exist. The high priesthood reciting the law, the privileged intermediaries explaining the mysteries of life to the common man, have vanished.

Instead, we find innumerable scientists, each plodding along at his own specialized task, telling us, when we are prepared to listen, that they find the world a much odder place than even they had imagined, that they need a special language and a great deal of mathematics to describe it, and that, even then, they are no nearer to explaining it. They no longer promise us the truth; indeed, they hesitate to generalize at all, and they make no pretense that they can speak with the kind of certainty about fundamental problems that made Huxley a popular writer if not a great scientist.

Thus Prof. Brewer's presidential address was mainly an interesting, rather technical discussion of the morphology of plants; he discoursed upon the comparative shapes of trees and elephants and quoted Lamarck. But he ventured no comment on the Lamarckian theory of evolution, and though he referred to the recent national acquisition of Darwin's home and described this year as a "nodal point in the personal history of evolution," he did not explain to what point biologists had reached in the history of evolutionary theory. He made no prophecies on behalf of science, but he reminded us that Sir William Crookes, when the British Association last met at Bristol, had foretold a world wheat shortage by 1931, and then found good reason to lay the specter he had raised.

Scientists have grown humble; they no longer preach a religion, they seldom prophesy and they do not even promise that the command over nature which they offer will necessarily make us happier.

The new humility of scientists is all the more remarkable because, to a superficial view, their success has been greater than their most optimistic nineteenth century predecessors dared to hope. If their views upon God and immortality no longer find a place in the daily papers, the applied results of their work transform the world. To have made possible Atlantic flights, Ford cars and the miracle of wireless communication might be a legitimate cause of boasting. And perhaps they would boast more were it not now clear that men are as likely to use science to destroy civilization as to build with it an ordered and prosperous community.

But the scientists have done much more than lay the foundations for mechanical progress. They have proceeded to astonishing lengths in dissolving the world of common sense; they have not only created a fantastic universe of infinitely small electrons gyrating at an inconceivable speed, but they have actually convinced ordinary persons of its credibility. That clearly is their greatest achievement.

We accept their tales of astounding speed and infinite distance without a murmur; they measure the metal in a star, and we politely admit their skill; they tell us that the solid tables and chairs we use are really composed of dancing points of electricity, and that the whole lot of us, chairs, tables, Aldermen, Bishops, dowagers and the rest, are flying through space at the undignified speed of 19 miles a second. We agree.

And then we are informed that if we prefer to say that some other part of the universe is moving and that we are standing still, we shall be equally correct! We agree again, only remarking that the achievements of modern science are really very surprising. And yet with all this to their credit, the modern scientists are humble.

The fact is that the deeper the scientists penetrate the more bewildered they become. The current optimism of the Darwinian days is gone, in part at least, because the Darwinians have lost their faith. They were once a fighting sect; they cleared away a mass of superstition and accomplished a great educational feat. But, that battle won, they have learned to doubt their own infallibility.

It is the scientists themselves who have disillusioned their followers. Once enthusiasts anticipated, in the not too far distance, a government by scientific experts, eugenists to arrange our marriages and psychologists to make our laws. But the scientists have abdicated that throne before it was offered them. They do not know, and, what is more alarming, they no longer assert that they can ever know. The older generation was brought up on a mechanistic theory, and though the wiser among them remembered that they were merely working upon a hypothesis which produced useful results, it was easy for the rasher spirits to champion a crude materialism as the final truth.

Huxley, of course, avoided that dogma, but he did not doubt that in scientific method he held the key to the universe. When he warned the man of science to be humble as a child if he would discover truth, he was merely temporarily mindful that truth is complicated, mistakes easy and real progress slow. He was not disturbed by a notion that diligent search in the laboratory would not some day find the truth. But that is where the scientists are today. They see no limits to empirical discovery, but they see no reason to believe that they will ever make more than empirical discoveries.

There is one danger in this scientific realization of the limitations of science. The scientists have led the battle against superstition. Ever since the seventeenth century they have been teaching us to think; they have banished ignorance even when they have been overconfident about finding truth. Now that they have suspended judgment and admitted doubt, their old enemy has its chance again. For it is much easier to fight with faith, even though ill-founded, than in a condition of honest doubt.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.

"THE Comptroller-General of the United States rules"—it's a familiar phrase in Washington. And one that often means financial disappointment to some one.

The disappointed one may be a Cabinet officer who asked permission to send Government money for newspapers and was refused. Or it may be some lowly Government employe who has been paid too much money and must make a refund. But whether he be a Cabinet officer or a puncher in the Census Bureau, it is the same. For when "the Comptroller-General of the United States rules" there is nothing to do but obey.

This gentleman probably carries the most nearly absolute authority of anyone in Washington, excepting the President.

IN an office on the corner of Fifth and F streets this "czar" presides. His name is J. Raymond McCarl. Clean-shaven, under average height, even-tempered and mild-mannered, he knows how to fight and smile at the same time. A thorough student of his job, he is found early at his desk and is late to leave it. He never is too busy to talk things over.

McCarl is the auditor of the nation. Congress made his authority as absolute as it possibly could. President Harding appointed him to the job in 1921—the first man to hold such a post—and his term is for a 15-year period. In 1936, when it expires, he must look for another job. He cannot be reappointed. He is responsible to no one but Congress.

Upon McCarl's shoulders rests responsibility for seeing that Uncle Sam pays just what he owes and not a cent more, to see that the money is refunded, if any overpayments are made, and to see that appropriations are properly and legally expended.

THEN, too, the settlement and adjustment of claims for or against the United States are in his control. In a word, he is the man charged with the settlement of all "accounts whatever" in which the Federal Government is concerned.

McCarl made his appearance in Washington when he was a young man just barely out of his twenties. Senator George Norris of Nebraska brought him to the capital. He and Norris are from the same town, McCook, and his first job here was as Norris' secretary (Norris then was a member of the House).

From the start, young McCarl took a great interest in doings of Congress. So well posted did he become that he was drafted by the Republicans to act as secretary of the National Congressional Committee. He was one of the directing heads in the victorious Republican congressional fight of 1920. Harding remembered him when he became President, and shortly after Congress passed the budget law, he named McCarl as the first Comptroller-General.

Democrats' Prospects Excellent For Breaking Republican Grip On House in November Election

By CHARLES G. ROSS,

Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Senatorial contests of extraordinary interest and importance—as in Massachusetts, Illinois, Nebraska, Colorado, Montana—are to be decided at the general elections of Nov. 4. There is also to be determined the make-up of the House of Representatives in the next (the Seventy-second) Congress.

It is axiomatic in American politics that the party in power suffers losses in the elections midway of a presidential term. In 1910, under Taft, the "off year" congressional elections changed a Republican plurality of 47 in the House into a Democratic plurality of 66, while in the Senate the Democrats, though remaining in the minority, gained 10 seats. Four years later, in the middle of Wilson's first term, the Democrats partly upset the rule by gaining five seats in the Senate, but in the House their representation was cut by 59. In 1918, at the halfway post of the second Wilson administration, the Republicans made a clean sweep by increasing their House plurality from 6 to 46 and by changing a Democratic lead of 11 in the Senate to a Republican margin of 1.

The Democrats had their innings in 1922, in Harding's term, when the Republicans, though retaining control in both branches, suffered a loss of 75 seats in the House and eight in the Senate. The Republican plurality in the House sank from 168 to 18. These results were attributed in large measure to the severe business depression of 1920-21. Again in 1926, the year of the last mid-term elections, the Democrats cut into Republican congressional strength, gaining 14 seats in the House and reducing the G. O. P. Senate plurality from 14 to one.

One Noteworthy Fact.

The records show the noteworthy fact—a fact now troubling the dreams of Republican campaign managers—that for the last half century, whenever the party holding the presidency has lost control of the House in the second year of an administration, the other party has captured the Presidency in the next succeeding election. Thus the loss of the House by the Republicans in 1910 was followed in 1912 by the election of Wilson to the presidency (though it should be remarked that this was brought about by the split in the Republican ranks) and the Republican landslide of 1918, in the middle of Wilson's second term, carried through into 1920, when Harding was elected.

Predictions regarding 1932 are not yet in order, but this much is certain: the Democrats this year will make heavy inroads upon the Republican ranks in both houses of Congress. The axiom that the party in power is fated to suffer reverses at a mid-term election will hold abundantly true. Unless the political prophets on both sides of the fence are grievously in error, there will be this year not only the normal recession from the high tide of the dominant party's strength in a presidential year, but losses occasioned by the business depression with its attendant unemployment, by dissatisfaction with the high tariff bill, by the decline of farm prices and by other factors influencing large bodies of voters.

In the Senate, however, the Republican loss, barring a greater landslide than anybody expects, will not be sufficient to give the Democrats control. The Senate now consists of 56 Republicans, real and nominal; 39 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. The Democrats need 10 more to make a majority. Not even the most enthusiastic of the Democratic prophets are claiming a gain of that size. The national party managers do believe, and with good ground, that they will make a net gain of five or six. This result, while permitting the Senate again to be organized with Republican committee chairmen and a Republican President pro tempore, will strengthen the control over legislation which is already enjoyed by the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans whenever they make common cause. The balance of power will be more firmly in the hands of the insurgents, and the troubles of the administration forces will be correspondingly increased.

Even if Gain Is Small.

Say the Democrats gain only five seats. They will then have 44 members and the Republicans 51. This means that only five votes from the insurgent bloc will be needed to make a coalition majority—and there are 12 to 15 Republicans, in addition to the Farmer-Labor member, whose voting records are shot through with insurgency. A gain of only five Democratic seats would produce a condition hardly less difficult for the administration than that which obtained in the Seventieth Congress (1927-29), when the count stood 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite.

Republican leaders, however, are reconciled to the holding of a mere paper majority in the Senate. What is causing them grave alarm as election day draws near is the possibility—seen by some prophets as a probability—that the Democrats will win control of the House. A month ago hardly anybody believed that any such result was in the cards. Both Democratic and Republican managers thought the present Republican majority of 105 was too great to be overcome. The Democrats were claiming 40 or 45 new seats, instead of the 53 needed to reverse the G. O. P. majority, and the Republicans professed confidence that their losses would not exceed 30.

Both sides are now singing a different tune. Democrats in charge of national headquarters here have raised their prediction to 63 or 65 new seats, while the Republican managers, though expressing the traditional pre-election confidence, will tell you privately that their previous estimates of losses have had to be revised upward.

House Cleaning in Prospect.

Unless all signs are faulty, the Democrats will either actually control the next House, which will mean the election of Representative John Garner of Texas as Speaker and the reorganization of committees with Democratic chairmen, or they will come so close to control that the insurgent group, composed mainly of Wisconsin Republicans, will hold a balance of power comparable to that held by their fellow progressives in the Senate.

In either event, the tight grip on legislation now enjoyed by the Longworth-Tilson-Snell triumvirate—a grip as tight and as ruthlessly exercised as that of "Czar" Cannon in his palmy days—will be broken. The functioning of the present despotism is only made possible by the top-heavy character of the Republican majority. If that majority is reduced as it seems fated to be reduced in the coming elections, the Administration can no longer look to the House to do its bidding.

A long series of interesting possibilities are opened up. For one thing, a House controlled by the Democrats or by a coalition of Democrats and independent Republicans might pass a farm debenture bill. For another, it might pass a bill or bills reducing specific items in the Hawley-Smoot bill—the aluminum tariff, for example. The Senate has already twice voted for debentures and it would probably support the House in efforts to reduce the tariff. A House of the sort which is being ruefully envisaged by the Republican campaign managers might pass the Norris bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals and in all likelihood it would bring the Norris "lame-duck" amendment, which the Senate repeatedly has approved by large majorities, out of the oblivion to which the present leadership has consigned it.

Lame-Duck Congress.

But this is to be noted: the Congress which will be chosen at the polls next month will not take office until March, 1931, and, unless a special session is called by the President, it will not meet until December, 1931—13 months after its election. That is the outmoded condition which the Norris amendment is designed to cure. The amendment sleeps, and so, from December, 1930, to March, 1931, the present Congress, though many of its members will have been repudiated by the voters, will continue to make laws for the people. It is quite conceivable that in this coming "lame-duck" session, efforts will be made to close the door against anticipated action by the new Congress. No prescience is required to see that the power interests would like to have the Muscle Shoals problem settled along the lines favored by the administration; settled, that is, in favor of private ownership. The "lame-duck" session will bear watching.

Meantime the election is to be held. Senators are to be chosen in 34 states, Representatives in all the states. Seldom has there been such a wealth of significant material for the political commentator. Here is a straight-out wet and dry contest; here is a battle in which a Republican is seeking Democratic support and a Democrat is angling for Republican votes; here is a contest among two women and a man; here is a New England state, Coolidge's own, which seems about to have two Democratic Senators for the first time since the organization of the Republican party. And, in general, making all due allowance for local issues, here is a national referendum on the acts and omissions of the present Republican administration.

High Lights by States.

Some of the high lights by states:

Arkansas will, of course, return Senator Joe T. Robinson, the minority leader.

Colorado, normally a Republican State, is the scene of a hot contest between Edward P. Costigan (Dem.) and George H. Shaw (Rep.) for the Senate. The issues are economic. Costigan is one of the best known liberals in the country. As a tariff commissioner, by appointment of President Wilson, he was one of the group which handed President Coolidge an unwanted report recommending a reduction in the sugar duty. Shaw has been counsel for the Doherty public utility interest in Colorado. On the strength of lugubrious reports brought back from Colorado by Republican observers, Costigan is conceded an excellent chance to win.

Delaware is likewise a doubtful State. The candidates for the Senate are former Senator Thomas F. Bayard (Dem.) and the incumbent, Daniel O. Hastings (Rep.) Bayard is wet and Hastings dry. With the du Pont influence back of him, Bayard appears to have an even chance or better. All Democratic estimates of gains list Bayard as a virtual certainty.

Idaho at this distance is interesting politically for the sole reason that it will send back Senator Borah.

Illinois.—What a battle it is providing; No contest has excited greater interest nationally than that between former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, wet Democrat, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, dry-wet Republican. Will the candidacy of Mrs. Lottie O'Neill, dry Republican, running as an independent—will this and other handicaps suffered by Mrs. McCormick prove sufficient to thwart her ambition to be the first woman elected to the United States Senate? Democrats at national headquarters are saying with a show of great confidence that the famous Jim Ham has the Senatorship in the bag. They are banking heavily on the demonstrated wetness of Illinois. Republican leaders assert the normal Republican majority in the State is too big to be surmounted. But they are worried. The Democrats expect to gain five or six representatives in Illinois.

Iowa will elect a Republican, L. J. Dickinson, now a member of the House, to the Senate to succeed the incumbent Democrat, Daniel F. Steck, who is running for re-election. Steck came in on a fluke. Democratic forecasters all subtract him when they compute the net gain in the Senate. They are claiming, the addition of one Representative from Iowa.

Kansas—Both the sitting Republican Senators, Arthur Capper and Henry J. Allen, are virtually certain to be returned, the former for the long and the latter for the short term. The Democratic candidates, respectively, are former Gov. Jonathan M. Davis and George McGill. Capper's election is conceded by the Democratic managers here, but they profess hope that Allen will be downed. The hope manifestly is of the faintest. The Democrats expect to pick up one additional House member from Kansas—which would be a considerable achievement.

Kentucky — John M. Robsion (Rep.), now serving negatively as the junior Senator from Kentucky, has as his Democratic opponent for the long term Judge M. M. Logan, a campaigner of parts. A rift in the Republican ranks is helping Logan. Robsion has invoked the Raskob (meaning the religious) issue. The race looks extremely close. There are now in the House from Kentucky, as a result of the 1928 landslide, three Democrats and eight Republicans. The Democrats claim that these figures will be reversed.

Massachusetts is fighting ground between the wets and drys, the former represented by the Democratic senatorial candidate, Marcus A. Coolidge, and the latter by the Republican candidate, former National Committeeman William M. Butler. Except that they divide on the prohibition issue, the two seem to be cut from much the same pattern. Coolidge's name, though he is not related to the former President, is believed to be worth thousands of votes. He is profiting, too, from the coldness toward Butler on the part of the late Senator Lodge's friends, who resent the cavalier treatment accorded Lodge by the former National Chairman at the Republican convention of 1924. But Coolidge's wetness is his great asset, and the Democrats are genuinely confident that on this issue he will swamp Butler. Massachusetts, it will be recalled, went for Smith for the Presidency. It already has one Democratic Senator, David I. Walsh. The Democrats are counting on three new House seats from Massachusetts.

In Minnesota the incumbent, Thomas D. Schall (Rep.), is running for the Senate against Einar Hoidale (Dem.), and Earnest Lundeen (Farmer-Labor). Hoidale is making a hot fight of it and must be conceded an outside chance to win. He narrowly missed winning in a race for the House seat which Walter Newton vacated to join President Hoover's secretariat. The Democrats may gain a Representative from Minnesota.

Michigan will return Senator James Couzens, Republican of independent leanings, by a thumping majority.

In Montana, Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem.), hero of the oil investigations, is facing real competition. His opponent is Albert J. Galen, Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court. Walsh is a dry, though he has announced that he would vote to submit a repealer of the eighteenth amendment if his constituents should so instruct. Galen is a wet. Both are Catholics. One of the curious features of the campaign is the support given Galen by the Ku Klux Klan because of Walsh's friendly attitude toward the World Court. As if this instance of strange political bedfellows were not enough, John J. Raskob, the wet chairman of the Democratic National Committee and an "angel" of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, has made a personal contribution of $5000 to Walsh's campaign. Messages recently received here from Senator Wheeler, Walsh's colleague, predict that Walsh will win by a sizable majority. The claim at Republican headquarters is to the exact contrary. This writer's guess, based on reports from impartial observers, is Walsh.

In North Carolina, the chances are large that Josiah W. Bailey, who defeated the veteran Simmons for the Democratic senatorial nomination, will be elected over the Republican nominee, George Pritchard. The Democrats claim that they will regain the two House seats lost in the Hoover landslide.

As for New Jersey all the prophets agree that Dwight W. Morrow, wet Republican, will defeat Alexander Simpson, wet Democrat, for the Senate. The Democrats hope to pick up a Representative or two in this State.

New Mexico, as usual, is staging a close senatorial contest, with Sam G. Bratton (Dem.) defending his seat against H. B. Holt (Rep.). The usual claims are made by both sides and the Democrats add that they will elect the Representative at large.

Though Senator George W. Norris (Rep.) is opposed in Nebraska by a Democrat of ability and high standing in the party, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, no effort is being made against Norris by national Democratic headquarters. The question is whether Hitchcock can pull enough Republican votes to offset the Democratic votes that will go to Norris. Nearly all political observers here believe that Norris, who proved his independence by campaigning for Smith in 1928, will be returned by a large majority to continue his leadership of the liberal forces in Congress. The Democrats expect to gain a couple of Representatives in Nebraska.

Ohio this year appears to be a genuinely doubtful state. There is here, as in Massachusetts, a wet and dry Senatorial fight, with the Democratic candidate, Robert J. Bulkley, carrying the wet banner and the Republican candidate, Roscoe C. McCulloch, the incumbent, the dry. The severe business and farming depression in Ohio, as well as the rising tide of wet sentiment, is helping the Democrat, whose success has been indicated in several newspaper polls. Newton D. Baker and former Gov. Cox are out strongly for Bulkley, and the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Cleveland News, the latter run by descendants of Mark Hanna, have declared for him on the wet issue. Ohio, though the mother of Republican Presidents, is a highly variable state in Senatorial and gubernatorial elections, and it is not at all impossible that this year it will veer to the Democratic side. The Republicans, at any rate, are worried over the prospect. The Democrats predict they will gain four Representatives in Ohio.

Oklahoma has a pretty fight between the blind former Senator Thomas P. Gore (Dem.) and Senator W. B. Pine (Rep.). Pine, who often trains with the insurgents in the Senate, appears to be making his campaign on the Democratic platform. Gore, a witty phrase-maker, has coined the slogan for Mr. Hoover: "He kept us out of work." As for Mr. Hoover's campaign promises, says Gore, "he carried out every one of them—on a stretcher." The Democratic managers are counting heavily on Gore, and there is scant enthusiasm at Republican headquarters when Pine's name is mentioned. A Democratic gain of two House seats appears probable.

In Pennsylvania, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis (Rep.), will be elected to the Senate over Sedgwick Kistler (Dem.). The real interest here is in the fight over the governorship between Gifford Pinchot (Rep.), and John M. Hemphill (Dem.). Pinchot is dry and Hemphill wet. Numerous Republican stalwarts, including Gen. W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad, have bolted Pinchot, Atterbury resigning as national Republican committeeman for that purpose. There is much more in this fight against Pinchot than dislike of his dry views. Senator Borah has suggested a senatorial investigation to determine whether "great public utilities" are using money to defeat Pinchot because of his economic liberalism. The Democrats forecast a gain of five seats in the House from Pennsylvania.

Two rich men, former Senator Peter G. Gerry (Dem.), and Senator Jesse H. Metcalf (Rep.), are engaged in a battle royal in the pocket borough of Rhode Island. Gerry is wet. Metcalf has a dry record, but has announced he will be guided by a State referendum. A bad industrial situation, like that in Massachusetts, is working to Gerry's advantage, and the Democrats are predicting that he will win. He appears to have at least an even chance.

South Dakota presents a fight for the Senate between the incumbent, W. H. McMaster (Rep.), and Gov. W. J. Bulow (Dem.). Bulow would have a fine chance this year against a conservative Republican, but McMaster is of the other variety. Most observers, while giving Bulow a look-in, pick McMaster to win.

Tennessee will send to the Senate for the long term a distinguished and able Democrat, Representative Cordell Hull, who is running against Paul E. Devine. For the short term, the Democratic incumbent, William E. Brock, should win.

In West Virginia, former Senator M. M. Neely (Dem.) appears to have better than an even chance to defeat the Republican candidate, James E. Jones, a coal mine operator. A Democratic gain of two House seats is likely.

The senatorial contest in Wyoming is between Harry H. Schwartz (Dem.) and Robert D. Carey (Rep.). Carey is picked by the wiseacres.

In addition to the congressional gains expected by the Democrats in the above-named states, they are counting on accessions from Connecticut (1), Indiana (4 or 5), Maryland (1), Missouri (5), New York (2, including the seat now held by Mrs. Ruth Pratt), Virginia (3). These represent minimum claims. Some of the Democrats are beginning to forecast (and some of the Republicans to fear) a landslide.

A fly in the Democratic ointment is the chance that Tom Heflin, who bolted Al Smith and who is running for re-election as an independent, will come back to the Senate from Alabama. His regular Democratic opponent is John H. Bankhead. Heflin is making a furious campaign. Headquarters Democrats express confidence that he will be beaten, but recent reports have given them alarm.

Federal Judge of Western Tennessee to Face Inquiry

derson had ordered the Clerk to withhold the records. Afterward he rescinded this order, in writing.

On the basis of the examiners' reports, District Attorney Phillips presented a petition charging Elliotte with failing to make a proper accounting in 28 bankruptcy cases in which he was trustee, and asking for his removal. After some delay Judge Anderson removed him, but Referee King took no steps to submit the records to Phillips for further action, although the reports indicated that action was imperatively warranted. Legal and official circles were now pervaded with rumors of impending scandal, and a committee of Memphis lawyers visited Judge Anderson to urge that he take cognizance of conditions in the bankruptcy court. They reported getting a brusk reception.

Representative La Guardia announced to the House of Representatives on March 12, of this year, that it had again become his "unpleasant duty to file charges against a Federal Judge." He disclosed that for months he had been "in communication with patient and forbearing citizens of Memphis, Tenn., giving me information they have been furnishing to the Department of Justice." He introduced a resolution directing the department to submit forthwith to the House Judiciary Committee all information in its possession relating to conditions in Judge Anderson's court, but without waiting for further action, the department transmitted the file to the Judiciary Committee.

Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, whose record in the Senate has been independent and progressive in many respects, is nevertheless, in local politics, one of the main cogs in the Crump machine. At once he went to Judge Anderson's assistance.

He sent Attorney-General Mitchell a letter charging the department with having exceeded its constitutional authority, by investigating Judge Anderson's conduct with a view to causing his impeachment. Mitchell denied this. He said the department had confined its investigation to the Referee's office, as authorized by law.

Following the procedure established by the House when the Post-Dispatch called its attention to conditions in Judge English's court in 1925, the Judiciary Committee designated a subcommittee to make an informal investigation of the situation, with a view to determining whether there should be a further and complete inquiry, looking toward impeachment, censure or exoneration. The subcommittee met behind closed doors in April, and heard a number of witnesses.

Family Matters Enter the Case.

Among the matters brought to the committee's attention was the warrant issued in 1927 against Bart C. Tully, son and successor of Claudius J. Tully, of the Anderson-Tully Lumber Co., charging a violation of the Mann act. A feud had developed between the two families. Judge Anderson's father had suffered financial reverses through outside investments, and the Anderson stock had been offered to the Tullys for sale. After the dismissal of the warrant by the United States Commissioner, Tully purchased the stock.

The committee also listened to a charge that Judge Anderson had cashed pay vouchers issued for his Negro messenger, indorsing at least one of them with the messenger's name, and withholding part of the proceeds.

Among the receiverships considered was that of the National Cottonseed Products Corporation. T. O. Vinton, president of the Bank of Commerce & Trust Co., had been appointed receiver, and had been allowed fees for his services totaling $85,000. It was alleged that when this occurred the Judge's father was heavily in debt to the bank, and unable to meet his notes.

Through the efforts of Senator McKellar and Representative Browning, the subcommittee, of which Browning was a member, granted Judge Anderson an opportunity to appear before it privately, to answer the charges. It has since been learned that on the day prior to his appearance, a conference occurred in the Willard Hotel, in Washington, attended by a number of Tennessee Congressmen, at which Judge Anderson was allowed to study the file in his case, including the confidential reports of the Department of Justice which had been submitted to the Judiciary Committee, and thus was enabled to prepare his defense. Who took the file there has not yet been officially disclosed.

Although his statement to the subcommittee was not made public, it is known that he explained the incident of the Negro messenger by saying that he merely withheld money which the messenger had borrowed from him. He denied knowledge of any irregularities in the Referee's office, and denied that he had manipulated bankruptcy deposits to favor certain banks, or to discharge any obligation for himself or his father who had since died. He asserted that in disposing of prohibition and other cases he had acted within his proper judicial discretion. He warmly maintained that his allowance of fees had been reasonable and just.

Regarding the Bart Tully affair, Judge Anderson and his friends have pointed out repeatedly that the warrant was issued on complaint of a man who declared Tully had "stolen his wife"; and that the warrant was dismissed and the charge quashed by the Commissioner before it could come before Judge Anderson. He has denied any connection with the episode, and his friends assert that the sale of stock at that time was merely a coincidence.

The Judge is personally impressive, possesses a scholarly mind, and is an extraordinarily fluent talker. Nevertheless, the subcommittee recommended to the full Judiciary Committee, which in turn recommended to the House, that the situation demanded a thorough investigation, to the end of impeaching, censuring or exonerating him. It was then that Conroy and his assistants were detached from the Department of Justice, and put to work on the case as committee employes.

falling off, while claims against the fund have shown little change. This is due to the fact that many of the claims extend over a period of years. The fund continues to meet the expense of accidents which occurred when employment was at its peak, and suffers from loss of premium while employment is at a minimum. The Ohio Commission expects that the present unemployment situation will be reflected in decreased claims soon.

Criticisms of State Insurance.

In 1929 the total receipts from premiums and interest of the Ohio fund were $16,221,264.67, and the disbursements were $16,282,539.08, an excess of disbursements over receipts of $61,274.41. The commission promptly put into effect a readjustment of rates amounting to a slight increase in some classifications. When business improves and the fund recovers it is the expectation that rates can be reduced to their former level.

In connection with his study of the experience of state compensation funds, the writer also visited West Virginia, which opponents of State insurance, principally the representatives of privately owned companies, have pointed to as an example of the failure of a State fund.

The criticism of the West Virginia fund is based on an audit several years ago by Emile E. Watson, a consulting actuary, of Columbus, O. Watson reported the fund lacked nearly $5,000,000 of having sufficient reserves to meet the obligations against it. His point was that the commissioner had not fixed rates high enough to provide a reserve to take care of future claims. The actuary of the West Virginia, James W. Smiley, fund disputed the accuracy of Watson's findings, contending that the reserves were sufficient and that the fund had a surplus of $873,429 above all requirements.

Gov. Williams G. Conley of West Virginia and Lee Ott, State Compensation Commissioner, in replying to Watson's report, took the position that Watson had used a life expectancy table in figuring required reserves that would not apply to West Virginia, while the State had used its own experience of 17 years in setting up its reserves. Ott said that Watson, using the Danish table, which is recognized by virtually all insurance authorities as proper in figuring widows' life expectancy, had insisted upon reserves to carry widow's payments as long as they might be expected to live.

West Virginia Is Satisfied.

Smiley said the experience of West Virginia was that most of the fatal accidents occurred in the coal mines, and that a widow remained a beneficiary of the fund only as long as she remained unmarried. He said their experience had been that, possibly because of the excess of men in mining camps, a widow, unless more than 45 years old, usually remained a widow only a short time. This, he contended, made the Danish table inapplicable in West Virginia.

The actuaries being in disagreement, and the subject of adequate reserves being highly technical, the layman is at sea.

However, though the Watson report was made four years ago, the fund he criticised has continued to meet all demands against it, and is making its payments regularly. It has assets of $18,981,294.12, and liabilities of $18,608,864.80, according to the latest official report. Of its assets $770,268.18 is cash in banks, and $17,341,700 is invested in bonds. Its liabilities consist of $17,639,[illegible].83 reserved to meet claims, and $969,793.97 employers' deposits.

Since the creation of the fund in 1913 its income has been $53,169,856.20 in earned premiums, and $7,719,617.96 in interest on investments. In that period it has paid awards totaling $40,721,865.67. Its total administrative expense has been $2,237,772.78.

Employers in both Ohio and West Virginia appear to be well satisfied with State insurance. George F. Mooney, executive secretary of the Associated Building Contractors of Ohio, told the writer that while there was much difference of opinion among Ohio employers as to workmen's compensation laws, he knew of no difference as to the advisability of State insurance in a State which has a compensation law.

Easy to Make Up Deficits.

M. L. Garvey of Charleston, W. Va., chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Committee of the West Virginia Coal Operators Association, and former manager of the New River Coal Co., a large producer, said West Virginia employers would oppose any return to private insurance.

"But that will not be even suggested in this state," he said. "We are thoroughly satisfied with our State insurance and with the administration of the law. It has been charged that our fund is not solvent. I am of the opinion it is solvent, but do not care whether it is or not.

"If the time should ever come, and it hasn't come in the 17 years the fund has been in operation, that it should not be able to meet claims, it would be only necessary for the Commissioner to increase the rates a few cents to get all the money necessary. The employers have had their insurance for a good many years at a price far below that which private companies would have charged and we would not offer the slightest objection if it should be found that a slightly higher rate was necessary.

"Our state fund not only has never failed to meet the demands on it, but for a number of years the reserves have been increased approximatly $1,000,000 annually. The principal worrying about the West Virginia fund is being done by the insurance companies which are not permitted to write the business here, and not by the employers who are getting the insurance."

The proposed Missouri State insurance law will be Proposition No. 4 on the ballot at the election in Missouri Nov. 4. It was initiated by the Missouri State Federation of Labor, which gave as its principal reason for the action delays of injured workmen in obtaining compensation from insurance companies after awards had been made by the Commission.

NEW SPECULATIVE INTEREST IN OLD POSTOFFICE SITE

Huge Combination Structure Said to Be Contemplated for Eighth and Olive.

NEARBY HOLDINGS ALSO OF INTEREST

Foremost Among These Are the Victoria, Columbia and Board of Education Buildings.

By Berry Moore

Renewed speculative interest has been stimulated in the Federal Building block at Eighth and Olive streets, which will be regarded as virtually on the market following the transfer to the Government of the title to the block at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Market streets, to be taken for the new Federal building.

While it probably will be two years or more before the new Federal building is completed, negotiations are expected soon to be on an aggressive basis for the Eighth-Olive block, as a magnet for ambitious building projects. It has been under discussion as a site for skyscrapers of various types.

It is reported that one of the leaders in real estate circles has in contemplation a huge combination department store and office building for this block. This member of the fraternity has waxed rich from operations in real estate and has the background for the execution of a project of this magnitude. Another is said to have in view an office building, with the first two floors and the basement designed as banking quarters.

Obviously, this block is destined to become the site of a building that will materially augment the pivotal importance of this part of the city.

Interest in Adjacent Corners.

Transactions involving corner buildings in this vicinity have featured the real estate market, presumably predicated on plans advanced for the improvement of the Federal Building block.

The largest deal was the Missouri State Life's purchase of the block bounded by Olive, Ninth, Tenth and Locust streets, comprising the Syndicate Trust and Century buildings. This deal, handled by Richard A. Boyle, in connection with the late W. J. Holbrook, involved between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

With their imagination captured by the possibilities of this part of the city, Skouras Brothers recently acquired a 99-year lease of the Victoria building at the northwest corner of Eighth and Locust streets, with plans for ultimately replacing the present structure with a 35-story office building. Oliver J. Anderson of the Oliver J. Anderson Co., purchased the Columbia building at the southeast corner of Eighth and Oliae streets for which he has refused a record profit from professional operators anticipating a big uplift of values in this center. W. J. Holbrook had practically concluded negotiations at the time of his death for a 99-year lease of the Board of Education Building at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust streets.

The late Festus J. Wade showed his faith in this section 30 years ago when he acquired the northeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets for the Mercantile Trust Co. of which he was the founder. The building erected, now covering the entire half block, houses the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., a consolidation of the Mercantile Trust Co. and the National Bank of Commerce.

Overtures for Broadway Buildings.

The possibilities of the present Federal building block have revived interest also in a noteworthy degree in the former buildings of the National Bank of Commerce and Federal Trust Co. at Broadway and Olive street. Overtures were reported during the week on behalf of interests which had the buildings under consideration before the crash in the New York stock market last November.

The entire ground floors of these buildings, which may be thrown into one, extending from Olive to Pine streets, are available. These buildings have been attracting the attention of both life insurance companies and large brokerage and financial establishments.

This section is expected to display new life with the establishment of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. in its new quarters, embracing the entire ground floor and second and third floors of the Liberty Central Trust building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Olive street, together with space in an adjoining building on Broadway. The new quarters, which are being remodeled at a large outlay, have been taken under a long lease, which is regarded as indicative of confidence of the bank's officers in this part of the city.

CHAIN STORE LIFTS VALUES ON FRANKLIN

North Sixth street between Franklin and Lucas avenues has taken on new life as a market center with the advent on this thoroughfare of the Kroger Grocery & Bakery Co., with the largest store of its chain in the St. Louis district.

As has been told, the Kroger company has acquired a 15-year lease of the building at 814-16-18 North Sixth street from the Irwin I. Smith estate through the Franciscus Realty Co. While not disclosed, it is said the rental establishes a new record for North Sixth street.

Renewed speculative interest accordingly has been awakened in real estate in this part of the city, vested with new importance with the completion of the new $1,200,000 Union Market, encompassing the block from Sixth to Broadway and Lucas avenue to Morgan. Several attractive offers involving both leases and sales have been reported for property in this district within the last week, indicating revived activity, according to James M. Franciscus, president of the Franciscus Realty Co., agent for a number of available holdings in this area.

The building leased by the Kroger company comprises three stores, which have been remodeled and thrown into one immense store. This store has been opened, according to H. V. McNamara of the Kroger St. Louis office, to meet the insistent demands of Kroger customers for a Kroger store in the Franklin avenue-Morgan street loop.

Of these, 12,675 occupied dwellings. The number of loans in each clasification and the amounts follow:

J. WALTER THOMPSON CO. TO OPEN BRANCH IN ST. LOUIS

Advertising Agency Leases Five Office Rooms in Arcade Building, With Seymour Soule in Charge.

The J. Walter Thompson Co., an advertising agency on an international scale, has acquired a long lease on a suite of five offices in the Arcade Building. The agency will establish a branch office in St. Louis, with Seymour Soule in charge. With headquarters in New York, the concern now has branch offices in Chicago, Boston, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Montreal and Toronto, and 30 branch offices abroad. Large quarters are maintained in London.

The St. Louis branch is designed to develop business in the Middle West, South and Southwest for its clientele, including notably the Shell Petroleum Corporation. It will be a complete production unit, built on the group system of operation.

Through its Chicago offices, the Thompson agency directs the advertising of Swift & Co., Libby, McNeal & Libby, Kraft Phenix Cheese Corporation, Realsilk Hosiery, Berkey & Gay and other nationally and internationally known concerns.

The offices leased for the St. Louis branch comprise the northeast corner of the seventeenth floor, facing Olive and Eighth streets, of the Arcade Building. The local staff will be recruited from the forces of the advertising agency's organization in other cities. Soule has been identified with the Chicago branch.

The St. Louis branch will be in operation as soon as alterations of the new quarters have been completed.

The lease was acquired through the Isaac T. Cook Co., agent for the Arcade Building.

17-STORY APARTMENT HOUSE 75 PCT. RENTED

Most of Leases in 625 Skinker Boulevard, Just Completed, Made From Plans.

A new 17-story apartment building, known as 625 Skinker Boulevard, the three top floors of which have just been completed, is approximately 75 per cent rented through leases made, in the main, from plans while the structure was being built.

Lessees in the three top floors include Mrs. Robert M. Brown, widow of the late Robert M. Brown, who has 10 rooms and 6 baths on the sixteenth floor; W. T. Ravenscroft, vice president of the First National Bank, who has 10 rooms and 6 baths on the fifteenth floor, and Howard I. Young, president of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co., 10 rooms and 6 baths on the seventeenth floor. The suites on these floors have been specially arranged to conform with the ideas of the lessees, who have signed five-year leases.

The building contains 46 apartments, of various sizes: 6 rooms and two baths, seven rooms and 3 baths, eight rooms and 4 baths, 10 rooms and 6 baths.

The building is owned by the Skinker Northwood Investment Co. R. H. McRoberts, attorney. It occupies a large site at the northwest corner of Skinker boulevard and Northwood avenue, overlooking Forest Park and the city from a considerable elevation.

FIVE OF SEVEN BUNGALOWS IN IVANHOE PARK SOLD

Of the seven bungalows built by Geo. C. Karr in Ivanhoe Park on Oleatha avenue, five have been sold and the two remaining at 6711 and 6715 Oleatha avenue are open for inspection. Karr will start the erection in Ivanhoe Park of 10 more brick bungalows which will be financed by the Hauer-Lustkandl Realty Co.

REALTY EXCHANGE ELECTION IS NEAR

Bernard Dickmann Mentioned for Presidency—Ruth Said to Have Declined.

Choices for the presidency of the Real Estate Exchange at the election early in November are much discussed on Real Estate Row.

Charles J. Daly, president, has served two terms. By tradition he would be succeeded by the vice president, Alfred Ruth, who is president of Julius Haller Real Estate Co., Ruth would probably have little opposition for the presidency if he would run for it. He has said, however, that his private business will not permit him to give the time required for the work of president of the Exchange.

Bernard Dickmann, president of the J. F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., has been suggested for the presidency. He has served on the board of direceors of the Exchange and is district deputy and past exalted ruler of the Elks.

Formulation of a ticket for the election, and possibly of rival tickets, is expected within a few days. The Exchange has taken an active part in civic affairs in recent years. This activity will increase rather than decrease in the next few years, because of the large number of pending public improvement enterprises.

To All Owners of Real Estate
It is of just as much importance to you to know the value of your real estate investments, as to know the value of your bonds and stocks. It is hardly conceivable that one who owns bonds or stocks would not occasionally check up with his banker or broker as to the value of these securities. Is it, therefore, not just as important to know the value of your real estate holdings? Real estate values change from year to year, depending on the location of property and general conditions in business.
We, therefore, suggest that you seriously consider having an appraisal of your real estate made by a reputable real estate man, so as to determine the sound value of your property.

IF YOU and your family want a home where you can enjoy the beauty, the clean air and sunshine of the country, without sacrificing the conveniences of the city—visit Lake Forest, at Clayton and Hanley roads.

No other new residence section of the West End can equal its location. It is a 30-minute drive from the business district. It is a block from the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line, insuring good transportation for servants. It is in the heart of a fashionable residence district, near exclusive schools and shopping districts.

With all these conveniences, it has the privacy, the beauty, of a country estate. On the 57 acres of Lake Forest there are 1200 great trees, shading rich blue grass turf. Prevailing winds from the west sweep the high ridge on which it lies free from smoke.

Less than 90 homesites remain there. They are for families who want to invest $25,000 or more in a home conveniently located, in beautiful surroundings—and who want to know that the increasing value of their investment makes their purchase a sound business proposition.

STOCK SALES GAIN VOLUME AT CLOSE OF QUIET WEEK

Market Pulse Seems a Little Stronger as Period Closes After Prices in Aggregate Reach New Levels for Three-Year Spread.

LIQUIDATION HEAVY AT FINAL SESSION

Trading, However, Finds the Footing a Trifle Firmer and Declines of Previous Day Replaced by More Moderate Losses.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The stock market appeared to have been resuscitated for a time this week, only to lapse into another fainting spell.

The relapse carried share prices, in the aggregate, to new low levels for the past three-year period, but the market's pulse did not flicker out as seriously as it did the previous week, and seemed to be a little stronger as the week closed.

Bears were restrained during the first two days of the week, but the rally was not vigorous enough to indicate any seriously overcrowded short interest, and brokers who have opposed artificial restraints upon short selling complained that the market had been robbed of its normal recuperative power.

After a sharp break on Friday, substantial support appeared on Saturday, sufficient to check if not halt the decline, and much of this support may have been the result of further short covering. The market, however, failed to turn sharply upward as it frequently does under the influence of a bear retreat.

Wall street was encouraged that trading quieted markedly during the week, although selling developed considerable volume late Friday. And Saturday's turnover was at the rate of more than a million shares an hour.

The price index of 90 leading shares rose 4½ points during the first two days of the week, but thereafter tumbled 9 7-10 points, making a net loss for the week of 5 1-5 points. A long list of leading shares tumbled to new low levels for the year, although American Telephone and U. S. Steel failed to penetrate the low prices of the previous week. The 90-share price index came close to the 1928 low, reached in February, but the Standard Statistics Co. index of 404 shares showed that prices in the aggregate were at the levels of late 1927.

Interest in Stock Loan Market.

Interest in the financial community converged upon the stock loan market, in which shares are borrowed to complete short sales. Such a scarcity of stock for lending purposes, as the oldest observers could not remember, developed. For the first time in history, U. S. Steel loaned at a premium, and practically all active issues loaned "flat," which means that borrowers are willing to forego interest on funds deposited as security.

Some houses were said to be refraining from lending as part of a deliberate campaign to drive the bears to cover. There was even talk that the exchange had asked members to curtail their lending. One report was that the exchange had forbidden members to use long stock in their own offices to deliver against short sales, forcing them to go into the loan market. Confirmation of these reports were lacking. At several houses it was said that no restraints were in force, and that they were lending as usual. In any case, there was an unprecedented scarcity of stock for several days, giving extraordinary aspect to the situation.

Loans Drop $153,000,000.

Brokers' loans dropped another $153,000,000. Reports current in brokerage circles said that much of the week's selling represented liquidation of stock held by banks as collateral against loans. This gained considerable credence in view of the drop of $215,000,000 in Federal Reserve member banks loans against securities in the previous week, and the figures to be released early next week were awaited expectantly.

A constructive development of the week was a calming down of the anxiety about conditions in South America, and a sharp rebound in foreign bond prices generally. Money rates were a little

LOCAL STOCK TRADE FALLS OFF SHARPLY

Market Generally Lower for the Week With Several Cases of Sustantial Marking Down of Prices.

There was a marked contraction in business on the St. Louis Stock Exchange during the week just ended with several instances of substantial lower price ranges on small turnovers. The week was one day short owing to the Columbus day holiday. Sales were little more than half the total of the previous week.

The declines outnumbered the gains by about five to one. Moloney Electric and Missouri Portland however closed net higher. Wagner Electric, International Shoe and Rice-Stix showed fractional losses. Shoe, however, went into new low ground for 1929-30 period.

Scullin Steel preferred declined eight points, into new 1929-30 low ground, Landis Machine lost 4 from last sale and Laclede Steel 3. Ely-Walker and Dr. Pepper ranged down 2 points.

In the banking group First National Bank sold at 73 while Mercantile-Commerce declined to 220, a loss of 10 points.

easier in tone, after the passing of the middle of the month, but call money held at 2 per cent.

Liquidation Heavy Saturday.

Liquidation was heavy in all groups as the selling of the past two days carried over into the week-end session, but the market found the footing a trifle firmer and the sweeping declines of yesterday were replaced by more moderate net losses.

Final prices were generally at least a fraction above the bottoms and few stocks lost more than three points, while a large number yielded only one or two, but obviously even those declines were sufficient to record many new lows. Sales totaled 2,161,560 shares, a rather large Saturday business.

Wall street has decided that the weakness of the market is due to real liquidation rather than to short selling, and seems to be of the opinion that the sooner it is over the better for all concerned. The widely discussed investment demand admittedly has not developed sufficient stature to counteract the pressure of selling orders, although it is acting as a brake on issues which investors believe are attractively priced in relation to earnings. And the earnings in which the public is interested are not so much this year's as those of 1931.

The week-end news was not all gloomy. In the Youngstown area leading producers find conditions a little better. A week ago the best that could be said was that things were no worse. Prices on recent bookings are unchanged.

Any fears for the General Motors quarterly dividend were allayed by the corporation's president. General Motors sales to dealers and deliveries to consumers last month compared unfavorably with August and with September, 1929.

Steel Performs Well.

United States Steel common, back in its old role of market leader, gave the best performance of the day. Selling off fractionally at the opening it rallied a point net, dipped to the year's low of 144½ and then came back to 145⅜, where it closed with a net loss of ¼. American Can was pounded vigorously, reacting to 110⅛, a new low for the decline, but it, too, rallied a point from the low, although the net loss was 3¼. American Telephone finished unchanged after yielding more than a point. General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Radio and Westinghouse were among the many stocks to touch new lows, ending the week within fractions of their minimums on declines of less than a point.

Gillette, Electric Power & Light, Youngstown Sheet Steel & Tube, Union Pacific and Detroit Edison lost 3 to 4 points. Houston Oil, Johns-Manville, New York Central, Case, Baltimore & Ohio and Houston Oil declined 1 to 2. Allied Chemical and du Pont showed small gains.

The commodity markets were unusually steady, making virtually no changes, although the weakness of the stock market had a slightly depressing effect on wheat. Foreign exchanges were also dull, featured by a rally in the Spanish peseta which returned to around 10 cents.

Sloan on G. M. Dividend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, said in reply to an inquiry today that "there is no basis for concern over the safety of General Motors common dividend." He added that there has been no discussion within the corporation concerning the dividend and no reason for such discussion in advance of the directors' meeting. "Speaking for myself and associates," he added, "We are confident that the regular dividend will be declared in November."

SHARPEST DECLINE OF WEEK IN BONDS

Reactionary Trend of Shares and Week-End Realizing Contributing Factors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The reactionary trend of shares and week-end realizing contributed to the unsettlement in the bond market today.

Profit-taking cut into the gains registered this week by Latin American bonds and all classes of domestic issues, with the exception of U. S. Governments, were easy. As is usually the case, bonds with the highest rating receded only slightly and here and there an issue moved against the general trend but the rest worked lower.

The selling brought the sharpest declines of the week, and, as gauged by the averages, more than erased the little progress in previous sessions. The composites showed a loss of ½ point for 30 bonds, with industrials at a new 1930 low and the general price level only 1 point above the 1930 minimum. The heaviest selling was in medium grade and speculative railroad obligations and industrials of the latter class.

Atchison General 4s, a prominent legal issue, list ¾. St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s dropped 2 points, to reach a new low. Issues losing a point or more included Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas 4½s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Erie 5s of 1975, Denver & Rio Grande Western 5s and 4s, Chicago and Northwestern 4½s, Atlantic Coast Line 4½s, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg 4½s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, A, and Florida East Coast 5s.

Several new lows were established by convertibles and speculative industrials. New minimums were reached by Alleghany 5s of 1944, Rock Island 4½s, General Theater 6s, Shubert 6s, B. F. Goodrich 6s, Hudson Coal 5s, McKesson & Robbins 5½s, and Indiana Limestone 6s.

Foreign Issues were irregularly lower. Drops in some Latin American bonds that have forged ahead in previous sessions this week was attributed to profit taking. Brazil 6½s, Argentine 6s B of 1958, Bolivian 7s, Chile 7s and 6s of March, 1962, and Uruguay 6s showed losses of 1 to 2 points. Rio Grande do Sul 7s and 6s, Peru 7s, Rio de Janeiro 8s, and Colombian Mortgage Bank Issues were well bought. German Bonds lost from a small fraction to a point or two. On the other side the 4 points rise in Polish 6s stood out.

COTTON MARKET IS QUIET, PRICES FAIRLY STEADY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The cotton market was quiet today with prices holding fairly steady within a range of 5 or 10 points. New December contracts after selling off to 10.28c rallied to 10.35c and closed at 10.32c, with the general market closing barely steady net 2 points lower to 2 points higher. Spot quiet, 10.25c.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 4 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports that some Lancashire mills were to be reopened. The failure of the weather map to show anything more than light frosts at a few northern sections of the Central belt, seemed rather a disappointment to recent buyers, however, and this led to some liquidation. A little Southern selling was also reported and prices eased off right after the call with March declining to 10.64c or 2 points below yesterday's closing quotations. The market then steadied on trade buying and covering which may have been promoted by the official forecast for frost tonight at some scattering points in both Eastern and Central belt sections and active months sold 2 to 5 points net higher later in the morning with March advancing to 10.72c and May to 10.93c. Prices later eased slightly under realizing.

There may have been some apprehension that the frost predicted for tonight would be heavier, but it was quite evident that traders found no important incentives in the weather news.

Manchester cable advices were published to the effect that the Lancashire combine was about to open six more of its mills owing to the improved demand for coarse yarn and Liverpool cable said that covering and hedge selling in that market had been absorbed by trade calling accompanied by report of a fair cloth business with India and China. The amount of cotton on shipboard at U. S. ports at the end of the week was estimated at 134,000 bales against 143,000 last year.

HEAVY SELLING SWEEPS THROUGH CURB MARKET

Sales of 588,100 Shares for 2-Hour Session Exceed Last Two 5-Hour Periods.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Heavy selling swept through the curb market today, again crushing prices of active issues 1 to 3 points lower, as the market reflected the sharp break on the big board late yesterday. Total sales of 588,100 shares for the two-hour session were larger than for either of the past two five-hour sessions.

Utilities were again sold in large volume. Electric Bond and Share was depressed 1½ points to 50½, or within ½ point of last November's low. American Gas and Electric dropped 5 points to a new bottom at 88, but rallied to close at 90. Electric Power Associates, Empire Power, Associated Gas A, American Superpower and Standard Gas also touched new low levels. United Power and Light A was well supporter, and closed steady, however, and Tamp Electric gained a point.

Some of the high-priced, lightly traded issues broke sharply. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore dropped 9½ points, but rallied to close off only 6. Duke Power tumbled 11½, then regained all but 5 points of its loss.

Oils were again under pressure, but were steadier than yesterday. Standard of Kentucky was a soft spot, dropped more than a point to a new low at 24, then making partial recovery. Gulf and Vacuum recorded similar losses. Cities Service was active but fairly steady, closing with a loss of only ¼. Among the natural gas stocks, United Gas, Missouri Kansas Pipe Line, and Lone Star all reached new bottom prices.

WHEAT CHANGES SMALL AT CLOSE ON LOCAL BOARD

Market Covers an Irregular Price Course — Corn Futures Unchanged at Finish.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS EXCHANGE, Oct. 18.—After an irregular price range wheat futures closed ⅛c lower. The question of wheat feeding and corn husking returns came in for consideration. Corn finished unchanged in price.

The market news included crop estimates on Argentine and Australia, favorable weather for husking corn and comment as to wheat feeding.

Liverpool wheat was down ⅛d to ⅞d at the close. Winnipeg opened ⅜c lower on December and recovered some early.

December wheat opened at 77½. May wheat 82⅜, December corn 78½, May corn 81½.

Local wheat receipts, which were 53,200 bushels, compared with 121,800 a week ago and 71,400 a year ago, included 26 cars local and 12 through. Corn receipts, which were 74,200 bushels, compared with 33,600 a week ago and 61,600 a year ago, included 46 cars local and 7 through. Oats receipts, which were 24,200 bushels, compared with 41,800 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 11 cars local and 17 through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market, soft wheat was 1c lower to 1c higher. Offerings were moderate and the demand was fair generally, although mainly for bright, starchy grain. Dark wheat moved at inside figures. A pretty good clearance was effected, with shippers the main purchasers. Several cars were taken locally. Premiums averaged about 1c lower to 1c higher, with sales of No. 1 on a basis 8c to 11c above the Chicago December, mainly 9c to 10c above and No. 2 at 9c above. Hard wheat was up ½c. A few cars of low grades were the only offerings. There was a fair inquiry reported. Country run No. 1 was nominally 79½c at the close, or 2c above the Chicago December figure, and No. 2 at 78½c, or 1c above. Sales of No. 3 were at the Chicago December figure. Corn ranged steady to 1c higher for the new, while the old yellow was off ½c to 2½c and mixed 2½c lower. Premiums were lower, with No. 1 and No. 2 yellow going at 3½c and 4c above the Chicago December, against yesterday's average of 6c. The basis on white corn was higher, however, on account of light receipts, offerings going at 8c and 9c above the corresponding grades of yellow. Oats were steady to ½c lower. The available supply was light and cleared closely to local trade.

Wheat—No. 1 red winter, 85@88½c. Medium garlicky, 84c. No. 2 red winter, 86½c. Weevily, 86c. Heavy garlicky and weevily, 80c. No. 1 hard winter, 79½c nom. No. 2 hard winter, 78½c nom. SOME NET GAIN SHOWN BY WHEAT AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Despite the handicap of a heavy stock market, grain values today not only developed stubborn resistance to selling, but finished with some net gain. Report of indication of increased wheat feeding in the United States, together with report of curtailment of corn husking returns, did much to offset bearish estimates of wheat crops in Australia and Argentina. Fresh reports that Russia was offering wheat abroad at lower prices exercised no apparent market influence, whereas considerable interest was shown concerning news that President Hoover was in conference today with a leading American wheat grower who has recently been in Russia.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅛@½c higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛c off to ⅛c up, oats at ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance and provisions unchanged to a setback of 22c.

The early downward trend of the wheat market was associated with bearish crop estimates from Australia and Argentina. Favorable weather for husking tended to ease corn values but wheat strength acted as an offset. Opening unchanged to ⅜c lower wheat underwent a slight general setback and then scored gains. Corn started at ⅛c decline to ½c advance and subsequently rose all around.

Upturns of Chicago wheat prices were in the face of Liverpool estimate that Southern hemisphere wheat crops promised an increase of 174,438,000 bushels compared with last year. Inasmuch, however, as the crucial time for wheat growth this season in Argentina and Australia was yet to be gone through with, the tentative figures on wheat production in those countries received only transient notice here. Much more attention appeared to be given to a report heard that 9,000,000 bushels of wheat would be used as feed in Minnesota, Montana and North Dakota owing to a difference of $2.23 in favor of wheat against corn for getting a hundredweight of pork.

MODERATE CHANGES IN PRICES OF CATTLE

General Tendency of Market During Week Is Toward a Firmer Basis.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Oct. 18.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)—Uneven selling, in which price changes, as a whole, were moderate, featured the cattle market here during the past week. The general tendency was toward firmer basis. Receipts for the six-day period approximated 21,300 head, as compared with 22,134 the previous week and 24,001 the corresponding week last year. Compared with the previous week, fed lightweight steers and medium fleshed descriptions closed 25c higher; other fat steers strong; Western steers 25 to 40 cents higher; mixed yearlings, heifers, medium bulls and vealers steady, cow stuff generally 25c up. Tops for the week were: 1034-lb. yearling steers, $12.65; 1239-lb. mature steers, $12.40; Western steers, $8.20; 655 lb. mixed yearlings, $11.80; 604-lb. heifers, $11.50; cows, $7; medium bulls, $5.50; vealers, $13.25. Steers scaling 1428 and 1485 pounds cashed at $10.40 and $10.50, while heavies averaging 1306 to 1370 pounds ranged from $8.75 to $11, bulk bringing $8.75 to $10.90. A more numerous group averaging from 1212 to 1239 pounds sold in a spread of $8 to $12.40, with bulk registering between $8 and $10.60. Steers averaging 1102 to 1183 pounds established a range of $7.50 to $12.15 and bulk figures for this weight class were $9 to $12. Lightweight steers prices showed a wider spread of $6 to $12.65, with majority scoring $7.25 to $12.25. Bulk of fat steers brought $10 to $12.25 with bulk of all natives going at $8 to $12. Kansas and Oklahoma grassers ranged from $5.75 to $8.20 with bulk earning $6.25 to $7.55. Fat mixed yearlings and heifers were most numerous between $9.50 and $11; medium fleshed kinds selling largely from $6.50 to $9. Most beef cows were cleared between $4.25 and $5.50, while low cutters cashed principally from $2.75 to $3.25. Medium bulls sold downward from a top of $5.50. Good and choice vealers on the close scored $13.

Bulk and top prices for the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers, $10.35 to $15.25; top $16; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $13 to $13.75, top $14.25; medium fleshed heifers $10 to $12.50; cows, $7.25 to $8.25, top $9; low cutters, $4.75 to $5.50; top sausage bulls, $8.25, top vealers, $16.25.

Hog Trade Uneven.

Swine receipts here totaled around 56,700 this week, compared with actual arrivals of 69,915 last week and 81,547 corresponding week last year. Trade was an uneven affair this week. Receipts around the livestock circuit declined, but this bullish factor was neutralized by lower trends in dressed pork in the East. Price reverses at the opening of the week were recovered and the high point of the period was reached Friday when the top touched $10.25. A 15c to 25c loss was registered in a slow, draggy session on Saturday and for the week under review the market finished steady to 15c lower. Pigs found a little better action and, although slight declines took place on the closing session, prices finished steady to 25c higher. Packing sows had an upward movement most of the week and even with a steady to 25c lower deal today, a net gain of 50c resulted. On the Saturday session, majority of 180 to 225 pound weights cleared at $9.85 to $10, latter price top. Nothing comparable with the $10.25 hogs of Friday were on sale. Most 150 to 170 lb averages earned $9.50 to $9.75 and 100 to 140 lb pigs and light lights were salable at $9 to $9.40, some light pigs below. Packing sows finished at $8.25 to $8.50 for weightier kinds and up to $8.75 for lightweight descriptions.

Lamb Prices Down.

Receipts of sheep and lambs at National Stock Yards approximated 14,700 head this week, compared with 16,449 last week and 11,170 corresponding week last year. Pressure was exerted early this week under the influence of heavy marketings at most livestock centers and fat lamb prices sank until on Tuesday bulk of lambs sold at $7.25. Diminishing receipts later resulted in a strong recovery and for the week net losses figured only about 25c. Common lambs and all grades of sheep held about steady during the entire period. City butchers paid an extreme top of $8.25 on Monday and again on Friday while at the close packers bought the big bulk of desirable lambs at $7.75, within a practical spread of $7.50 to $8. Buck lambs were sorted off at a discount of $1, or mostly $6.50 to $7, and common throwouts bulked at $4.50, a few up to $5. Fat ewes were salable mostly at $2.50 to $3, culls down to $1.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Oct. 18.—Trade in horses and mules today was very quiet, about the only sales made comprised a few out of dealers alleys.

And will for evermore.
Sadly missed by her CHILDREN.

EICHEL—In loving remembrance of my beloved husband and our dear father, Max J. Eichel, who departed Oct. 19, 1926.
You suffered days, yes days of pain
And waited for cure but all in vain,
'Till God alone knew what was best
And took you away to peace and rest.
Hours of sadness come over us;
From us secret tears often flow,
Though you left us four sad years ago.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

GAUSMAN, MATT—In memory of my husband, who passed away Oct. 17, 1929:
Oh, what I would give to clasp his hand,
His dear, kind face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
His spirit has fled, his suffering o'er,
At the fireside he will join us no more.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE AND ALL THOSE WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

MILLER—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Nancy N. Miller, who passed away Oct. 18, 1928.
Sadly missed by
MRS. W. C. ECKERT AND FAMILY.

OATMAN—In loving memory of our mother, Anna Oatman, who died Oct. 17, 1929.
Sleep on, sleep on, dear mother,
Oh, how sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
FRED. EDWARD, OLA.

FREISE—Frederick, Mary, fell asleep in Jesus, March, 1920 and October, 1929.
Sadly missed by DR. AND MRS. W. A. KLUEGEL. (c)

SCHROEDER—In loving memory or Fred Schroeder, who passed away Oct. 21, 1929.
Dear father, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by
MRS. M. SCHROEDER AND CHILDREN.

SUMMERS—In loving memory of Edward P. Summers, who departed this life Oct. 18, 1928.
The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But love for you who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

WAGNER—In memory of my beloved husband, Joe Wagner, who passed away one year ago Oct. 16, 1929.
Deep in my heart you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling round your name;
You suffered hours of pain
To wait for cure, but all in vain,
Till God alone knew what was best,
He called you home to give you rest.
You had a nature we could not help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew you and loved you
Your memory will never grow cold.
You did not fail to do your best,
Your heart was true and tender;
You worked hard for the one you left,
And ever will be remembered
As the sweetest memories is all
I have left of you
Sadly missed by his wife,
LENA WAGNER.

WESSLER AND FRITSCHLE—In loving memory of my darling son, Vernon Fritschle Wessler, who died Oct. 17, 1929. Sadly missed by his mother, MRS. FLORENCE WESSLER. And in remembrance of our dear son and brother, Leonhard Fritschle, who died Oct. 17, 1916. Sadly missed by his mother, MRS. WILLIAM A. FRITSCHLE and his sisters.
Deep in our hearts you are fondly remembered,
Sweet, happy memories cling round your names,
Some time, some day, when our tasks are done,
We all will meet, dear "Brother" and Sons.

THE DE PAUL HOSPITAL group consists of the Main Hospital Building and Clinic, connecting with the Kitchen and Helps' Quarters on the one side and with the Chapel and Sisters' Convent on the other. This group connects also, by means of a Tunnel, with the Main Boiler House and Laundry at the rear.

These buildings have a total floor space of almost four hundred thousand (400,000) square feet and a volume of over four million (4,000,000) cubic feet. The Main Hospital building has a capacity for over three hundred and fifty (350) Patients. In addition to an excellent Clinic it has sixteen (16) Major and Minor Operating Rooms. It has one of the finest X-Ray and Maternity Departments in the country. Every Patient's Room is provided with connecting toilet and every other facility that is required for modern service.

The buildings are of Fireproof construction throughout, even the majority of the room furniture is of, steel or aluminum. A fine Pediatrics Department is provided on the Fifth Floor of the building, including Play Rooms and Dining Rooms for the children. This department is also equipped with an isolation and observation department. The Maternity Department also includes two fine nurseries as well as an isolation department. In connection with the Main Hospital, general isolation rooms have been provided and also a Violent Patients' Ward.

Food Service for the patients is provided by means of a Central Kitchen and distributed by means of heated food carts. In addition to this central service, all the Hospital Supplies and Linens, together with Surgical Dressings, are provided from Central Service Stations for these items.

The building is one of the finest equipped hospitals in the country and provisions have been made to take care of every item of service required for this work.

Builders Who Wrought With Greatest Care

For the individuals and the firms who furnished the labor, material and equipment that went into the new De Paul Hospital we have only words of highest praise.

The extent of their services often went far beyond the letter of their contracts. Their advice and counsel and the enthusiasm which they brought to their craftsmanship were stimulating and inspiring.

Six Hundred Paintings of Holland's Half-Mad Genius on Exhibition

The Tragic Life and Death of Vincent Van Gogh Commemorated at Amsterdam.

By M. W. CHILDS

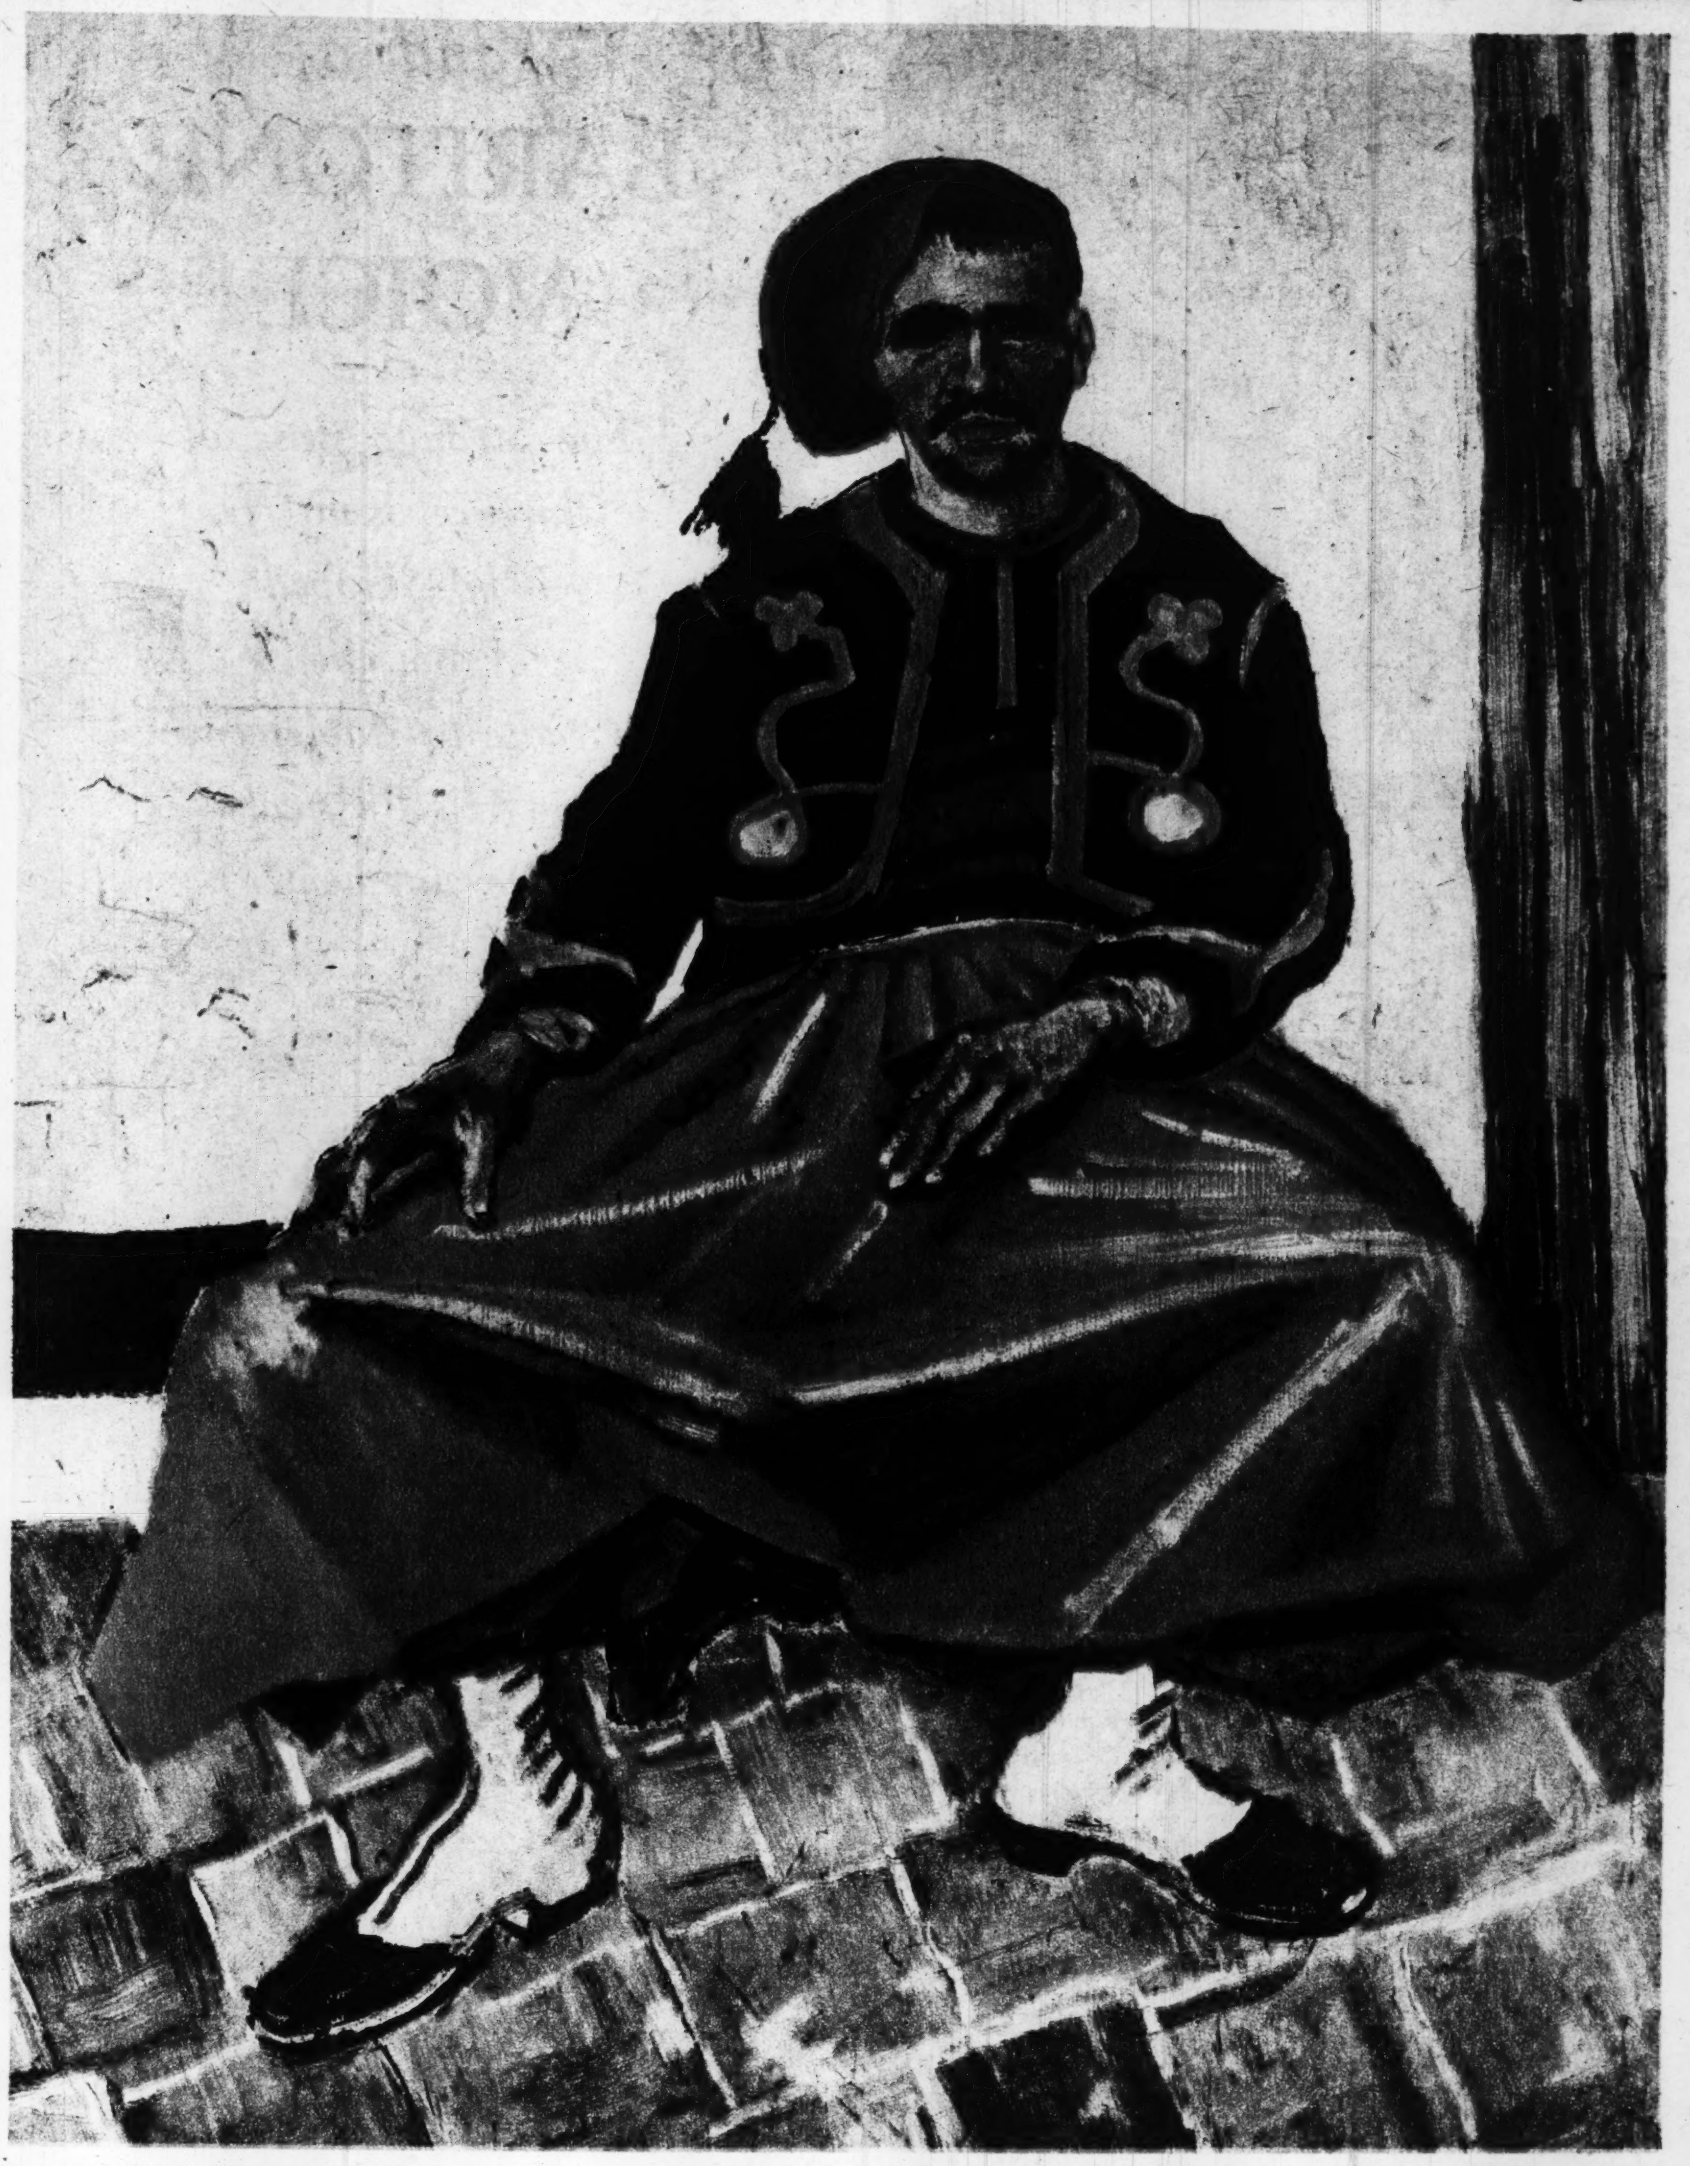
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



Portrait of a Zouave lieutenant, by Vincent Van Gogh.

ON that day when Vincent Van Gogh, after a violent quarrel with his friend, Paul Gauguin, cut off his own ear, wrapped it neatly in a parcel and sent it to a woman he had known, the few acquaintances of the obscure painter felt that his career had come to an end in a fog of madness. The Parisian painters had expected much from this strange Dutchman, who had always been a little touched, difficult, violent, alone in his struggle to express his love of life and humanity on canvas. But now it was the end. So they thought.

True, he went on painting in the asylum at Saint-Remy, pictures that burn with intense color. Often he would be seized with a fit of insanity as he sat at work with his brushes and tubes of color in the garden courts of the madhouse that had been a medieval nunnery. No one paid much attention to his paintings, either those he had done before his mind became unbalanced or those done in the obscure mists. He sent them to friends. They kicked about rooms he had formerly occupied. Only his brother, Theo, remained loyal to the end. And only one art critic, the French critic Aurier, who was laughed at for his pains, wrote in praise of Van Gogh before his death.

Today in Amsterdam, where he half-starved, half-froze in garret studios, there is an exhibition of 600 of his paintings and drawings at the Municipal Museum under the general title of "Vincent Van Gogh and His Times." It marks the anniversary of his death in France 40 years ago, and is the first exhibition of this magnitude ever to be given. Van Gogh towers above most of his contemporaries by present reckoning. Critics compare his contribution in art to that of the other mad, lonely Dutchman, Rembrandt. They use long, abstract phrases to express the significance of his work, language that would probably have greatly annoyed Van Gogh who wanted only to get the color and feel of the things he saw onto canvas in order that even the humblest people might understand his pictures.

All the marks of fame are now his. The least scrap of paper or canvas that he touched pencil or brush to brings a fabulous price. Exact reproductions of his paintings sell for more than he ever received for an original during his life. He towers above the Post-Impressionists of Paris of the eighties as he did during his life, lonely, remote, giantesque

Van Gogh was haunted all his life. Something drove him on, something beyond the knowledge of ordinary mortals. The story of his struggles, as told by Julius Meier-Graefe, the noted art critic, has already gained rank as a memorable biography.

Van Gogh was born in March of 1853 in the rectory of Zundert in Brabant, Holland. His father was a quiet, ordinary man, a good pastor to his people. "His mother," writes Meier-Graefe, "gave him his appearance, his sensibility and such powers as had to serve him through life. Her portrait suggests that she was a peasant, but she belonged, like her husband, to a cultured middle-class."

It was apparent that the two boys, Vincent and Theo, were not cast in the sober mold of their father. Vincent was put to work in the Hague branch of the famous Goupil art galleries, because his uncle happened to be manager there. Later he was sent to the London branch by way of Paris. He wore a top hat, frock coat and striped trousers but he was not happy. He wanted something more than this.

After he had been dismissed by the Goupil firm and had become a Methodist missionary in the little English town of Isleworth, he wrote to Theo who was then in Paris with the firm of Goupil: "Many a man has a bonfire in his heart and nobody comes to warm himself at it. The passers-by notice only a little smoke from the chimney, and go their way...I am drawn more and more to the conclusion that to love much is the best means of approaching God. Love a friend, any one, or anything you like, and I tell you, you will be on the right road to learn more. You must love with a high and intense determination, with your will and your intellect, and seek always to deepen, expand and improve your knowledge, for that way lies God."

HOW to express this bonfire in his heart he scarcely knew. He came back to Holland, studied for the ministry, at his request was sent to work among the Belgian miners, lived their life of bleak, unrelieved poverty for two or three years, drifted back to his father's rectory. His family were puzzled and worried over him. Yet he could write to his brother, "No matter what the creature in whom I have my being does, I and I alone am its master, my kingdom is not of this world, my kingdom is the kingdom of love. Does it exist? I will seek it."

He sought it now in art. In art and in a passionate idealistic love for a cousin, a widow with a small child. He frightened this woman. His intensity had a terrifying quality. But it made no difference. As soon as he had enough money, he went to Amsterdam to see her.

"He was forbidden to see his cousin by her father, so he launched an attack against him," Meier-Graefe records. "His worthy uncle lost the serene expression of a pastor. He told Vincent that his daughter would not dream of having anything to do with him. Vincent absolutely disgusted her—yes, disgusted her.

"Vincent stretched out his hand and held it in the flame of a burning light. 'Let me see her only for as long as I hold my hand in this flame,' he begged. The uncle blew out the lamp and showed Vincent the door.'

This was a brutal hurt. But he worked all the harder at his drawing. He copied all the painters whom he loved, Millet especially. He copied "The Sower" innumerable times. Theo was supporting him, sending him 100 francs or more a month from Paris. Vincent lived on almost nothing. For a time he took into his quarters a woman of the street whom he found in a desperate condition. He paid for expensive medical treatment for her and when she was well took her and her small child with him to larger quarters.

Vincent was Theo's conscience, Meier-Graefe explains. Theo, too, had something of the same burning desire to serve humanity that drove Vincent at last to madness. But Theo was never able to tear himself away from the Goupil galleries, despite repeated entreaties from Vincent, who felt that his soul was being stultified in a commercial environment. Vincent always seemed to think that they could get an income somehow even though the salary from Goupil's, which supported them both, should stop. Vincent's teacher at The Hague for a time was Anton Mauve, the possessor at that time of a great reputation and well aware of it.

Occasionally when Mauve was painting, Vincent would burst out, "No, no, Mauve, that's not the way." This, uttered with a passionate anger and possibly a gesture, one of those clumsy gestures that reminded one of a bear waving its paws, was not calculated to win Mauve's esteem. He soon gave Van Gogh up as a bad job.

"He worked furiously. Poor people sat to him. Painting became much too expensive. A hundred francs a month did not go far. Models cost one and a half gulden a day. Theo could not always send money at the right time and then he starved, which was not so very dreadful. But when he could not work because he lacked this cursed money, it became unbearable. He lived by his work, not literally, of course—he once sold M. Teersteg of the Goupil Galleries a dozen drawings for 30 gulden—but in the real sense he lived entirely by his work. Every drawing he made gave him a stronger hold on reality. He tortured himself a good deal, was slow and awkward and sentimental into the bargain. There was something heavy, both in his mind and in his hand, which kept him working hours at a few lines."

He painted dark, sombre canvases, peasants eating in dark rooms, peasants working in dun brown fields. When Theo complained of his dark palette, Theo who followed the artist's progress with a mother's intensity, Vincent laughed. He would make his pictures even darker. What if the younger men in Paris were using light colors, under the influence of Impressionism? What did he care for another ism?

BUT he went to Paris. He found the city enormously stimulating after the bleak years in Holland. Living with Theo, he became friendly with a number of the leading modernists. Pissarro, Seurat, Signac, Lautrec and Gauguin. Gauguin above all the others he admired, Gauguin the great red-haired giant of a man who seemed to know everything about art and who painted like a demon. Gauguin who had given up a promising career in finance, had deserted his wife and children to paint after the dictates of a mind of steel-bright sharpness and a heart that many people said was just as hard and sharp. Van Gogh was drawn from the first to this Gauguin.

He thought Gauguin would be an excellent artist to take part in the plan that was slowly forming in his mind. He wanted to start a colony of artists, a communal colony where all paintings would go to the general use and all would get equal amounts of material things. Even Theo fell in with this idea and believed that it might be possible. Gauguin was Vincent's idol. He tried to paint like him, to achieve the same luminosity of color, but he failed dismally. The others were all exhibiting their canvases. Vincent finally got permission to hang a few of his in the Cafe Tambourin, despite the warnings of Theo and others. The cafe went bankrupt. In a mood of depression he gave up Paris and settled at Arles in the south of France.

Under the spell of such light and color as he never dreamed existed anywhere in the world, he painted furiously, all day long, in the fields, hatless, a great shaggy bear of a man at whom the natives turned to stare. At night he was exhausted. He painted 10 pictures of the flowery gardens at Arles in as many days. These were like nothing he had ever done before. And yet he was not satisfied. He wanted to catch that blazing shine of light that always seemed to elude him. He did portraits of the people of the town, Roulin, the kindly postman, who was his friend, sat for him many times.

"....and there was also a lieutenant in the Zouave regiment, a small friendly chap with a neck like a bull and the eyes of a tiger. Milliet was his name, and he painted him, for painting was Vincent's method of speech." The portrait of Lieutenant Milliet of the Zouaves is reproduced on this page.

"ALL day he was but the servant of his eye, the slave of his hand. What a miraculous country, with its golden sheen, and its incomparable luminosity! Van Gogh had waited for these things too long already, and had starved while he waited, nor had he ever known why. He saw no finished shape before his vision, but Nature raised to a higher potentiality, to an insatiable yellow. Wherever he turned he was driven, torn by overwhelming beauty. Nothing could keep him back. Before him was not the impenetrable work of human hands or human minds, but blossoming trees."

But something was lacking, friendship, a companion. Theo at this time was also supporting Gauguin on his meager salary. Vincent had acquired a house, a white house with yellow interiors and red tile floors. What could be better than that Gauguin should come and share it with him. It might be the beginning of his colony. Gauguin came.

From the first Gauguin's laughter goaded Van Gogh, tortured him. He laughed at the latter's earnestness, his taste in art. Always Vincent felt that he was inferior to this laughing giant. "In spite of everything Gauguin was a wonderful man and a most valued friend. A man's actions were, after all, more important than his words, and Vincent never looked at a picture of

The Strange Case of Clarence Kehr Jr. Who Skipped From the Cradle to Adolescence in His Physical Development.

TOLEDO, Ohio. CLARENCE KEHR JR. was born here Sept. 12, 1924, but his body is 16 years old. As he plays with wagons and mechanical toys, "piecing" between meals, pursuing busily the interests of a young boy, this Toledo child talks, shouts—and cries—in a hoarse baritone and pauses in his play to light a cigar, to push an automobile out of his way or lift a full-grown man. He wears a mustache and his cheeks badly need shaving.

Nature played a prank on Clarence. It pushed his physical being from infancy directly into adolescence, skipping the years of boyhood. At 6, his physique is functionally that of an adult male, and he is stronger than many a man.

Doctors say the ductless glands are responsible. Clarence apparently was normal at birth, and weighed eight pounds. There is nothing unusual about his heredity, and no significant pre-natal influences were reported. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kehr, have two older children, Thelma May, 11, and Robert, 9, both normal, and, judging by their school progress, rather brighter than the average. Kehr is 37 and Mrs. Kehr is 34.

The first intimation of Clarence's abnormality came at the age of nine months, when the family doctor, Dr. J. Sumner Teter, noticed that the baby's inarticulate cries and murmurs were in a guttural voice. At the age of 11 months hair began to appear on the child's upper lip. The child talked and walked at 16 months. His first words were uttered in the hoarse baritone which is his voice today. Bodily development was rapid. From 2 to 4 this development was most marked. When Clarence was 4 his weight, height and muscular development were far beyond his years. X-ray photographs showed that his bone development was that of an ordinary boy of 14.

This 6-year-old now weighs nearly 85 pounds, and is 4 feet 1 inch in height. He wears a size 14 collar and a 16 suit, which has to be shortened considerably. His shoes are No. 1 and his hats 6¾. Some of his measurements are: neck, 13¾ inches; biceps, flexed, 10 inches; chest, expanded, 31; waist, 27; thigh, 16½; calf, 11¼. The average normal boy of 6 is an inch taller than Clarence, but weighs almost 30 pounds less.

Clarence became a public character at the age of 3. A relative left his truck in the Kehr yard one day while he visited with the family in the house. Suddenly there was a snorting of the truck's motor, a clashing of gears, and a child ran into the house crying, "Junior's driving the truck." By the time Mrs. Kehr got outside, Clarence ("Junior" to his family and friends) had backed the truck out of the yard and across the street. He was with difficulty persuaded to abandon it; after starting it and driving that far, he wanted to keep going.

Someone telephoned to a local newspaper about the incident, and reporters and photographers responded. Junior obligingly changed a tire, cranked an automobile, lifted his visitors, demonstrating that he was a rather unusual 3-year-old. He became then "Toledo's Wonder Boy," "The Strongest Baby in the World" and so forth.

SIX months later his parents took Clarence on a brief vaudeville tour in Michigan, the boy performing feats of strength. Kehr says they got $500 a week, but, being inexperienced, had to spend most of it for expenses. The Ohio child labor law made a more extensive tour impracticable.

Between the ages of 2 and 3—his parents don't remember exactly the date—Clarence took up smoking in a serious way. His father remembers the details. A neighbor had given the child a nickel, and Clarence had hurried to a neighborhood store to spend it. Instead of buying candy, Clarence bought two stogies, which the grocer who sold them supposed were for his father. Outside the store, Clarence lighted one of the cigars and sauntered home smoking it.

It seemed to his parents that smoking was something that Clarence would better postpone until he was a bit farther from the cradle, so Kehr decided to take drastic measures to cure his son of the desire. He took him to a drug store nearby and bought him three ice cream cones, which the youngster quickly ate. Then the father bought the strongest cigar he could find in the store, seated the boy beside a hot radiator, and let him light up. The combination of ice cream cones, heat and strong cigar, the elder Kehr figured, would be sufficient to induce a wholesome nausea—and there would be no more trouble about smoking. But the scheme flopped. Clarence sat by the steaming radiator and smoked his black cigar down to a stub with evident enjoyment. It seemed to top off the three ice cream cones very nicely.

So Clarence was allowed to smoke. He doesn't confine himself to cigars now; pipes and cigarettes also soothe his spirit. And, true to a certain type of smoker, he never seems to have a match.

Shortly after he was four years old, Clarence was taken, at the instance of Dr. Teter, to the University of Michigan, where he was examined in the Department of Pediatrics and Infectious Diseases of the University Hospital.

The result of the examination was stated as follows in a letter signed by a hospital executive:

"Clarence Kehr, aged four years, has been observed in our clinic and we have found that the child is a rare anomaly, namely, one of precocious development. X-ray studies of his bones reveal his frame to be that of a boy well beyond his chronological age. His physical condition apparently is excellent. He is quite strong and his muscles are highly developed.

"According to our psychiatrists, he is above the average in intelligence and has an intelligence quotient of 120. This places him in the superior group. We believe that the child's condition is due to some disfunction of the ductless glands. . . ."

Another psychological examination was made several months ago under the direction of Dr. W. E. McClure, psychiatrist to the Toledo Board of Education. The tests given then indicated that Clarence was of normal intelligence for his actual years. On that occasion, incidentally, the boy, not yet 6, demonstrated his bodily strength by lifting Dr. McClure off the floor. The psychiatrist weighs about 185 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kehr Sr., parents of the Toledo "wonder boy."

This examination was given as a preliminary to the decision as to whether Clarence should be sent to school this fall. The public school authorities decided he should not be admitted; that his advanced physical development, governed by a 6-year-old mind, made it inadvisable, both from the standpoint of his welfare and that of other pupils, for him to mingle with them in the associations of school life. A similar stand was taken by the parochial schools. His parents did not oppose the exclusion, but they wondered how Clarence was going to get an education. He can't read or write. Kehr is a janitor at the Court House, and his salary is scarcely adequate to provide a private tutor. The only solution of the problem seemed to them to be vaudeville work for Clarence; with such earnings added to the family income, a tutor could be hired. They have begun efforts to obtain a State permit for Clarence to work, with the hope that with the legal obstacle removed, vaudeville bookings could be arranged.

So the school bells that are calling other 6-year-olds to their first classes this fall mean nothing to Clarence. Life is still play for the brawny child with the man's voice. Clad in overalls and the discarded cap of a mail carrier, he fills his days with physical activity, working industriously at self-imposed tasks which are important only to himself, trotting about on stubby legs.

Much of his play is concerned with mechanical things. For several years he has had a great time with a discarded Ford chassis in a neighbor's barn. Automobiles fascinate him. He knows how to operate them, and can change a tire as well as the average motorist. In the garage at his home is a battered toy automobile and a variety of discarded automobile equipment. If a visitor finds favor with Clarence, the boy will take him by the hand, lead him to the garage and proudly exhibit these treasures. Then there is a wagon on which he crouches as he propels it along the sidewalk with one leg, bellowing for right of way. Sometimes he loads the wagon with other kids and hauls them about, buckling to the work like a young percheron.

When he plays in the house at night, there are various mechanical toys to amuse him—miniature trains, tractors, trucks, bridges and such. They are pretty delapidated, for Clarence plays energetically and most of these toys were not built to withstand such strength as is his. When visitors at the Kehr home are shown a reel of movies picturing the strong boy's feats, Clarence makes the electrical connections for the projection machine and regulates its speed, perhaps holding a cigarette expertly between fore and middle fingers as he attaches wires and tests contacts. He watches the scenes unfold on the screen with immense interest.

Clarence is fair-haired and blue-eyed. He does pretty much as he likes, although his parents say they sometimes have to curb him. His father occasionally gives him a paddling. The boy sleeps late in the morning, usually until after 9 o'clock, and seldom goes to bed before midnight. He eats heartily at meals and likes snacks between meals, like most other boys; in the middle of the afternoon it is no uncommon thing to see cookie crumbs in his mustache. He drinks coffee and enjoys a glass of beer when he can get it.

The child has a temper, his parents admit, but he seems to be in good humor most of the time. He is cold toward strangers, but once he has decided that the visitor is friendly, his reserve melts quickly and he becomes chummy. He will sit beside such a caller, an arm thrown over the other's shoulder, and converse earnestly on such absorbing topics as the prospect of owning a pony or the best method of building a one-man top for his wagon.

He realizes he is different from other boys of his age, but his parents say he does not understand the full extent of the difference. They feel it would not be well for him to have that complete knowledge yet.

CLARENCE doesn't have much trouble with other children, his mother said. "He never fights them." One can readily believe that it would be hard for Clarence to find a fight with any boy under 15. "But if his brother has trouble with another child," Mrs. Kehr continued, "Junior gets mad. He rushes out to the other boy and warns him to leave his brother alone."

The family related that Clarence didn't get along well with a man who was associated with them in a recent tour of Michigan fairs. One day the child struck the man with his fist and nearly knocked him down.

Clarence, who had been listening to the recital, put his fist against his chin and grinned. "That's the place to hit 'em," he confided.

The boy is willful and egotistic, as is natural for a boy who has been interviewed and photographed so often, has heard himself discussed so much, is used to being the center of attraction. He once was heard to introduce himself to a stranger: "I'm Clarence Kehr, the Wonder Boy from Toledo."

Jack Dempsey called on him last spring—something that might turn the head of almost any boy. The former champion heavyweight pugilist was in Toledo to referee a boxing bout. Clarence showed his appreciation of the call, the Kehrs say, by lifting the ex-champion, Dempsey then weighing more than 200 pounds.

Clarence has developed a certain showmanship. He likes to do his "strong man" stunts. These include weight-lifting, pushing automobiles, pushing a 1000-pound lawn roller, wheeling a barrow filled with children.

"What do you want to do?" the writer asked him the other day.

"I want to go on the stage," Clarence answered promptly.

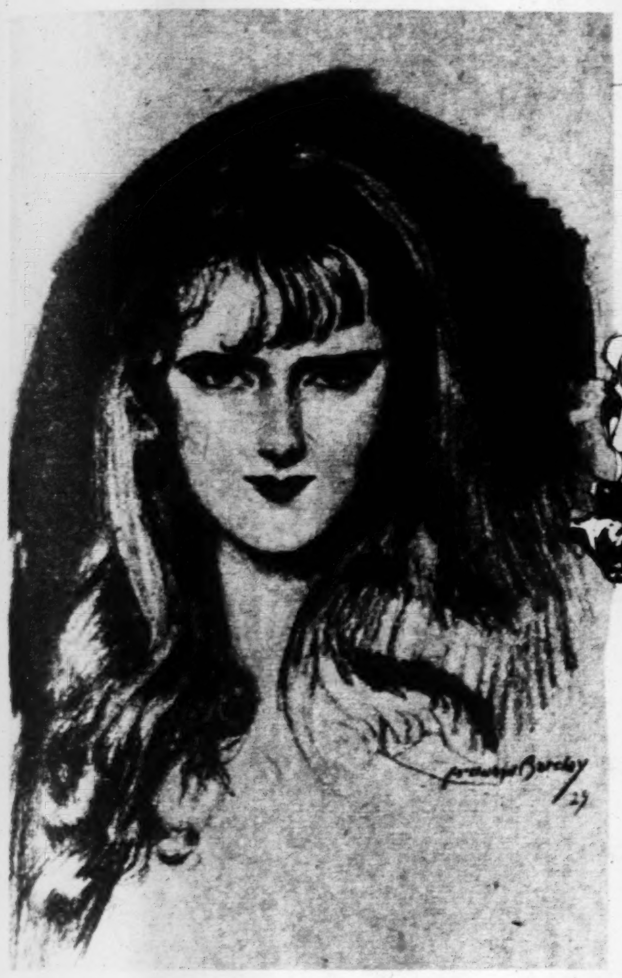
Helene Haskin Admired His Pictures From a Distance, Became His Model and Then His Fiancee.



Portrait of Helene Haskin, made by McClelland Barclay.

Helene Haskin.

NEW YORK.

THE sign on the door left no room for argument.

It was brutally final and also very blunt.

It read:

DON'T DISTURB.

DON'T Leave Ashes in Hall. Don't call for garbage before 11 a. m.

DON'T seek appointment by personal visit.

PLEASE PHONE FOR APPOINTMENTS.

There were a couple of more "don'ts," each more disturbing than the last.

This was the studio of a prosperous and busy artist. And New York being what it is, he had been bothered before by every sort of pest. The town was full of young women seeking work as models. It was full of tradesmen who would intrude at any hour of the day or night if given a chance; agents would try to force some new and promising prospect upon him—he couldn't really tell what form an interruption might take.

McClelland Barclay, growing daily in stature as a magazine illustrator and commercial artist, had met them all. He had become a busy man. His time no longer could be taken up by eager artists or models.

Hence the sign that appeared on his door, warning all and sundry alike that he was at work and would admit no intruder.

And here, looking at the sign and trembling in her trimly shaped shoes, stood the lovely young Helene Haskin.

She didn't know exactly what to do. Should she rap, ring the bell, or wait?

So this was the discouraging and disastrous end of her Manhattan quest." . . . . Her first New York experience.

She was a very beautiful child, for this was several years ago. She still is a beautiful child, and she's 19 now.

But since every story must have a beginning this is the first chapter.

Helene was not at this particular doorstep by accident.

She had often cast herself in this romantic role; she had even pictured herself standing just so and, projecting her adolescent imagination into such a picture, had tried to imagine what might happen. Like every schoolgirl, she had built her heroes with the years—sometimes it might have been the boy next door; a few months later, the captain of the football team might have been surprised to find his picture torn from the newspapers and hidden between the leaves of a book; a moving picture actor might have come next in the line of romantic prospects.

Thus it went, as it ever goes in the heart and dream life of a growing youngster.

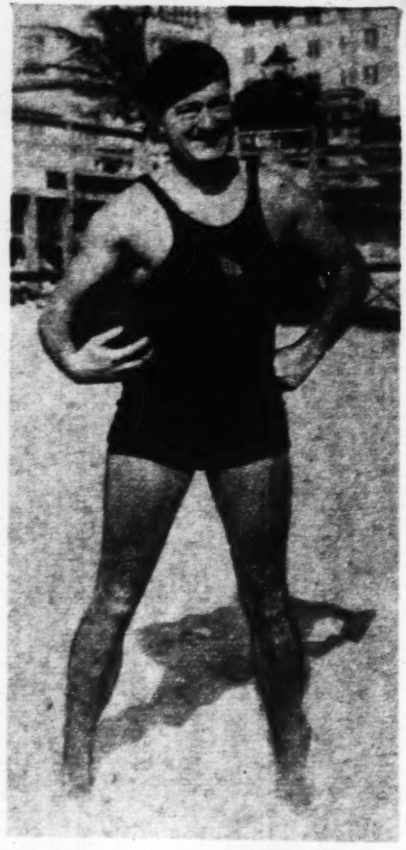
Helene was no ordinary child. She had a definite precocity, both of mind and body. Her home was an old Southern estate—an ancestral place; steeped in tradition—King George, Virginia, to be exact. Her people were Southern people of condition. Her mother was a talented woman, writing well and exerting a definite influence on progressive thought; taking part in political matters and those earlier day discussions concerning women's place under the sun.

Helene had fine horses to ride, and she had her own car. She had a dozen acres of lush, Southern countryside in which to walk by herself or with her dogs.

THERE were scores of old family friends for her companionship. She wrote a bit herself — youthful, poetic, groping things. A dreamy, gifted child, people said.

And she was reared in the best traditions of the old South—taught how to cook and to sew and be well-mannered; taught how to entertain guests and prepare for becoming mistress of the place some day.

How, then, you ask, does a New York artist—miles away—come into the picture? Simple enough. With a girl chum, Helene would scan the pages of the magazines—and in the advertising section they would find the drawings of this fellow Barclay. He became a hero to them both; their favorite artist. They would talk about what he might be like.



McClelland Barclay at Palm Beach.

As a matter of fact, Barclay was married to Nancy McClelland, Washington society woman, from whom he was subsequently separated and divorced. She was a first cousin, and "incompatibility" was blamed.

The two youngsters, scanning the magazine pages under the trees of a pastoral Southern estate, knew him merely as a name and as one who drew what to them seemed ideal girls.

And so, as time went by, Helene found herself, with her mother, in New York. Mrs. Haskin was appearing daily upon the radio and engaging in general woman's activities. Helene was trying to get up enough courage to meet her "dream artist." She wanted to pose just once as his model—to become the subject of those drawings that had so intrigued her. Friends had said that she had the face and figure made to order for the magazine covers, the illustrations or advertising pages.

Which is why, upon a certain day, young Helene Haskin, fresh from the South, found herself trembling outside the door. Finally, with heart fairly jumping from fright, she took courage and rang the bell. A secretary gave her a brief and courteous inspection, motioned to the busy Barclay, who looked up from his work, scanned her from head to foot and made a rough sketch of her. Her name and address were duly filed, according to the best traditions of such matters and, within a very few moments, Helene found herself outside the door while someone said, "If we have any need for you, we'll call you."

That afternoon she arrived home, a combination of discouragement and excitement.

"OH, MOTHER, he was really terribly nice," she said. "But I know I haven't got a chance. He did what they all do—just took my name and address, and that's the last I'll ever hear.

Mrs. Haskin, who had had more than a little experience in the business world, didn't want to be discouraging. But she had a feeling that, in all probability, that might be the end of it.

She suggested going to a certain other artist who was almost certain to be interested. But just about the time that Helene might have been expected to give up all nope, the phone rang.

"Can Miss Haskin be at Mr. Barclay's studio by 10 o'clock this morning?" came a voice over the wire.

Could she?

And that's how it all began.

One has read, perhaps, by this time, that McClelland Barclay, nationally known illustrator, painter of society portraits, cover designer and successful artist, has announced his engagement to his model. One of those intriguingly romantic love stories, just like the tales he illustrates.

The model is, of course, Miss Helene Haskin. The marriage will take place some time early this winter.

It all wound up this summer during a vacation period in the Maine woods. He had not been able to make up his mind about marriage until then. Not that he didn't want to marry Helene. But he thought of all the elements. She was, after all, 19 years of age and he was reaching middle age.

"It might have been something taken right from his drawings," her mother related shortly after the engagement had been announced. "Mr. Barclay had used Helene as a model for a dozen such stories. His heroines would be pictured, long, slender and lovely, lying beneath a tree while romantic adventure buzzed all about them.

"And just so it was with Helene. She had gone to Maine for a vacation, having had a busy year. Mr. Barclay went to paint. . . ."

PERHAPS, at this point, it's best to let Helene go on with the story. He had been painting her—painting her beside a rushing stream; painting ner against idyllic forest backgrounds.

One day he said very simply that he had made up his mind—perhaps it was a particularly alluring moon or a day filled with midsummer magic——

At any rate. . . . Oh, well, that's their own business. The manner in which a man chooses to propose is something neither the man nor the maid can talk about without embarrassment.

Meanwhile, the face and figure of Helene have been decorating hundreds of stories and covers.

The red-haired, delicate-faced, lovely youngster who has looked down at you from many a newspaper or magazine rack is, just as likely as not, the girl Barclay refers to as "the loveliest model in the world." She has been, from the modeling standpoint, a girl of the Civil War days, of Revolutionary times; she has been pictured in salons and at teas; dancing with college boys and speeding down the road in a car. She became the "Fisher body" girl, attracting notice from one end of the land to the other.

And while thus making her way to anonymous fame, Helene has not been idle. Last winter she took her first step toward a stage career. She became one of the Social Register girls who break into the chorus from time to time.

Although a "blue book" member, she realized that she must go through

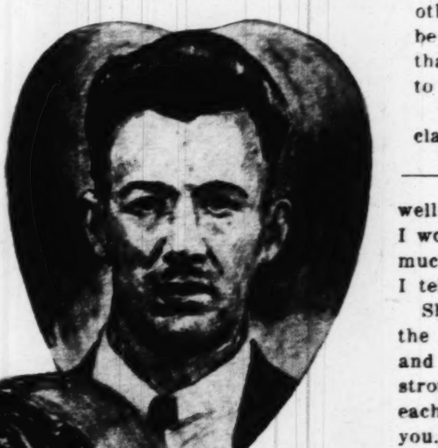
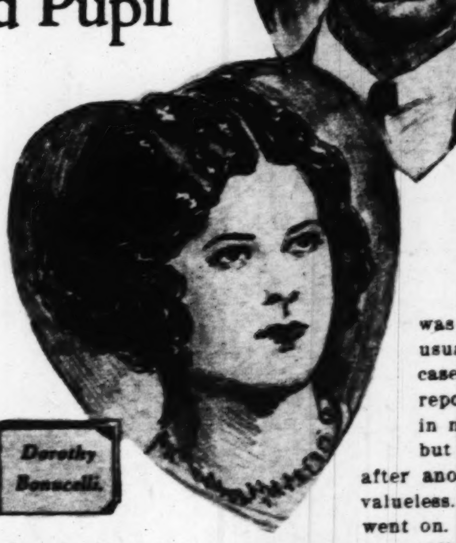
The Schoolmaster Who Eloped With His 15-Year-Old Pupil



Kenneth W. Hodge.



Dorothy Bonucelli.

FLORIN, California.

THE unconventional romance of 15-year-old Dorothy Bonucelli and Kenneth W. Hodge, principal of the grammar school which she attended here, has ended in conventional bitterness. The girl has returned from their elopement with her love for the schoolmaster turned to hate. Hodge, who left a wife and three children when he took the primrose path with his pupil one summer night, did not return with her, but continued his flight, a hunted man.

Less than two months after the start of their sentimental journey the affair had lost its glamour. Hardships may have had something to do with this: they hitch-hiked hundreds of miles through the Southwest, sometimes sleeping in the open, often hungry and cold. At a cotton ranch in Texas they parted and the girl came home.

For a considerable time before their elopement there had been evidence of a stronger friendship between Dorothy and the 30-year-old Hodge than usually exists between teacher and pupil. Other students noticed that she was often called to the principal's office and sometimes saw the two walking home from school together. "Teacher's pet," they used to say, a trifle envious, perhaps, of the girl's golden-haired, blue-eyed beauty.

On the afternoon of July 29, Dorothy failed to return home. Hours passed. Still she failed to return. That night she met Hodge and they left for San Francisco in his car.

The disappearance of the girl was reported to the authorities by her father, Vincenzio Bonucelli, a rancher of Florin. Mrs. Evelyn Hodge reported her husband's absence. The two disappearances were quickly associated; school friends of the girl told Mrs. Hodge that Dorothy had spoken of her love for the principal.

An extensive search for the schoolmaster and his favorite pupil began, their descriptions being sent throughout the Western states. In a few days Hodge's automobile was found in a San Francisco garage. But there the elopers' trail was lost. As is usual in such cases, they were reported seen in many places, but one clew after another proved valueless. The search went on.

Then, as unexpectedly as she had disappeared, Dorothy returned. One afternoon last month she walked into the home of a cousin in Sacramento, which is just a few miles from Florin.

The girl admitted readily that she had eloped with Hodge. She had loved him, she said—but now she hated him. Still, she tried to keep the police from finding out where he was, giving a false account of their travels. At last she weakened and disclosed that she had left the teacher near Big Spring, Texas.

"He was working on a cotton ranch," she said. "You might as well know that, although I did say I wouldn't tell. But I hate him so much now that I don't care what I tell."

She then gave further details of the elopement. "When Kenneth and I decided that our love was so strong we could not live without each other, we ran away, as I told you. We slept by the roadside. We hitch-hiked our way hundreds and hundreds of miles. We were hungry and cold at times. And our consciences began to hurt.

"Kenneth finally sent me home because the owner of the ranch where he worked had two little children who reminded him of his own. 'You've got to go back, Dorothy,' he told me. 'I can't stand to see these children day after day. They torture me. We've done wrong. Let's both try to do what we can now to undo the wrong.'

"He was just working for our room and board, so he wired to his brother Gerald at Sacramento for money. Gerald sent us $60 and that paid my way back."

The police immediately telegraphed to Big Spring for Hodge's arrest, but he had fled; it was discovered he had been warned.

The hunt for the romantic schoolmaster continued, but the schoolroom romance was over—ended, as it happened, on a note of mystery. For one of the most interesting points about the mad infatuation which brought disaster into two families was left unexplained: the girl who loved her teacher too well steadfastly refused to tell why she came to hate him.

CAPTAIN KARL BOY-ED—A DASHING SUPER-SPY

WASHINGTON.

MEMORIES of gathering war clouds, of intrigue, secret diplomacy, German propaganda and the German spy madness of 1915 were revived the other day when there appeared again in the news the name of Captain Karl Boy-Ed. Captain Boy-Ed, it was at once recalled, was the dashing officer who served as naval attache at the German Embassy before America's entry into the war. It was about him that most of the tales of spy activities centered. He was the spark plug of Count Von Bernstorff's propaganda machine. He was the man who tried to get us in a war with Mexico. He was the chap who kept the Kaiser informed as to the strength and movements of the American Navy. His was a name to cause war-scared Americans to prick up their ears.

But this time, reference to Captain Karl Boy-Ed caused no trepidation. The Captain, said a dispatch from Hamburg, was dead. He died in a manner a warrior hardly would have chosen. He was killed by a horse. While taking a morning ride on his estate, Groenwoldhof, near Hamburg, he attempted to put his mount over a few fences for hurdle practice, and the animal fell, throwing him under. He was fatally crushed and died a few hours later. The accident occurred on his fifty-eighth birthday.

This word of the Captain's death awakened other memories, too. It recalled a war romance that was unintentionally thwarted for six years by a wireless censor's suspicion, but which finally triumphed over international obstacles when Captain Boy-Ed married Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith of Philadelphia in 1921. Those who recalled the difficulties which that romance had to overcome read of the Captain's death with keen regret. It seemed a pity that a love match so determined as was theirs had to be broken after only nine years of happiness. It seemed a pity, too, that the American wireless censor had been overly cautious and had made that mistake which delayed the marriage for six years.

Washington, or at least that part of it given to society affairs, remembers Captain Boy-Ed with kindness for reasons besides his romance with Virginia Mackay-Smith and in spite of his war-time propaganda activities which brought about his expulsion from this country. Washington has forgotten war-time bitterness and remembers him as the gallant social lion he was before his name was connected with the plot to plunge America into war with Mexico. For as a social figure and a "catch," on whom many ambitious dowagers had set their eyes, he was not a man to be soon forgotten.

Captain Boy-Ed cut a wide swath in the social life of the capital from the time he joined the German Embassy in March, 1913. He was not only a naval officer and a diplomat, but an athlete, a clubman and litterateur as well. He had an air about him. He spoke English fluently and was at home in anybody's drawing room. Ambitious mothers of attractive daughters regarded him as a prize to be captured at any cost. He was so eligible. He was past 40 when he came here, but that made no difference in his eligibility. He was still youthful in appearance and had at the same time the sophistication and poise of maturity. Even his name had an air about it.

His father was Karl Boy-Ed, a wholesale merchant of Turkish ancestry who died in 1894. The Turkish origin explains the peculiar un-Teutonic name. His mother was Mrs. Ida Boy-Ed, regarded a few years ago as the most popular woman novelist in Germany. Despite his Turkish ancestry and Turkish name, however, the captain was typically German in appearance. Here is the way the newspapers of the time described him:

"Captain Boy-Ed is of fair complexion, with blue eyes and light brown hair. His features, mouth and nose especially, are large. He has a merry disposition when the war does not worry him. He laughs and jokes and sees the brighter side of life. He likes outdoor sports, but is not fond of golf or the new dances. He is old-fashioned in his tastes, delights in the German dances of 30 years ago, and in horseback riding and fighting with the sword. German naval officers have traditionally worn Prince Henry whiskers, but Captain Boy-Ed has shaved his off in order to Americanize his appearance."

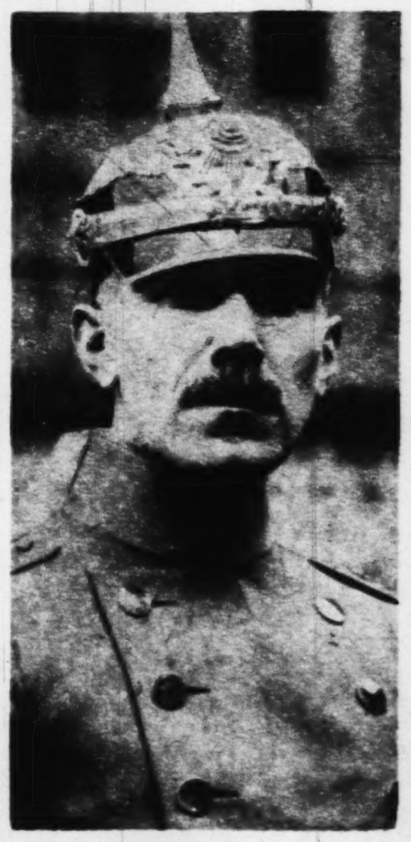
Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed, formerly Virginia Mackay-Smith of Washington and Philadelphia.

The Captain was eminently fitted for his post as naval attache to the German Embassy. He had entered the German Navy in 1891 at the age of 19 and had thus had about 22 years of naval service when he came to Washington. For six of those 22 years he had headed the German Naval Intelligence Office and had made a reputation for originality and efficiency. In this capacity he was at the elbow of Admiral Von Tirpitz and it was said that no man in Germany, with the possible exception of Von Tirpitz, himself, did more to popularize German naval expansion. That was his job—to manufacture sentiment in favor of a great navy for the Kaiser and to keep well to the front in the popular mind the "English peril." Such "preparedness" pamphlets as "Seestern," "The German Fleet and England," "The Coming Naval War," and the like were said to bear unmistakable earmarks of Captain Boy-Ed.

IN 1910 he was openly credited with bringing about the Reichstag's $100,000,000 appropriation for the German navy. The tremendous budget was put through speedily after Captain Boy-Ed, as press agent for the admiralty, had whipped public sentiment into shape for it.

The British had already formed a strong dislike for the Captain before he came to America and they kept tab on him from the moment he entered his new post. London newspapers charged him with stirring up strife among German-Americans, declaring "no more competent functionary could have been appointed to second Count Von Bernstorff's efforts in 'educating' and 'influencing' American opinion."

It soon began to appear that the British were right, although the Americans were slow to see it. From the day of his arrival, the Captain devoted himself assiduously to the task of learning everything possible about American national defenses. He did it very openly, too. He never lost an opportunity to make observations and gather facts concerning the army and navy, the coast defenses, naval supply bases, and the officers and men of all branches of service. He made many visits to the Naval Academy at Annapolis and kept in touch with the work being done there. Also he kept in touch with the navy yards and naval stations. Not long before the war broke out in Europe he went so far as to make a tour of investigation throughout the nation for the admitted purpose of studying defenses. By the time the war did break out, it was said that the German naval attache knew more about the American navy than most of its own officers. He knew all the strong points and weak points in it and was familiar with all coast defenses. People began to say with alarm that if the United States were to have a war with Germany and Captain Boy-Ed got back to the Kaiser's navy he would be able to pilot the heavy guns and the submarines to precisely the points where they could do the most damage.



Captain Franz von Papen.

The Army and Navy, Metropolitan, and Chevy Chase clubs of Washington, where prominent men of the nation gather, and Connecticut avenue, the fashionable promenade of the capital, saw much of Captain Boy-Ed before the European war began. When he wasn't studying the United States navy or working at the Embassy or conversing in some lady's parlor, he usually could be found at one of the clubs playing cards or tennis or talking with Government officials. But the day hostilities in Europe commenced, the Captain withdrew from Washington. He hurried to New York and opened headquarters at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. He could direct pro-German propaganda more efficaciously there. And he went at it with vigor.

Before the war had been on a month he was thrust into the limelight as a trouble-maker and he remained in it as long as he remained in this country. From a quiet, affable society figure and club fellow, he became an aggressive and assertive German partisan, openly campaigning to create a pro-German sentiment throughout the United States. He declared emphatically that the German successes in the war with the allies were being belittled, and he charged the French and Belgians with atrocities more horrible than those with which the German invaders had been charged. Six months later he was charged by R. P. Stegler, a German reservist, with sending reservists to England and France as spies, Stegler alleging that Boy-Ed was responsible for the death of C. H. Lody, who was executed as a spy in the Tower of London. The Stegler charge grew out of the arrest of Stegler and several others in connection with passport frauds.

This case attracted wide attention and was one of the causes of bitterness in this country prior to America's entry into the war. The Captain's diplomatic immunity as an attache of the German Embassy prevented his arrest, but the case provoked a determined public clamor for Boy-Ed's internment or expulsion. This clamor was never stilled, but grew as time went on. The State Department, in February, 1915, announced it would not ask Ambassador Bernstorff for Boy-Ed's dismissal, but would call his attention to the naval attache's connection with the passport case and Stegler's charges.

Matters went on like this with no definite action taken until December, 1915. Then a real storm broke. It was disclosed, or at least a great deal of evidence was introduced to show that Captain Boy-Ed had spent several million dollars of German money in an attempt to foment a revolution in Mexico with border disturbances calculated to attract the attention of the United States to that region and away from the World War. An agreement with representatives of Huerta, it was stated, had been signed in Boy-Ed's New York apartment.

As a result of this disclosure, coupled with a growing sentiment against the German representatives, Captain Boy-Ed's dismissal was at once demanded by the State Department. At the same time, Germany was asked to recall Captain Franz von Papen, military attache of the German Embassy and Boy-Ed's colleague in his propaganda enterprises.

While State Department officials could not uncover legal proof against the German officers, the accumulation of circumstances bearing evidence against them could not be overlooked and Secretary Lansing informed Germany that their presence in this country could no longer be permitted. Germany asked for specific grounds, as well as for safe conduct for them, but Lansing denied that the Berlin Foreign Office had any right to inquire into and pass upon the circumstances if the United States Government had found the officers undesirable. So it was that Captain Boy-Ed was recalled to Germany. He sailed for home still trying to laugh off the Huerta tale and severely criticising the American press for its pro-British flavor.

Not many Americans realized that Boy-Ed's recall meant a bit more to him than mere dismissal from the country. And if they did, war-thirsty Americans were not in a humor just then to pay much attention to it. But the fact was that something had happened to the dashing Captain during his two years in America. He had fallen in love. Recall meant a serious interruption of his romance. As it turned out, it meant a six-year delay of his marriage. This is how it happened.

Before there was even a threat of war and while Boy-Ed was still very much the social lion in Washington, he met Miss Virginia Mackay-Smith, daughter of Bishop Alexander Mackay-Smith, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania. The Mackay-Smiths were really of Philadelphia, but maintained a house on fashionable Sixteenth street in Washington and were among the social leaders of the capital.

Almost from the start, it seems, Captain Boy-Ed was enamored of Virginia Mackay-Smith and had an eye for no other. Mothers of debutantes, match-making dowagers and all others who angled for him as a brilliant "catch" might just as well have saved themselves the trouble. The Captain was seen more and more often in the company of the Mackay-Smiths and even spent part of the summers at the Bishop's summer home in Maine. Eventually, it became known that Boy-Ed and Miss Mackay-Smith were engaged and would be married in a short time in spite of the diplomatic trouble the Captain had begun to get into. Miss Mackay Smith stood staunchly by him.

Captain Boy-Ed, in uniform.

The Captain then, in accordance with an iron-clad custom of the German army and navy, dispatched through Ambassador Bernstorff a query to Berlin, asking the Kaiser's permission to marry. Owing to the difficulties the German Embassy had been experiencing in maintaining confidential cable connections with Berlin since the beginning of the war, and since Captain Boy-Ed's request was a personal matter, particular pains were taken to insure its careful transmission. So the request was sent in a code known only to the Embassy officials. The Foreign Office, however, was requested to convey the Kaiser's answer by wireless. This was early in 1915.

Confident that the reply would be prompt and affirmative, the Captain and his bride-to-be began planning and even went so far as to set the wedding date.

But the affirmative answer did not come. There was no answer at all. It appeared that the Kaiser had ignored the request. Meanwhile, there developed the series of "plot" sensations involving the Captain and his colleague, Captain von Papen, the whole affair culminating in the demand for their expulsion. Still no answer came from Berlin.

For Captain Boy-Ed there followed months of agony. He was in a most embarrassing position and so was his fiancee. Mysterious whisperings and explanations which explained nothing made the round of society. The Captain waited for word that never came, until finally there arrived the order calling Boy-Ed home.

Still he lingered until official pressure from Washington made further delay impossible. Finally, he sailed without Virginia Mackay-Smith.

ARRIVING in Berlin, Captain Boy-Ed was greeted by friends who wanted to know where his bride was.

"His Majesty ignored my request for his permission."

But he found the Kaiser had not ignored his request. Admiral Von Tirpitz himself had sent the following reply: "His Majesty has graciously granted your request to marry."

Eventually the Captain learned what had happened to the message. The American naval officer acting as censor at the wireless station had found the message too innocent, too much like the "simple family telegrams" figuring in spy stories. It might be code, he thought, conveying some instruction which would be damaging to America. He would make sure it did no harm by suppressing it. Thus Captain Boy-Ed never heard of it.

There followed years of war and it was not until 1921 that the lovers were reunited. Then Virginia Mackay-Smith and her mother journeyed to Berlin and the long-delayed wedding took place.

Captain Boy-Ed, then nearly 50 years old, and his bride, 10 years younger, retired to his country estate and lived happily the few years that remained before fate was to separate them again—this time by death.

INTERESTING ST. LOUISANS

Dr. Michael Somogyi

Whose Dramatic Career in Revolutionary Hungary Was a Prelude to Scientific Accomplishments of World-Wide Importance as Bio-Chemist at the Jewish Hospital Here.

Number 51

Of the Series in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

VERY soon now work will begin on an addition to the St. Louis Jewish Hospital in which an entire floor is to be given over for research laboratories. The hospital is one of a very small number in this country, apart, of course, from those connected with universities, that supports a research branch. It is thanks largely to the researches of Dr. Michael Somogyi, bio-chemist, that this department has expanded so rapidly in the past two or three years.

Dr. Somogyi has given most of his life to research, in his native Hungary, in New York and here in St. Louis. He thinks in terms of research, of minute sectors of truth, set apart as the result of long and painstaking investigation, all of which go to make up the picture that science is gradually building of man in relation to the universe. It is a kind of spiritual brotherhood to which he belongs. Money is not the standard. Dr. Somogyi thinks in terms of hours spent in the laboratory, the number of assistants, the equipment available for his experiments. His researches, published in scientific journals, have aroused widespread interest and inquiries come to him from all parts of the world.

The significance of Dr. Somogyi's work has brought several gifts to the hospital. Aaron Waldheim, president of the board of trustees of the institution, has given the funds for the building soon to be erected. "We feel that Dr. Somogyi's work is of the utmost importance," Waldheim says. "It is one of the reasons for the building, so that he and the other research specialists may have ample room. The field of preventive medicine, on which this research has such an important bearing, has become increasingly important. No hospital, it seems to me, can afford to ignore it."

Dr. Somogyi insists that for the most part his work is very prosaic. From day to day the routine of his laboratory goes forward and there is little that the layman would understand and less that would stir his imagination. But occasionally there is drama. And at one period in his life Dr. Somogyi was a little too intimately mixed up with the world outside the laboratory to suit his tastes, for he was perilously concerned with the rise and fall of kings and dictators in post-war Europe.

The work that Dr. Somogyi did on insulin in association with two other bio-chemists, Professors P. A. Shaffer and E. A. Doisy of Washington University certainly had enough of the elements of drama. It is a story that was scarcely known at the time. The contribution of these men was of vital importance in the commercial preparation of insulin. They published their findings in a journal of bio-chemistry, they turned the patents they had secured over to a medical foundation, and were no longer interested. It didn't in the least matter to them that the public never knew the part they played in the war on diabetes.

It happened in this way. Professor Shaffer came back from a vacation spent near Toronto, Canada, in 1922. While in Toronto he had called on some colleagues at the University of Toronto and they had told him of the remarkable work of young Dr. F. G. Banting toward the discovery of a remedy for diabetes. The preparation, insulin, had virtually been proved to be a specific remedy at that time. Professor Shaffer brought word of this back to Washington University, along with the formulae then being used in the preparation of insulin.

DEAN MARRIOTT of the medical school, at that time head of the pediatrics department, was told of the discovery. It happened that he had two patients in Children's Hospital who were dying of diabetes. He suggested that insulin be prepared and administered to these children.

Professor Shaffer went to Dr. Somogyi and to Doisy and the three entered what was literally a race with death—a race to provide enough insulin for the two youngsters who were dying. They spent 18 to 20 hours a day in the laboratory. As fast as they could prepare the stuff it was rushed to the hospital.

The difficulty was that the process of extracting insulin from the small bodies known as the islands of Langerhans in the pancreas was then so uncertain and so slow. When it had been first put into use on human beings, severe and dangerous reaction followed in most cases. Dr. J. B. Collip, a bio-chemist at the University of Alberta, had done important work in purifying the product to do away with this. But by his method it was only once in four times in the treatment of the pancreas that insulin was extracted. So Dr. Somogyi and Professors Shaffer and Doisy labored late into each night to get enough of the precious fluid.

It was the first time that insulin had ever been used clinically in the United States. The two children were showing remarkable improvement. Dr. Marriott had another patient now for whom he wanted insulin. And calls were coming from the staff physicians at Barnes Hospital. If this would pull children back to life, then it would do the same for adults.

The three scientists were concentrating on improving the method. And finally they found what they were after. By eliminating two flaws from the original procedure they hit upon a method that gave an almost uniform extraction of insulin. It was fairly simple after that to provide as much as was needed.

Shortly after Dr. Somogyi came to Jewish Hospital four years ago an incident occurred that dramatically symbolized the relation between the hospital proper and the laboratory. A patient was brought in verging on diabetic coma. She proved to be a rather rare type and the ordinary dosage of insulin was of no avail at all. For three days and nights, at intervals of 10 minutes, samples of her blood were tested in the laboratory and on the basis of these tests insulin in increasingly large amounts was administered until the woman was receiving 1000 units, enough to kill 10 ordinary individuals. She recovered eventually and is today outwardly normal and healthy.

Dr. Somogyi got his training at the University of Budapest. He came there as a young man of 16 from a small Hungarian town, dependent on his own resources from that time onward. Until his senior year in the university he took the chemical engineering course. At that time he enrolled for the lectures of Professor Franz Tangl in bio-chemistry and the whole course of his life was changed. He soon formed a warm friendship with Professor Tangl.

The friendship deepened and at Somogyi's graduation Tangl urged him to accept a post, if not in the university laboratories, then in a government laboratory where the salary was slightly larger. Somogyi at this time was 21. His was a remarkable achievement. He had entirely earned his own way through the university. In America that feat is not unusual. In Europe, particularly at that time, it was almost unprecedented.

HE WAS determined to come to America. He had read certain romantic books about this country. The idea that anyone who had the capacity for work would always be given tasks to do particularly fascinated him. He firmly refused Tangl's offers of letters of introduction to scientists in the United States, he declined even a certificate setting forth the advanced studies he had taken. "In America all that is not necessary," he told the professor, who smiled tolerantly.

In New York Dr. Somogyi was soon disillusioned. He spoke no English. In his native land he had said, "Oh, I can learn it very quickly in America." But he found himself thrown almost entirely with Hungarians. And the only job he could find was driving for a German doctor and tending his office. His knowledge of German got him this position. He never let on to the doctor that he knew more than how to drive a horse and sweep out an office. One day he saw an advertisement for a research assistant in laboratory work. He applied for the job, explaining the training and experience he had had. They listened politely and then asked for credentials of some sort. What? He had none? Well, if he would just leave his name and address, they would notify him. And of course that was the last of that.

Desperation overcame him. He had been in America many months. But he had learned scarcely a word of English. Out of his meager salary he had been able to save $16. He took it all and planked it down at a railway ticket window. "How far west can I go on this?" he asked. It took him to Cincinnati. There the best thing he could find to do was hard labor in a rope factory, salary $7 a week. But he was able to live on $3 a week—room $1, meals, baths, English lessons $2. Throughout his life Dr. Somogyi has apparently had this remarkable ability to adjust himself to economic circumstances with entire ease.

He was not disillusioned, he says, looking back, by the evidences of poverty and suffering he saw in America, by the terrible slums. This he had expected. His reading, particularly in political science, had led him to believe that one would find poverty and all its attendant evils in large cities in a capitalist society.

Dr. Somogyi remembers many amusing things about this stay in Cincinnati. He shared his room with two Russian laborers, both radicals. They would become furious when Dr. Somogyi insisted on keeping the light burning at night in order to study his English lessons. "How can we ever hope to defeat capitalism with workers like you among us," they would sputter at him. "You work all day and then you work all night."

AFTER he had retrieved his watch from the pawnbrokers, saved $16 and learned a little English, he went back to New York. Again for a time he shifted about from one odd job to another. Then he saw an advertisement for a laboratory assistant. In the meantime he had written to Professor Tangl for letters of recommendation and the certificiate of his experience and studies. He went to apply for the job armed with these. It was at Bellevue Hospital Medical College and the man who interviewed him was the distinguished physiologist, Dr. Graham Lusk. Dr. Lusk heard his story, examined the letter of Professor Tangl.

"But the job that we have open here is that of a 'diener'—the man who cleans up the laboratory," Dr. Lusk said. "You wouldn't want that job."

"I'll take it," Dr. Somogyi said. At least it was somewhat closer to the work that he was trained to do.

The final outcome was that Dr. Lusk helped him to secure a position with the Cornell University Medical School as a full-fledged research assistant. He worked in that laboratory with Dr. Shaffer, the present professor of bio-chemistry at Washington University, with whom, very much later, he was to work on the preparation of insulin.

For two years Dr. Somogyi was very happy. His salary seemed munificent. He continued to live on a very simple scale, saving the greater part of his income. With a sufficient nest-egg, he decided to pay a visit to Hungary. Once back in his native land, his mother, on the death of his sister, persuaded him to stay with her. Then came marriage, a family of his own, ties and responsibilities that inevitably bound him to Budapest.

BUT he was never fully satisfied. He had been supremely happy in America. Hungary seemed entirely feudal to him. The "diener" in the government laboratory in which he worked always came to attention, with a click of the heels and a stiff bow, when he came to ask Dr. Somogyi what he would like for his mid-morning lunch. That typified everything he disliked about his native land.

But he worked a great deal for certain ideas, certain social theories that he held. There was a small element of leavening liberalism in this feudal Hungary. Dr. Somogyi believed that the findings of science should be made understandable to the lay public. He wrote at night, popular scientific articles for Social-Democratic papers. Dr. Somogyi also held a post with the public health department and was working hard to get across his view on proper diet.

Then the war came and feudal Hungary was involved in a bitter struggle for existence. Dr. Somogyi was given charge of feeding the destitute. As the battle lines tightened and the months grew into years, it was no longer a question of proper diet but a fierce struggle to get any kind of food at all.

At the outset he had organized his job very thoroughly. There was a model central kitchen with the most up-to-date equipment, and many distributing centers. Finally he was feeding 40,000 or trying to feed them, trying to get enough food together to keep them alive. Toward the close of the war he still had his perfect equip-

The JUST JUDGE

By PETER B. KYNE

FARO DAN and the Butterfly Kid were partners in business. Their business was gambling, and they followed the boom mining-camp circuit, because here the gambling laws were lax and often nonexistent, while the play was high and the profits in proportion to the play. Daniel dealt faro, and the Butterfly alternated between dealing Black Jack or presiding over a craps table. At the time the incidents to be narrated occurred, the locus of the labors of these two excellent fellows was in the Golden North Saloon and dance hall, in the new mining camp of Kampost, Alaska, some 400 miles from salt water and the civilization that flourishes in juxtaposition to it.

Chief of the Golden North was Kathleen Devoux, known in Kampost as Catty. Catty was a golden-hearted woman of 40; the world had knocked the corners off her, and she was disillusioned. Catty's nature made Kampost an ideal setting for her. She was interested solely in making a fortune in the Golden North; when she had made it, she was going back to the States where nobody knew her, and be very respectable. There was a reason for this, of course—a reason that men accepted as holy. She had a daughter whom she was bent on raising a lady.

Faro Dan was deeply in love with Catty, but hopelessly. He manhandled the English language; he had rolled much and gathered some moss which he knew from experience was evanescent.

It was a quiet night in the Golden North; and Faro Dan, wholly without patronage, was leaning over his faro table, smoking, and idly watching four men dallying at the Butterfly Kid's craps table. At midnight Faro Dan saw the Butterfly Kid yawn, stretch, grin at his customers and say: "Gents, I'm going to fold her up for the night. I'm tired and need a rest. Drop around tomorrow afternoon if you think your luck still holds."

He spread a cloth over his table and walked over to Faro Dan's table. "Notice that tall, sallow man, Dan? The fellow that made nine straight passes?" he queried.

Faro Dan nodded. "Bob Tandy?"

"Yes. Well, he's just too lucky. He don't play very long, but he wants to play for the limit and higher, if I'll let him; while he has the dice, he certainly collects. Dan, we been supportin' that chechahco for more'n two weeks. My guess is that he's a slight-o'-hand performer an' that he introduces his own dice into my game."

"This is serious," said Faro Dan heavily. "I'll look into it."

HE DID—very thoroughly, within the hour. He had observed that the Johnny-come-lately in question had, in Faro Dan's own terminology, been lallygagging around Catty Devoux whenever the opportunity offered. So, when presently Catty drifted around for a brief chat with Dan, whom she liked and respected, he unfolded to her the tale of his partner's suspicions.

"He must have the loaded dice in his pocket now," Catty reflected.

"I'd like a look at them," said Faro Dan; and Catty nodded and walked away. Half an hour later she had the suspected one in a box buying her wine, and she rolled her eyes at him. Finally he asked for a kiss. The coy Catty was willing, but wished to make it a sporting event. She said her kisses were worth at least $5 each, but she would roll him the dice, one flop, odd or even, one kiss against his $5. Tandy grinned, chose odd, produced his dice and rolled a seven. Catty gathered the dice, cupped them in her lovely white hands, talked to them, breathed on them—and rolled a pair of sixes.

"Five dollars, please," she said, and handed him back the dice. Abruptly she left him, went into her office and sent for Faro Dan; silently she handed him two green dice with which Daniel rolled four sevens and three elevens without stopping. "They are lucky, ain't they?" he murmured, and rolled them half a dozen times more, always turning up a seven or an eleven. "Keep them," Catty suggested. "He doesn't know the dice I gave him in exchange are honest, so you may get your seed back."

The following night Tandy again favored the Butterfly Kid with his patronage; and, trusting not wisely but too well in his dice, he lost a $500 bet to the Butterfly. Well, even trained dice will occasionally disappoint their owner, so Tandy, nothing daunted, pyramided his bet—and lost again. And just then Catty Devoux tapped him on the shoulder. "Your room's more desirable than your company, Tandy," she told him in a voice that all might hear. "Get out of my house and stay out."

So Tandy vamoosed, and in the quietude of his cabin sat down to figure it out. Not being unintelligent, he came, presently, to the realization that Catty had changed dice on him the night before, and in his wolfish soul there surged a yearning to be avenged on the woman.

Now, the fact that Catty had a daughter in a select finishing school in New York was common knowledge in Kampost. Tandy ascertained the name of the school Catty's daughter attended in New York City. Thereupon, he wrote her, informing her that her mother was ill of tuberculosis and that if she wished to see her alive she should come to Kampost before the river froze and the deep snows and blizzards in the mountains cut Kampost off from civilization for the winter.

His plan worked. The girl wired him she would start within a week, and asked him to meet her at the head of navigation and arrange for transportation thence to Kampost.

The day before Tandy was to leave Kampost he came down with a light attack of pneumonia and missed the steamer bound down river. And the day the steamer bearing Florence Devoux tied up at the head of navigation, Faro Dan walked aboard and went to the girl's cabin.

An explanation is necessary here, perhaps. The girl had telegraphed to her mother, via Juneau, a few days after leaving New York, that she was en route to Kampost. The effect on Catty had been terrible. For the first time in her life she fainted; and upon regaining consciousness she found herself in Faro Dan's arms. She had handed Faro Dan the telegram; and Faro Dan, being a man of great initiative and instantaneous decision, said:

"Don't worry, Catty. I'll go down and meet the steamer and shoo her back where she came from."

He found the girl packing a suitcase in her cabin. He stood outside on the deck and lifted his hat. "Miss Florence Devoux, I believe," he mumbled.

She turned. "That's my name, sir. Who are you?"

"A friend of your mother's, miss; I"——

"Oh, how stupid of me! You're Mr. Tandy, of course."

On the instant Faro Dan detected an odor of rat, but his face had never been more impassive as he replied: "You were expecting Mr. Tandy, of course."

"Yes, rather. In answering his letter telling me of mother's illness I asked him to arrange transportation for me from the steamer landing to Kampost, and expressed the hope that he would meet me here."

"So he informed me," Faro Dan lied glibly. "Unfortunately, he's been took down with pneumony o' the lungs, so I come down to save you the trip up. There ain't no use goin' further, Miss Florence, because your mother's left Kampost."

"Is she—dead?"

"Not at all. Some of her friends finally prevailed on her to sell out her business on account of her health.

"Health's more important than money, Miss Florence, so your mother saw we was right about it and sold out."

"I'm disappointed, of course, Mr."——

"Simmons is my name, Miss Florence. Dan Simmons."

——"But so glad you prevailed upon her to leave Alaska before her health was too far undermined. But what shall I do?" the girl demanded. She was very close to tears.

"Buy a return ticket back to New York and wait there for your mother to arrive. Maybe she'll lay over in Southern California for a spell to get rid of her bronchitis an' flesh up a little."

"But I—I haven't enough money to buy my ticket."

"I'LL advance that, an' when you meet your mother, you tell her about it an' she'll send me a check."

At parting the girl did something that thrilled and embarrassed Mr. Simmons almost to the point of tears. She put her arms around his neck and kissed him good-by because he had been such a good, kind friend to her mother, and also because he was such a dear. She told him he was sui generis.

Back in Kampost he called upon Doc Hamby. "How's Tandy comin' along?" he queried.

"So-o, Dan. I've had to hire an Indian to keep him in bed. He gets delirious and keeps telling me he's got to get out of Kampost quickly or somebody'll kill him."

"Maybe he ain't so delirious as you think, Doc. Is he goin' to get well?"

"Oh, certainly."

"There is a God," said Faro Dan, and went over to the Golden North to tell Catty the happy result of his recent expedition down river. "Which I stacked the cards on you deliberate, Catty," he concluded. "I ain't got what you call an alert imagination, and I told her you was already on your way out. So now you got to quit an' go out on the next steamer to make good on my lie."

"I'll quit," Catty agreed. "I can't risk this life any longer."

"It's time to quit a boom minin' camp while the goin's good, Catty."

"Did you find out what induced Florence to come here?"

He nodded and told her. "It won't happen again," he promised.

It didn't. After Tandy came out of his cabin to take the sun in the lee of his woodpile, Faro Dan appeared before him. "That low-down scheme o' yourn to break Catty Devoux's heart an' shame her an' humiliate her an' her daughter has sort o' backfired, Tandy," he announced.

Tandy turned the color of old ivory.

"On account the United States Comsioner died while I'm away," Faro Dan resumed, "there ain't no law left in Kampost, so the constitutional right o' trial by jury ain't in workin' order. Hence, I've elected myself Judge an' jury, an' you've been tried an' proved guilty.

"I can't trust you," Faro Dan decided. "I ain't much on law, Tandy, but I'm hell on justice; an' it's the decision o' this court that you've asked to be killed, an' it's up to the court to oblige you."

"Help! Murder!" Tandy screamed.

Thereupon Faro Dan drew a small automatic pistol, no longer than a derringer, from his vest pocket and shot Mr. Tandy expertly between the latter's shifty eyes. Then he walked sedately back to town.

As soon as Faro Dan arrived, Catty Devoux sent her bouncer to his table to ask him to come into her office.

"Doc Hamby found Tandy out by his woodpile this afternoon."

"I reckoned Doc would, Catty."

"Doc says he thinks you did it, Dan."

"I have a lot o' respect for Doc's intelligence. I done it, Catty."

"Why? I'm not worth it."

"The kid is," Faro Dan muttered bluntly. "I told you she kissed me, didn't I? And she said I was sui generis, whatever that means."

"It's Latin," said Catty, "and it means there aren't any more at home like you."

That night when Dan closed his game and spread the cloth over his layout, the Deputy United States Marshal said to him:

"Well, Dan, the Coroner's jury says Tandy came to his death at the hands of a party or parties unknown, but recommends that some effort be made to find out. So, as the representative of the law at Kampost, I'm starting with you. I'm hoping you won't offer no objection to accompanyin' me to my little log jail."

"Where's your warrant, Marshal? The only person in Kampost with the right to issue a warrant is the Deputy United States Commissioner, an' he died o' heart disease a week ago."

"I'm arresting you on suspicion."

"Which I won't be arrested," Faro Dan replied evenly, "until you serve a legal warrant on me."

"You'd better come peaceable, Dan."

"I'd ruther shoot it out, Marshal."

So the Marshal did not arrest Faro Dan. Instead he chartered a launch, took on a surplus supply of gasoline and went down the river to Juneau, there to swear to a warrant before the District Judge, charging Faro Dan Simmons with murder. And that night the first blizzard of the season arrived a month ahead of time.

WHEN the weather cleared the river froze solid and navigation was at an end for that year. However, all signs pointed to a few weeks of clear weather before the winter should arrive in earnest, so Catty Devoux sold the Golden North Saloon, gambling and dance hall, hired a musher and 20 dogs and went down the river in a sled and back to respectability.

"Why?" he queried bluntly.

"For lack of a better excuse, suppose I say I love you, Dan, and would like to marry you. I wouldn't fool you, Dan. I know you love me."

He smiled one of his rare golden smiles. "I'm sure complimented, Catty; nothin' would suit me better, but —I can't go yet."

"You can," she contradicted. "How much money have you and the Butterfly Kid got?"

"We could split about two hundred thousand."

"I have as much more. Dan, you and I need each other."

"But I can't go now," he replied. "I promised that Deputy Marshal I'd stay in Kampost till he got back with his warrant an' served it—an' he won't be back till spring. An' a new Deputy United States Commissioner'll come back up with him to try me for killin' Tandy."

"Suppose they prove it on you, Dan?"

He shrugged. "Gambler's luck, Catty. But if they don't convict me I'll come out as soon as the trial's over."

"Will you look me up?"

"If you leave me your address."

"Kiss me," Catty commanded fiercely. "I'll wait for you to come out."

"It may be a long wait, my dear."

WELL, there wasn't any law in Kampost that winter. A miner had a wordy quarrel with the Butterfly Kid because the latter changed the dice on him after the miner had rolled craps eight times in succession. The dice were not loaded, but the Butterfly had grown suddenly superstitious and believed in change. So the miner killed the Butterfly and Faro Dan killed the miner.

By unanimous consent old "Judge" Borden, the District Recorder, who had been a Justice of the Peace in a previous incarnation, and had a reputation for being the most just and incorruptible man in the territory, was elected president of the Vigilance Committee, the position carrying with it that of Judge whenever that committee should function as a jury.

Judge Borden knew little of the law, but he was courageous and strong on equity. Sandy McKenzie was elected public prosecutor, with authority to enforce appearance before the committee of all persons charged with an offense against the extremely sketchy statutes made and provided. Mr. McKenzie thereupon decided to commence operations by bringing Faro Dan Simmons to the bar of justice for the murder of Bob Tandy.

Under the shrewd questioning of McKenzie, Doc Hamby testified that Faro Dan had manifested an alert interest in Tandy's welfare—had voiced to him, Doc, the opinion that perhaps Tandy wasn't as delirious as Doc thought; that he had inquired if Tandy would get well, and upon being assured that Tandy would, had remarked that there was a God and walked off.

Throughout the trial Faro Dan had sat calmly by, smoking. When the prosecution's testimony was all in, Judge Borden said to him: "Daniel, you have refused to acknowledge the jurisdiction of this committee. You have declined to plead guilty or not guilty. The citizens of Kampost have a moral right to organize for protection until such time as a new Deputy United States Commissioner shall have been appointed by our Government. If you care to conduct your own cross-examination of the witnesses, it is your privilege so to do."

"THEY told the truth, Judge," Faro Dan replied. "Far be it from me to try to trap 'em into sayin' somethin' else an' gettin' 'em in wrong with their feller citizens."

"Have you any statement to make in your own defense? If you have, I advise you to make it before the jury retires to deliberate on a verdict."

"Who sets the penalty, Judge?"

Judge Borden squirmed. "Certainly not the Judge of this court. The Vigilance Committee—that is, the jury—will set the penalty and carry it out. If I am a judge of the temper of the committee, it will, upon finding you guilty, hang you forthwith to the nearest tree." His tone changed to one of pleading. "Dan, for God's sake don't be obstinate. If you killed Tandy, and had a real, valid man's reason for doing it, speak up and say so. The committe is not unreasonable."

But Faro Dan shook his head. "If I did that, Judge, I'd have to drag a lady's name into it—two ladies in fact. An' both ladies are plump respectable."

His Honor sighed. "Then you admit having killed Tandy?"

"I won't admit nothin'," Faro Dan replied doggedly, "except to say that this skunk Tandy wanted killin'. He tried to ruin one woman's reputation in a quarter where her reputation counted, and to do that he had to break the hearts of two women. A man found this out, and proved it by one reputable witness and a letter Tandy had written. There bein' no law in Kampost at the time, this man elected to try Tandy himself."

"Ah," Judge Borden murmured. "You

The JUNIOR LEAGUE TURNS PRODUCER of CHILDREN'S PLAYS

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

TAKING children to a play has long perplexed many a parent. The choice usually narrows down to some show that the parents think is harmless, and the result is that the children find it either dull or silly, thus getting the idea that the theater is merely a place in which to squirm around and to emit occasionally a giggle.

For very young children the theater offers practically nothing. There used to be occasional productions by professionals. These were often pretty insipid, as if the actors were trying to say "goo-goo" at the children. The children didn't like them, and few of them asked their parents to be taken a second time. So it was not surprising that the commercial theater abandoned plays for children as a highly unprofitable venture.

The situation was neatly illustrated in an article in the New York Theater Guild Magazine, which said: "Small wonder that at one professional performance for children, an irritated old lady turned upon her whining grandson and was overheard to remark, 'Now look here, I brought you here to have a good time, and a good time you shall have, if I have to box your ears for it.'"

The Junior League of St. Louis does not intend to let any more children get their ears boxed, for this organization has gone into the real-plays-for-wide-awake-children business with great gusto.

The idea of the Junior League is to put on plays that are both amusing and youthfully fantastic; to "act up" to their audience, giving it credit for being a smart audience; and to have fun on the theory that the children will have fun, too. "Racketty Packetty House," a play in three acts and a prologue, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, is the choice of the Junior League for a production this autumn. It will be presented on the Saturday mornings of Nov. 8, 15 and 22 at the Hadley Vocational School—the old Mary Institute building — at Waterman and Lake avenues, with such characters as Queen Crosspatch and Ridicklis bouncing around the stage. The cast will be made up entirely of St. Louis Junior League young women. Mrs. C. H. Williamson is the coach and Miss Edith Peters is chairman of the play committee.

"Racketty Packetty House" will be the second children's production of the Junior League. The first was "Beauty and the Beast," given last May.

The Chicago Junior League is said to have been very successful in putting on plays for children, but the St. Louis league feels confident that it is off to a fast start here — what with one success last spring, a show in the making this autumn, and another planned for next spring.

The real work of the Junior League goes on the year round. Its charitable and philanthropic enterprises which the income from the annual ball and its plays makes possible, are its prime purposes.

The league conducts an occupational therapy workshop at 4567 Scott avenue, where people who are referred by hospital clinics are given work for which they are physically and mentally fitted. In conjunction with this workshop is the shelter where people who are chronically handicapped are helped economically until placed in industry.

To people who can do useful work but who are unable to leave their homes or rooms, the Junior League takes material which can be made into marketable articles, such as toys and sewing. These articles are placed on sale at the Open Door, 4914 Maryland, and the workers are paid for what they do whether the articles are sold or not.

ll the initial steps if a career is to be achieved. Her first appearance was in the chorus of a revue.

Interestingly enough, her presence was made possible through the interest of one of Manhattan's most socially prominent society women. The producer was casting. Helene, while more than ordinarily attractive, had had no experience and might not have been able to get by the "front gate" of a producer's office if she had not had someone to intercede for her.

Being one of the first of the society girls to join a chorus, her story attracted national interest. The talking pictures recorded her in the news reels and the newspaper chronicled her experiences and reactions.

Before spring arrived, half a dozen rich and socially prominent young women were appearing in the theaters and acting as models. One had become among the most widely photographed beauties of the national advertisements; a half-dozen others were playing minor roles on Broadway; an employment bureau for social registerites had been organized and specially classified positions were being opened for girls from the Park avenue and Fifth avenue circles.

"I DON'T intend to let marriage end my ambitions," says Helene in the best manner of the modern girl. "We have talked that all over. I'm going on being his model as long as he wants me to, and I'm going to try to achieve the stage or pictures."

Will it not bother her just a bit to have other lovely girls posing for her husband?

And there's where Barclay comes into the picture again.

"Every artist has to have certain types for certain portraits or illustrations," he explains, "but it isn't often that a model comes along who turns out to be the type you want around the house for the rest of your life. Our marriage, I hope, will not make the slightest difference in our relations as artist and model.

"If in the morning, I have something to paint, I shall expect to call to Helene to jump into a pair of pajams or an evening gown and spend the morning sitting for me."

He appears to think he has found the "model" bride.

Life and Death of Van Gogh

Gauguin's without feeling the deepest gratitude toward him.

Gauguin got a sly pleasure out of teasing Vincent. Sometimes the latter would storm out of the house in desperation. One night he walked on the plain of Arles for six hours before he came back. And then came the night of crisis. Vincent had proposed with all his intense earnestness that they do a painting together. He would do one part, Gauguin another. The latter stopped in the roadway and let out his bellowing laughter. Then he was insulted. For several days he would not forgive Van Gogh, who pleaded for forgiveness. He insisted on taking his meals alone, though Van Gogh all but kneeled before him, called him master. Then, after a particularly violent scene, Gauguin left the house to spend the night at an inn. At midnight came the gift of the ear to the Arlesienne girl he had known. She had made a joke once—if Van Gogh could not give her presents of money he might at least give her one of his lop ears.

Gauguin departed calmly, leaving Van Gogh alone in the yellow house, with his head bandaged up. For a time Van Gogh stayed on, ravaged by recurring madness.

AT LAST, of his own accord, Vincent entered the asylum at Saint-Remy. Then Theo, who had married in the meantime, arranged to have him live with a certain Dr. Gachet in Auvers-sur-Oise. Dr. Gachet was a painter of sorts as well as a physician. He had been a friend to a number of modernists, to Pissarro, Gauguin, Bernard. Their paintings were strewn about his house.

Vincent continued to paint in Auvers-sur-Oise. But Dr. Gachet maddened him with his incessant chatter. He insisted on thinking that Vincent was a great painter. That was particularly maddening. "I am nothing," he would shout at the kindly old man. "Look at the paintings of Pissaro and Gauguin if you want to see great work."

It became an obsession with Van Gogh that Dr. Gachet should frame the pictures that were stacked in corners about the house. It was sinful, a crying shame, that such beautiful pictures should go unframed. Dr. Gachet didn't take this obsession very seriously until one day Van Gogh spoke harshly to him and he saw, in a mirror, that the artist had a revolver behind his back. He grew terribly frightened. But Van Gogh left, went into his room, shot himself in the stomach and died two days later.

have made a statement that will carry weight with this jury, provided you can prove it. I think every real man in this room will agree that if Tandy did that he deserved killing. Suppose you produce the two ladies in question and the incriminating letter, if you have it. Such testimony would greatly clarify the case."

"The letter wasn't mine an' I haven't got it. Also the two witnesses live in the United States an' I wouldn't disgrace 'em by askin' 'em to come up an' testify in my behalf. Judge, I just couldn't do it, because that would reveal the disgrace they was saved from, an' which one of the ladies don't even suspect as yet. An' as far as I'm concerned, she never will suspect it."

"How about the other lady? Is she informed of the facts?"

"Yes, Judge."

"Does she know who killed Tandy?"

"Yes, I told her."

"Dan, I advise you to make a clean breast of this whole affair, without mentioning names. I assure you your statement will carry weight with this committee. If you did not kill Tandy, you have admitted you know who did, and by refusing to name the murderer, you make of yourself an accessory before and after the fact."

"That's my hard luck, Judge. I just won't tell. An' that's all I'm going to say on the subject, exceptin' that I thank you, Judge, for your interest an' fairness an' friendliness, an' if there's no objection I'll go out an' git my lunch now an' leave the jury to its deliberations. I'll be at my cabin when you send for me."

"Gentlemen," said Judge Borden, "you will retire to your deliberations. Under the circumstances you will excuse me from charging the jury, and as Judge I may not join in your deliberations. I'm going to lunch myself, and will be back at 1 o'clock. I will be responsible for the appearance of this defendant in court after you have arrived at a verdict."

"I give you my word of honor, Judge, I'll come back with you peaceable an' hand you my guns before we start back." And Faro Dan took the Judge's arm in his, and they walked on in silence.

"Well?" said the Judge.

"I'll tell you all the ins an' outs of this case," Faro Dan replied affably, "because I can trust you." And thereupon he told Judge Borden he had killed Tandy, and why.

Together they returned to discover that the committee was deadlocked on a verdict. "Reckon I got 15 friends an' 15 enemies on this jury," said Faro Dan, "an' one thing I'm sure of: my friends will stick by me till they grow oranges in Kampost."

"Is there any hope of your reaching a verdict?" the Judge inquired of the jury.

"No!" A unanimous reply from Faro Dan's supporters.

"Under the rules governing this Vigilance Committee, a verdict must be reached within four hours. At the mass meeting which elected this committee, it was unanimously agreed that there should be no hung juries—that in event of a failure of two-thirds of the jury to decide on a verdict, the prisoner was to be discharged, but that in the event of a tie vote some method of deciding the deadlock must be devised. Personally I voted against this rule and I still protest against it."

"WELL, I don't," said Faro Dan cheerfully. "Judge, I'll cut the cards with you. High or low. High, I'm innocent. Low, I git hung."

"Nothin' doing," a juryman protested. "Dan Simmons can do things with cards none of us know nothin' about."

Judge Borden gazed sadly upon Faro Dan. "I think that objection is well taken, Daniel. Under the rules, the Court alone has the right to devise the method of deciding a tie vote."

He left the courtroom and was gone exactly half an hour. When he returned, he said: "The Court has decided to roll the bones, one flop, odd or even, with the defendant. Odd, he wins; even, we lose. Is that method satisfactory?"

A chorus of "Yes!" answered him.

"Somebody," said the Judge, "produce a pair of dice."

Three pair of dice were flung on the table before him. He selected a green pair. "I will investigate these dice," he then announced, and tossed them half a dozen times, with varying results. "They appear to be honest dice. Dan, will you throw first?" And he tossed the dice to Faro Dan, who rattled them and threw them out.

"Eight—and even," the Judge announced. "If the Court throws an even number also, the contest is a tie and must continue until one throws an even and the other an odd."

Judge Borden moistened his lips; he reached into his pocket, drew forth a bandana handkerchief and wiped his brow. He put the handkerchief back in his pocket with his right hand and reached for the dice with his left. He rolled them.

"Seven—and odd," Sandy McKenzie announced. The Judge sat back and thrust his hands into his coat pockets. His calm, judicial gaze swept the room; his hands came out of his coat pockets, and in each hand was a small automatic pistol belonging to Faro Dan.

"The defendant is discharged," he declared, and passed both the guns to the defendant.

Faro Dan strolled over to his cabin, on the way to his door noticing footprints in the snow. The footprints led to his front door, then around to the rear entrance.

"I've had a visitor while bein' tried for my life," Faro Dan decided, and let himself in. On the shabby old rug in his combination dining room and sleeping quarters he observed a small wet spot; he saw that a drawer in the homemade bureau was partially open.

"Dang this here crime wave," Faro Dan soliloquized. "I been burglarized!" He went to the back door and found that it had been jimmied free of the lock with a short crowbar. Indeed, the crowbar lay on the kitchen table. "Dropped a little snow off himself in front of the bureau, an' it melted," he decided. "Wonder what the sucker's took?"

He investigated carefully and finally came to the conclusion that his sole possessions that were missing were the pair of green dice Catty Devoux had taken from Bob Tandy and given to Faro Dan, and which he had placed in his bureau drawer. While he was wondering who could have taken them Judge Borden walked in on him.

"Well, Dan," he announced, "I suppose congratulations are in order."

"Thank you, Judge," Faro Dan replied. "Under the circumstances I'm wonderin' if we shouldn't hoist one?"

"We should by all means."

So they hoisted. Faro Dan raised his glass, looked through it and then at the Judge. "I drink," he said, "to a just and incorruptible Judge, to a man so honest there ain't a man in the Territory of Alaska that would dream of criticisin' his decisions. God bless you and long may you live—you danged old crook!"

The Judge raised his glass. "Well, Daniel! Pleasant green fields!"

They drank. "You sure handled them dice like an expert," Faro Dan said admiringly.

"And why not?" the just Judge retorted. "When I was a very young man—many years before I discovered that honesty was the best policy—and subsequently established a reputation for incorruptibility—I made a living by betting the credulous that the pea wasn't under the walnut shell they had seen me place it under." His Honor smiled. "And besides," he concluded irrelevantly, "I always did like Catty."

"Judge," murmured Faro Dan, "you're sui generis."

"Maybe so," the Judge replied, "but I've been good to you, so I don't see why you should call me names!"

A Six-Year-Old With a Mustache

when you get a little older? Ride horses in races?"

Clarence pondered this a moment, then asked: "How much do jockeys make?"

While most of Clarence's conversation is what one would expect of a 6-year-old boy, an occasional remark either in its content or the judicial manner in which it is uttered, strikes one as oddly mature. In a conversation at the Kehr home it was mentioned that a package of cigarettes on the table belonged to some woman. Clarence, who was making an adjustment of the motion picture machine, glanced up to ask, "Does she smoke?" On being answered in the affirmative, he resumed his work and a moment later said tolerantly, "Well, women smoke a good deal now."

The Kehrs are Catholics, and while Clarence isn't taken to church often because of the attention he attracts, he says his prayers every night, his mother says. There is an altar in his bedroom.

Anyone who sees this 6-year-old boy with the mustache and bulging knotted muscles, and hears his booming baritone, inevitably seeks the explanation of this phenomenon. Medical science—which, incidentally, calls Clarence's condition macrogenitosomia praecox—cannot answer certainly, but believes the pineal gland, a cone-shaped organ about one-fifth of an inch long and one-tenth of an inch in diameter, situated a little above the base of the brain, is responsible. Dr. Teter is convinced the boy's strange development is due to a tumor of the pineal.

SUCH tumors have been found under post-mortem examination in similar cases. These cases are rare in medical literature. One of the most eminent writers on the subject says he has seen only two.

The pineal is one of the glands of which little is known. There is supposed to be a connection between it and the glands controlling sex development. In ancient times it was thought to be the seat of the soul. There are at present two theories concerning its function. One is that it becomes active at the time of adolescence, thus stimulating sexual and related growth, and when adolescence is over it withers away, thus ending its owner's physical growth. According to this theory, a tumor makes it prematurely active, bringing on adolescence before the normal time for it.

The other theory is that the gland acts as a brake on sex development and its accompanying phenomena, atrophying at adolescence and allowing the maturing process to be accomplished. If this is its function, it is thought that a tumor destroys its power and allows adolescence to start at an abnormally early age.

Since the gland is closely surrounded by brain tissue essential to life, a surgical operation upon it would be virtually certain to result fatally for the patient.

In the Toledo boy's case it is thought likely that the disorder of the pineal gland has affected other ductless glands in such a way as to account for his shortness of stature and unusual muscular development.

As to what lies ahead for Clarence Kehr Jr., no one cares to say with certainty. Dr. Teter says his mind should develop normally, keeping pace with his actual years. But the boy will never be much larger than he is now, the doctor thinks. He has grown little in the last two years, and indications are his adolescence is virtually over; that at 6 he "has his growth."

Interesting St. Louisans—Dr. Somogyi

ment and nothing to prepare with it but pickled turnips. Sometimes the turnips were mixed with a little flour and the mess was baked. Dr. Somogyi was helpless, between the tangle of a bureaucratic government that changed ministers almost from day to day and a starving mob. The university students threatened to lynch him because of the fare he was forced to serve them.

The war ended and the Hapsburg monarchy collapsed. Count Michael Karolyi then formed a Liberal Cabinet. But this government was short-lived. It was succeeded by the Communist dictatorship of Bela Kun. Dr. Somogyi was not molested during this phase of the revolution in Hungary. With his family, he led a quiet life, tried to keep as much out of the picture as possible. Bela Kun sought to place Dr. Somogyi in a government post having to do with public health but he declined even to consider it. He had no faith in the Communist dictator.

And the Bela Kun regime did not survive long. Admiral Nicholas Horthy and his counter-revolutionary forces swept down and a reign of terror began. All the reactionaries leapt up at this opportunity and according to Dr. Somogyi an orgy of bloodshed followed. Degenerate, psychopathic tendencies made themselves felt in the sadistic reprisal against the opposition. There was no discrimination—Communists and Social-Democrats looked alike to the victorious Whites. Dr. Somogyi does not care to speak of this period. Too many painful memories center about it.

FOR a long time he knew that his own life was in danger. There were absolutely uncontrollable elements among the reactionaries who went about pillaging and murdering almost at will. Horthy was not at all anxious to have Dr. Somogyi done away with. In fact, he was most anxious to avoid that eventuality. It would have been bad politics.

There came a time when Dr. Somogyi and his family could endure it no longer. He secured his passport and took boat on the Danube for Vienna. A special guard, appointed at the request of Mrs. Somogyi by the Government, accompanied him to the boundaries of Hungary to make sure that he got safely away. His family followed not long afterwards. For a time they remained in Vienna and then came to America, to St. Louis, by invitation of Dr. Shaffer.

He has been very happy in his work. It has centered especially around the treatment of diabetic patients, the use and perfection of certain laboratory tests. "It is a very unusual and remarkable opportunity that we have here," Rr. Somogyi says. "We are very fortunate in being able to give virtually all our time to research."

Only once has Dr. Somogyi interrupted his work to return to his native land. That was two years ago. He will not go back again, he says. At least not for a long time. Here he can work and that is the essential thing in his life. Although he is 47 years old, he appears to be considerably younger. He has about him a calm gravity. There is the sense that no matter what confronts him, he will meet it with the same measured regard, without fear or favor.

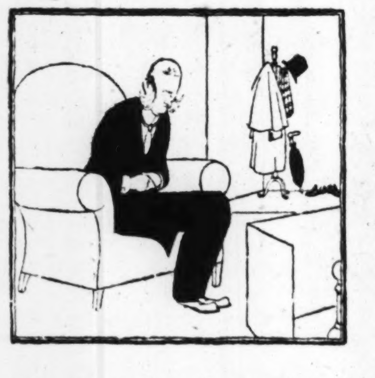
FABLES IN SLANG

The Tilt Between the Geological Specimen and the Whoopee Up-to-Daters.

ONCE there was a Household containing a Relic and Hold-Over known as Uncle Philo. If he had been led out and shot in 1895 the general Current of the World's History would not have been changed by as much as a Ripple.

He was living on his Income and dwelling in the Past. He believed that Rutherford B. Hayes was President and that "The Black Crook" was a darn sight more snappy than Georgie White's "Scandals."

He thought that the 1876 Centennial at Philadelphia was a niftier Show than anything that can be put on at Chicago in 1933. He rubbed oil into what was left of his Hair and parted it behind, the same as a first-class Bird Dog. If you had asked him to name the fastest Harness Nags on the Big Circuit, he would have replied, "Dexter and Maud S."



Yes, he was like that—sleeping in a Nightie instead of Pajamas. He had laid out in front of each Ear a luxuriant Bed of Trailing Arbutus because he wished to preserve for Posterity one of the glorious hirsute Traditions established by William H. Vanderbilt.

He wore a Derby which was flat on top, like a New Mexican Table-Land, and box-toed Boots. He owned the only Bootjack in the World outside of a Museum.

He broke Crackers into his Oyster Soup and had a Watch Chain made out of Human Hair and thought that Fairbanks was the name of a Lakeside resort.

HE NEVER had heard of the World War because he stopped reading after the New York Ledger, with Continued Stories by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, went out of Existence.

He was just as Antique as one of those Dinosaur Eggs brought back from the Gobi Desert by Roy Chapman Andrews. He dated back to the Peak of Mid-Victorian Boobery when an Ankle was a Thrill, a Calf was a Romantic Experience and a Kneecap was an Orgy.

He disapproved of Everything that had happened since the Death of Ward McAllister. He refused to Dance because the Lancers and the Schottische were no longer on the Card. He still believed in Chaperons and had been practicing on the Flute for over Forty Years and wore Wristlets in the Winter Time.

Mrs. Upton had plucked him from a Hotel and given him Refuge for a couple of Reasons. One was that he was her only Brother and the other was that he had mowed away quite a Bundle of Jack. It was said that he still had the Shin-plasters he earned by selling Newspapers after the Fall of Richmond and also a sockful of Iron Dollars which went out of circulation just before McKinley was elected.

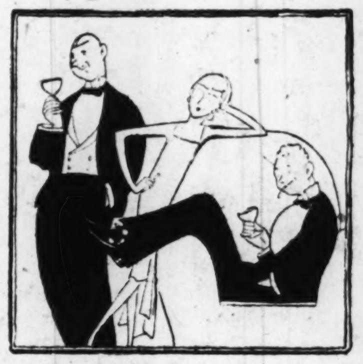
How true it is that one who lugs a Mess of the good old Mazume will never want for a Home, even if those who are nearest and dearest often feel tempted to slip about an Ounce of Strychnine into the Coffee.

All Members of the Household had their Orders to humor the Grouch. The Relatives did not wish to have him leave Everything to a Hospital, and they figured that he could not change his Will while they held him in Captivity and kept Tab on him.

So there he was, just as welcome as Tonsilitis and just as jovial as a Police Dog, but having his own Way about everything and looking for Battle every Minute. The only time he didn't crab was when he was asleep.

It happened that Mr. and Mrs. Upton had three Olive Branches, if you don't care what you say, because they were more like poison ivy. They were the Kind that most of the Books and Movies have been written about since the War—and all to no Purpose.

One was Bertie—aged 22, and therefore old enough to buy it legally from a Bootlegger. Freddie was only 18, but he had seen more Life than Uncle Philo, who was just two years younger than the Pyramid of Cheops. In between came Virgie, Junior Champion Smoke Inhaler and Jazz Wiggler of the entire World. She was built like the Running Gears of a Wasp and always looked as if she needed a couple of Nights of Good Sleep, but when it came to staying out and holding up and putting down, she had Marathon Class, even if she was two pounds lighter than a Straw Hat and walked as if she had just been dried out over a Barrel. Here was a Trio that proved more than a Handful for Pa and Ma Upton. Uncle Philo was always sitting back in a leather-covered chair gibbering about Parental Authority, but the Elders had just as much Authority over the Nighthawks as the Anti-Saloon League has over H. L. Mencken.



Bertie and Freddie and Virgie believed in Daylight Saving. They saved it for Purposes of Slumber, so that they would be on their Toes by Evening and all Set to rush into the Night Air and swig Synthetic Varnish and devote themselves to any Pastimes which were unlawful and riotous.

Usually they were up and about, inhaling some Grapefruit and an Egg about the time the Decrepit Fossil was getting ready to call it a Day and back into the Alfalfa.

One Evening, when they were getting limbered up for their Midnight Gymnastics, Uncle Philo was in the Living Room, brooding over his Neuritis and the Hardening of the Arteries, and he opened up on them Proper with the Heavy Artillery.

"It's a good Thing for you I'm not your Father," he said, glaring at Virgie.

"You uttered a mouthful," retorted Virgie. "You're not half as happy about it as I am. You'd be an Awful Thing to lead out and show to the Boy Friend. You certainly did some Woman a great favor by not marrying."

"I could have had my Pick," said Uncle Philo, bristling. "What's more, everyone I kept Company with was a Daisy, a Dumpling and a Lamb. She didn't go around half naked, or wear Short Pants like a Man when she played golf, or gamble for Money, or take anything to drink except a little Sherry on New Year's Day."

"With Drinks a Year apart, I'll say she must have been speedy," commented Bertie. "What did she do for the other 364 Days in the Year?"

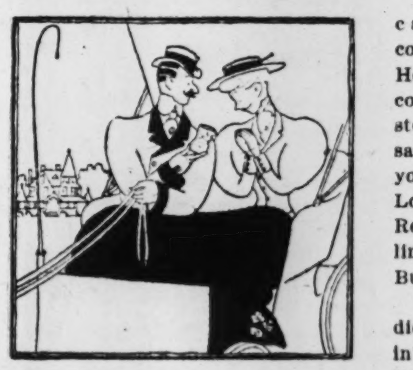
"Well, she took Music Lessons and played the Guitar and helped with the Housework and did Embroidery. You can bet she didn't go traipsing around Night after Night with a lot of Tough Nuts who shouldn't be tolerated in any Respectable Home. When she danced it was a Dance and not a Wrasslin' Match."

"We've seen the Woodcuts of her," said Freddie, "and I'll say that if she ever came back she'd stop Traffic. She wore a Mop of Hair and a Balloon Dress that dragged in the Dust and a Corset that made her look like a figure eight."

"At least, she was refined and Womanlike," said Uncle Philo. "She knew that a Woman's Place was in the Home."

"Wearing that Regalia and squeezed all out of Shape, no wonder she stayed at Home," suggested Virgie. "Life must have been just one Thrill after another; getting into the Harness, doing up about a Bushel of Hair and then practicing 'The Maiden's Prayer' on the Harpsichord. Didn't she ever break over at all and go on a Bust and have a Touch of High Life?"

"Yes, we had plenty of Fun in the Good old Days, but not the kind you have now when you jump in a high-powered Car and go out to some Dump and break Furniture until the Federal Officers come along and padlock the place. The well-bred Young Lady of my Time never saw a Cocktail Shaker or took a drag at a Cigarette or talked Sex."



"Did she ever suspect that there was such a Thing as Sex?" asked Bertie, with a Broad Wink at the Others.

"If she did, she never said anything about it," replied Uncle Philo.

"All of which is Boloney and I'm guessing that she knew more than she let on," said the hardened Junior of the Tribe y'clept Freddie. "Do you mean to sit there and tell me that the Sweetie of the Dark Ages never indulged in any Fussing, Petting, Necking, or any Form of Indoor or Outdoor Sport?"

This was indeed a Poser for the Old Boy and he immediately assumed the confused and guilty Air of a Man with a Dirty Past.

"I'm not sayin' that we didn't raise a little Cain now and agen," he admitted. "F'rinstance, I had a Side-Bar Buggy that was a Beaut. I owned a nice Roan Stepper that was a Jim-Dandy, a Laprobe that was embroidered with Roses and a Buggy Whip with a Red Tassel."

"Now we are getting the Low-Down," said Virgie. "Flaming Youth! Anything on the Hip?"

"A Bag of Peppermint Drops," admitted Uncle Philo. "The Gals along about 1880 didn't expect a Young Feller to squander a lot of Spondulix on them. They had more Gumption than these Gol-Blamed Flappers have nowadays."

Uncle Philo was doing his Stuff and pulling a lot of slang which was current in the Era which produced Henry Ward Beecher, Harrigan and Hart and Victoria Woodhull. He wanted to show these pin-feathered Smart Alecks that he had been there in his Hey-Day.

"I'll bet if you came clean you could write some Hot Stuff for these confession and true story magazines," said Freddie. "Did you ever stop at a Lonely Spot in the Road and wrap the lines around the Buggy Whip?"

"I'm not sayin' I did and I'm not sayin' I didn't," replied Uncle Philo, attempting to look like a Satyr.

"You must have got a great kick out of stealing a little Squeeze from some Cutie who was all done up in Whalebone," suggested Virgie.

"I'm not going into Particulars," said Uncle Philo. "At least, we never forgot we were Gentlemen. We didn't muss 'em up the way kids do now."

"How do you know what happens after the Sun goes down?" asked Freddie.

"OH, I CAN tell Beans when the Bag's Open," chirped Uncle Philo, pulling a Wise Crack that went over Big the Year in which Greeley ran against Grant.

"Your Line of Chatter is so old that it's New," said Virgie. "You could get a job in a Night Club if they kept open in the Daytime."

"Well, anyway, when a Young Fellow took his Steady out for a Ride in my time there wasn't any scandal."

"That's easy to explain," said Bertie. "You couldn't get far enough out into the Country with a Buggy but what it was easy for the Girl to walk back Home."

"They didn't walk back Home!" snouted Uncle Philo angrily.

"Ah, I knew we'd get the Dirt if we kept at him long enough," exclaimed Virgie triumphantly. "Let's beat it to the Bucket of Blood Roadhouse. I don't want to hang around here with such a Rough Gink."

So they left him Flat, and he somehow realized that he had lost the Argument.

EVEN his mother can't remember the first time he tasted Castoria. Nor what may have been the trouble. Colic, perhaps. Or constipation. Or just a fretful spell. But she hasn't forgotten how quickly those few drops can comfort her baby. And she hasn't forsaken Castoria because the child is now older.

Castoria is a mild medicine. It is the recognized remedy for infants. The formula on the wrapper tells you that. Your doctor will confirm it. But what could be better for older children? Why change to stronger medicine intended for adults? Old, reliable Castoria will still keep the little system in order. A pure vegetable preparation that won't upset young stomachs. A gentle regulator that always aids the bowels when dull eyes or sallow skin or coated tongue warn of constipation.

Get a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria today, and familiarize yourself with its every-day uses. It's the first thing many mothers give any child who has caught cold. And at first signs of any fever. When a child won't eat, or when everything he does eat seems to disagree. Try a little Castoria—which all children love to take—and notice the improvement.

Your druggist has genuine Castoria, with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the wrapper.

Now! A Complete Professional Facial at Home . . . in 3 Minutes

COLD CREAM
ASTRINGENT POWDER BASE

A New and Amazingly SIMPLIFIED Way in Skin Care That's Being Adopted by Tens of Thousands of Busy Women

NOW comes a remarkable new development in beauty science. A discovery that experts predict may soon change all previous methods in skin care.

A way that condenses the four fundamentals of scientific skin care into a single three-minute home application! And that provides the exact and same effect of a complete Professional Facial costing $3 or more.

A way that combats blackheads and enlarged pores; often with almost unbelievable results. That banishes premature age lines, and the lines of strain and worry. For each application works directly on each and all of these conditions.

Hence, a way that completely eliminates the need of costly special creams and lotions. Of old-time cleansing creams, of "skin foods" and astringents. Yet—that is as easy to use as an ordinary cleansing cream.

Do you wonder, then, that largely on expert advice tens of thousands of women are adopting this unique creation?

What It Is

It is called Lady Esther Four-Purpose Cream. And it marks the application of totally new principles in skin care as defined by the most recent scientific findings of ablest specialists in the field of beauty culture.

Each application has four distinct actions on the skin.

Cleansing action that cleanses the pores. And thus ends the use of an ordinary cleansing cream.

Astringent action that eradicates worry and premature age lines, refines pores.

Softening action that forms a perfect base for powder. And thus banishes the need of a powder base. Thus the four fundamentals of skin care are condensed into a single, 3-minute application.

Age lines soon go under this daily care. Flabby tissues strengthen and become firm. The skin is kept clean—for the astringent action of this cream closes the pores after they've been cleaned.

It is sold under the name of Lady Esther at all drug and department stores at 50 cents and $1.25 a jar. Try it today. You'll be glad you did. 32

MELLOWED A HUNDRED MILLION YEARS

While ferns grew high as trees . in PENNSYLVANIA

GLANCE into any petroleum trade journal and you will see that Bradford-Allegany crude oil commands the highest price of all Pennsylvania grade crudes. For Bradford-Allegany crude was formed a hundred million years ago during the Devonian Age—that wonderful age which produced so little of the world's oil compared to other geological ages—yet produced it of such superior quality!

The Sinclair Refining Company uses nothing but Bradford-Allegany crude in the manufacture of Sinclair Mobiline Motor Oil. In the big, new Sinclair refinery at Wellsville, N. Y., expert refining skill does what Nature left undone. Here Mobiline is triple-filtered, de-waxed at as low as 60° F. below zero and its carbon-forming content reduced to the minimum.

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Mobiline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication. After long, hard driving note how this Mobiline stands up—how it comes out of the crankcase almost as good as it went in. Note, especially, how very little Mobiline has been used up—positive, visible proof that this rich, Devonian oil protects the last mile as well as the first!

Gulistan re-creates Gem of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London

Ask to see 16th Century Hunting Carpet: Gulistan 25094.

This historic design, woven 400 years ago, is known to experts all over the world. "The finest of its kind," says Bode, the great European authority. The design reveals the influence of Chinese art in Persia. You will be able to distinguish for yourself the sacrificial vase, the cloud-band border which signifies long and happy life and many other fascinating symbols. This Gulistan in your home will create as much admiration and comment among your friends as its famous original has among connoisseurs. Five different color combinations.

RUG

"I cannot tell the difference . . . surely that is an Oriental!"

This scene of admiration and amazement is taking place in thousands of homes today.

When Gulistan is laid in a home, visitors take it for a costly Oriental. And for good reason!

The same shimmering sheen! The same jewel-like colors! The luxurious deep pile!

Two years ago Karagheusian, largest makers of Oriental rugs, succeeded in producing in their American plants a rug with the lustre and luxury of imported Orientals.

Even experts hesitated to tell the difference!

And today Gulistan makes available to you not merely ordinary Oriental designs, but the very specimens of Oriental Rug Art which are supreme in history . . . Old Masters!

Rugs created originally for the palaces and mosques of Old Persia! Rugs cherished by museums, and so intricate in design that even reproductions of them in imported Orientals are seldom found!

Does beauty such as this transform a home, a room? One glance gives the answer.

Is it surprising that rugs this Fall come ahead of other demands upon the family purse!

But to know exactly what you are getting when you go shopping for rugs, remember these plain facts.

Only Karagheusian can make Gulistan. All rugs so marked come from this famous House.

In Gulistan you get the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing processes as you pay hundreds more for in Karagheusian's expensive Persian and Chinese rugs.

Naturally, all the best stores have them. Many stores have arranged art gallery displays to show these beautiful rugs appropriately.

Look on the back of the rug for the silken label pictured above. That is your guarantee of authenticity. No Gulistan Rug has been O.K.'d by Karagheusian without it.

There are many designs and color combinations. Sizes from 22-1/2 by 36 inches ($10), to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($135). Also Stair Carpets and Hall Runners.

GEORGE, WHAT IN THE NAME OF COMMON SENSE HAPPENED TO YOUR HAIR? TURN AROUND. OH, OH, OH.
WHAT DO YOU MEAN OH, OH? THIS IS A SCIENTIFIC HAIR CUT. IT'S PERFECT. AND—
OH, IT'S AWFUL. YOU LOOK SIMPLY TERRIBLE. OH, I COULD CUT YOUR HAIR BETTER THAN THAT. MUCH BETTER.

LISTEN, I'VE CHANGED MY MIND. I'VE BEEN THINKING. WHY SPOIL THE BEST HAIR CUT I EVER HAD? I'M SORRY BUT—
AH, HA, YOU REFUSE BECAUSE YOU KNOW I COULD IMPROVE YOUR HAIR. YOU DON'T WANT ME TO HAVE THE SATISFACTION OF SNIPPING OFF A FEW STRAY HAIRS AND PROVING I CAN DO BETTER THAN THAT "BARBER".
EASY. TAKE IT EASY. I CAN FEEL THAT YOU MADE ANOTHER DEEP GASH IN MY HAIR AGAIN. EASY. JUST AROUND THE EDGE.
OH GEORGE BUNGLE, THE REASON THIS SCISSORS SLIPS NOW AND THEN IS BECAUSE YOU KEEP JUMPING AWAY FROM ME. HOLD STEADY.
ARE YOU DONE? MY WORD, JUST BY FEELING MY HAIR I KNOW YOU WENT TOO FAR.
OH, DON'T TALK SO SILLY. YOU LOOK—WELL A LOT BETTER THAN YOU DID. GO TO THE MIRROR.
I'LL ADMIT THAT ISN'T PERFECT BUT THE SCISSORS WAS DULL AND THE COMB WAS TOO BIG AND YOU JUST WOULDN'T HOLD STILL AND—
GEORGE BUNGLE, HOW DARE YOU USE SUCH LANGUAGE! HOW DARE YOU BLAME ME SIMPLY BECAUSE I IMPROVED—YES IMPROVED—
LISTEN, KINDLY HAND ME THAT COMB AND SCISSORS.
IT'S HOPELESS! OH WHAT—?
OH HUSH UP! AND YOU'D BETTER NOT USE ANY MORE OF THAT UTTERLY LOW LANGUAGE, EITHER.
SUCH CRUST! TALKING ME INTO LETTING YOU MAKE ME LOOK LIKE SOMETHING THAT BUSTED OUT OF A ZOO. LOOK AT ME! LOOK!
I STILL INSIST THAT I IMPROVED—YES IMPROVED—YOUR HAIR. I'LL ADMIT YOU LOOK WILD BUT THE BARBER IS THE ONE WHO DID THAT. NOT ME.

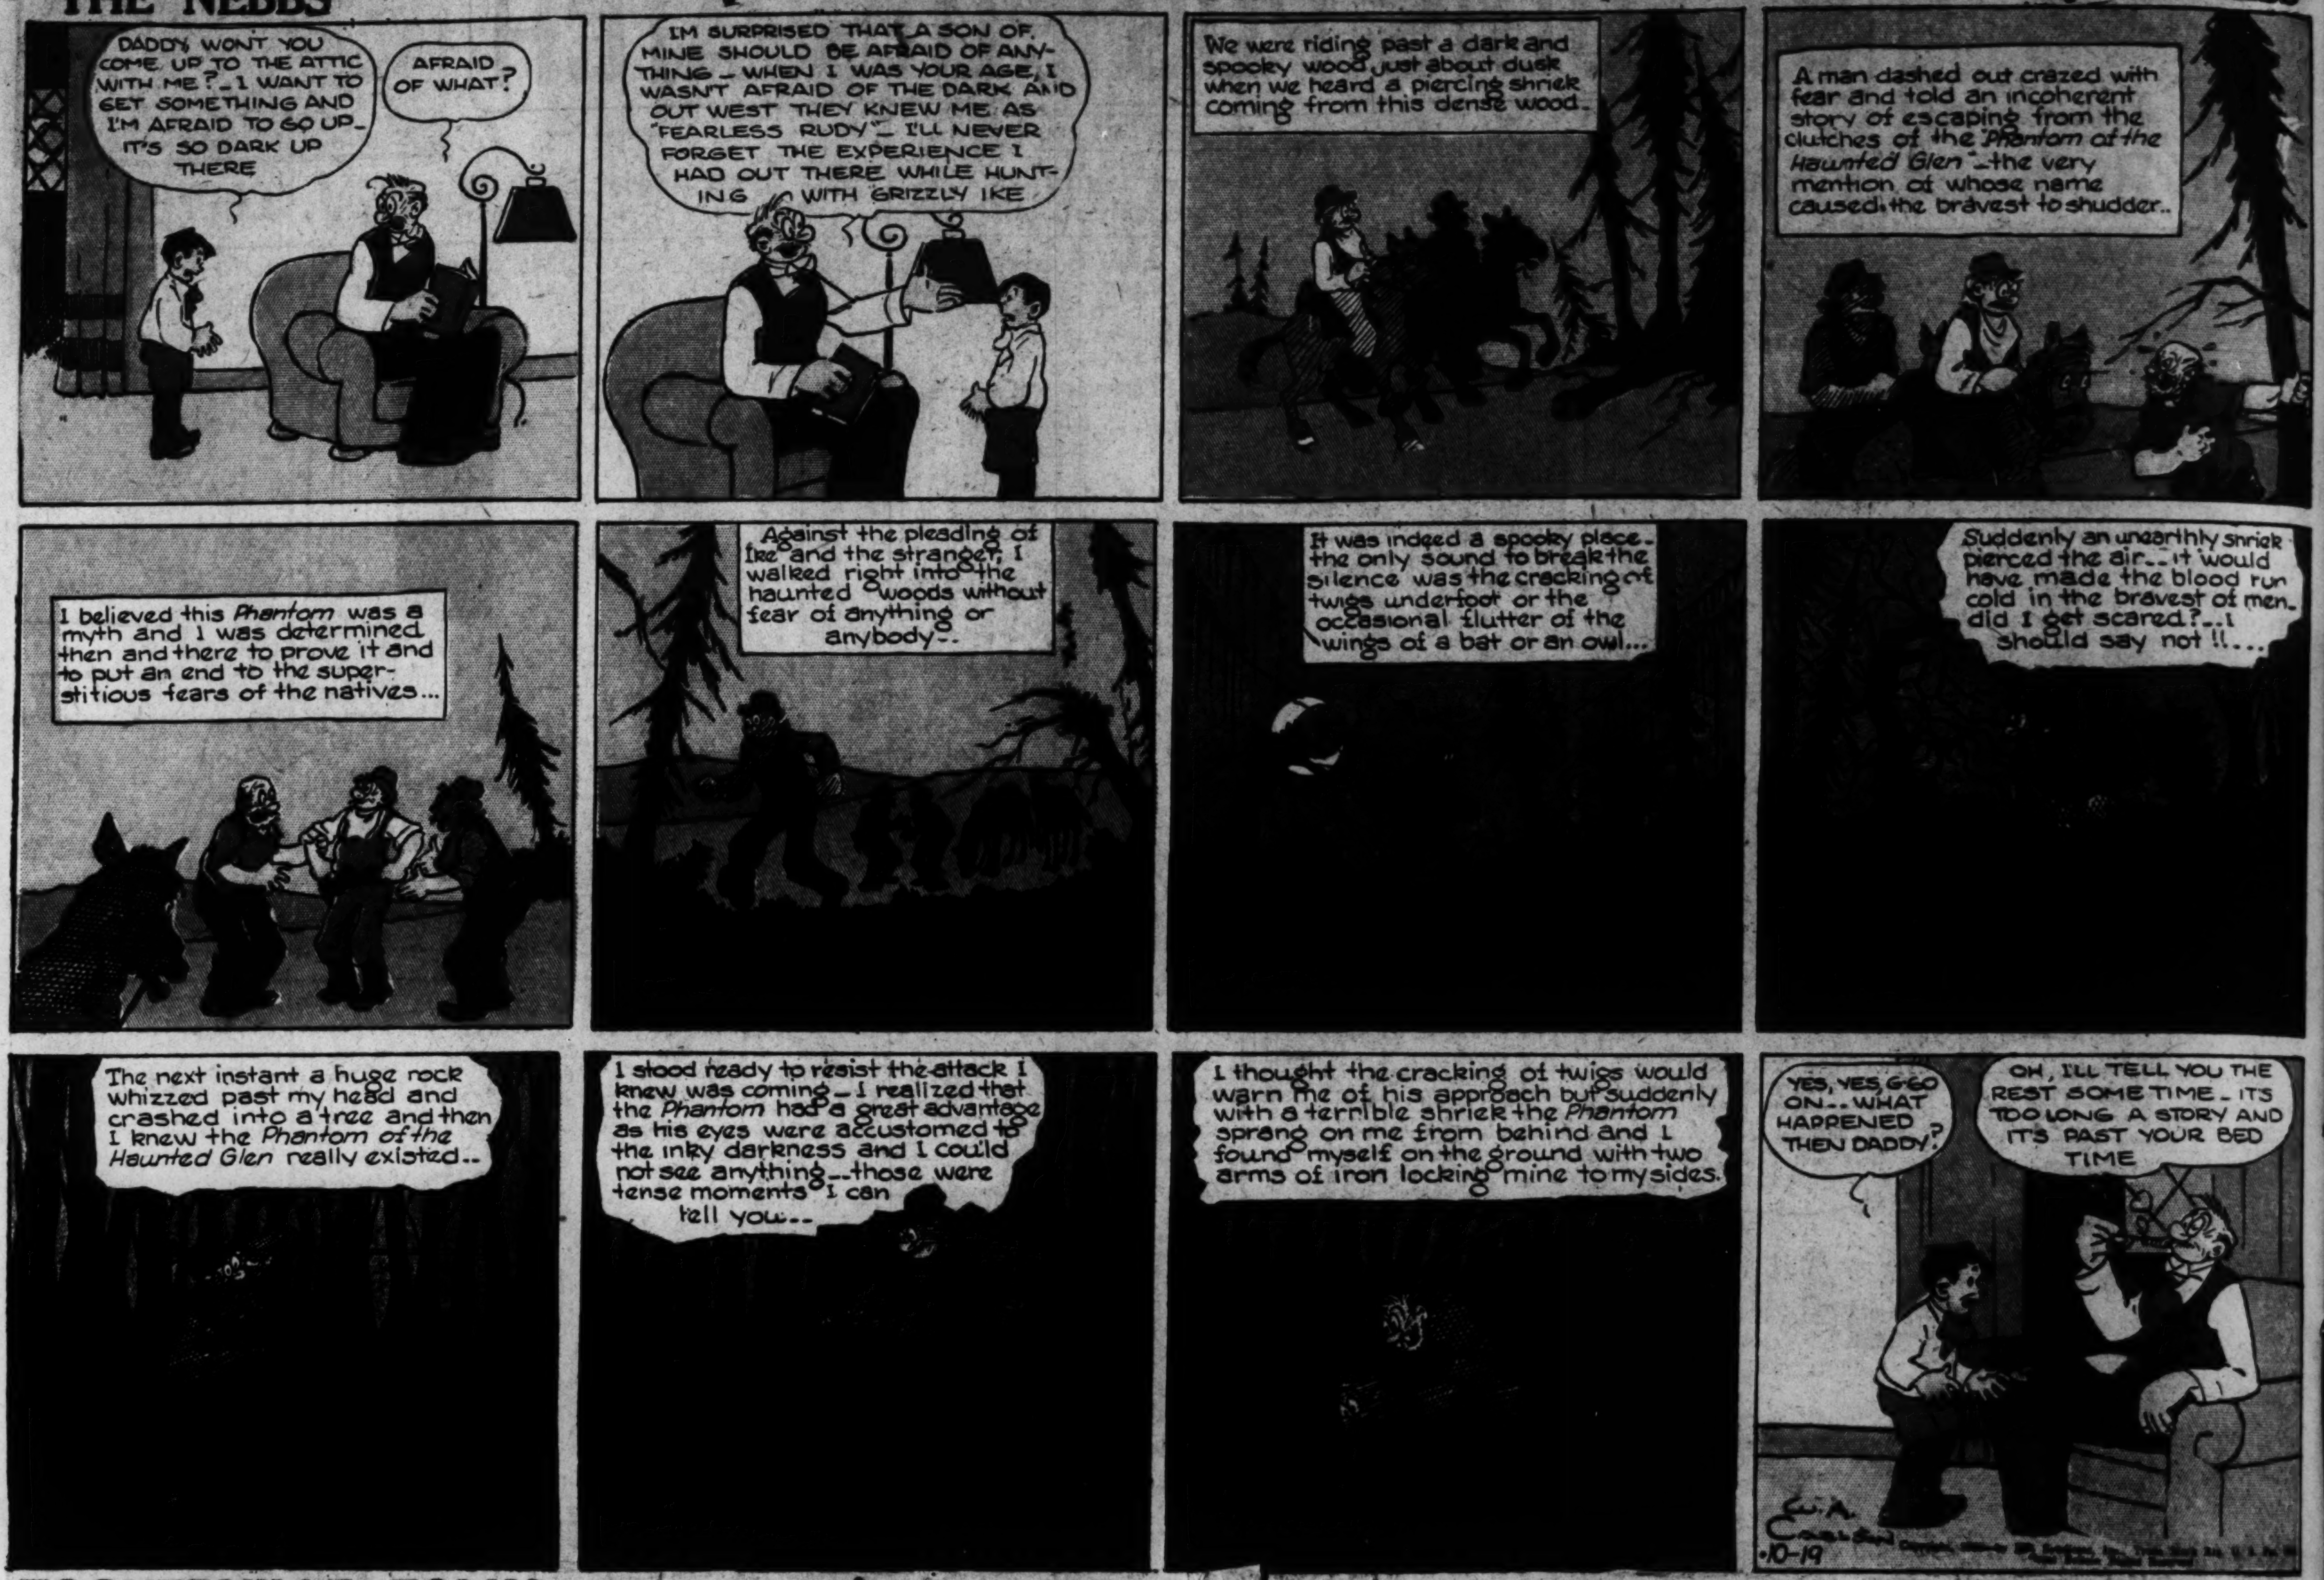
The Phantom Of The Haunted Glen

By SOL HESS



DADDY, WON'T YOU COME UP TO THE ATTIC WITH ME?_ I WANT TO GET SOMETHING AND I'M AFRAID TO GO UP_ IT'S SO DARK UP THERE AFRAID OF WHAT?
I'M SURPRISED THAT A SON OF MINE SHOULD BE AFRAID OF ANYTHING _ WHEN I WAS YOUR AGE, I WASN'T AFRAID OF THE DARK AND OUT WEST THEY KNEW ME AS "FEARLESS RUDY"_ I'LL NEVER FORGET THE EXPERIENCE I HAD OUT THERE WHILE HUNTING WITH GRIZZLY IKE
We were riding past a dark and spooky wood just about dusk when we heard a piercing shriek coming from this dense wood.
A man dashed out crazed with fear and told an incoherent story of escaping from the clutches of the "Phantom of the Haunted Glen"_ the very mention of whose name caused the bravest to shudder..
I believed this Phantom was a myth and I was determined then and there to prove it and to put an end to the superstitious fears of the natives...
Against the pleading of Ike and the stranger, I walked right into the haunted woods without fear of anything or anybody-.
It was indeed a spooky place_ the only sound to break the silence was the cracking of twigs underfoot or the occasional flutter of the wings of a bat or an owl...
Suddenly an unearthly shriek pierced the air-- it would have made the blood run cold in the bravest of men_ did I get scared?-- I should say not!!...
The next instant a huge rock whizzed past my head and crashed into a tree and then I knew the Phantom of the Haunted Glen really existed--
I stood ready to resist the attack I knew was coming_ I realized that the Phantom had a great advantage as his eyes were accustomed to the inky darkness and I could not see anything--those were tense moments I can tell you--
I thought the cracking of twigs would warn me of his approach but suddenly with a terrible shriek the Phantom sprang on me from behind and I found myself on the ground with two arms of iron locking mine to my sides.
YES, YES, G-GO ON-- WHAT HAPPENED THEN DADDY?
OH, I'LL TELL YOU THE REST SOME TIME_ IT'S TOO LONG A STORY AND IT'S PAST YOUR BED TIME

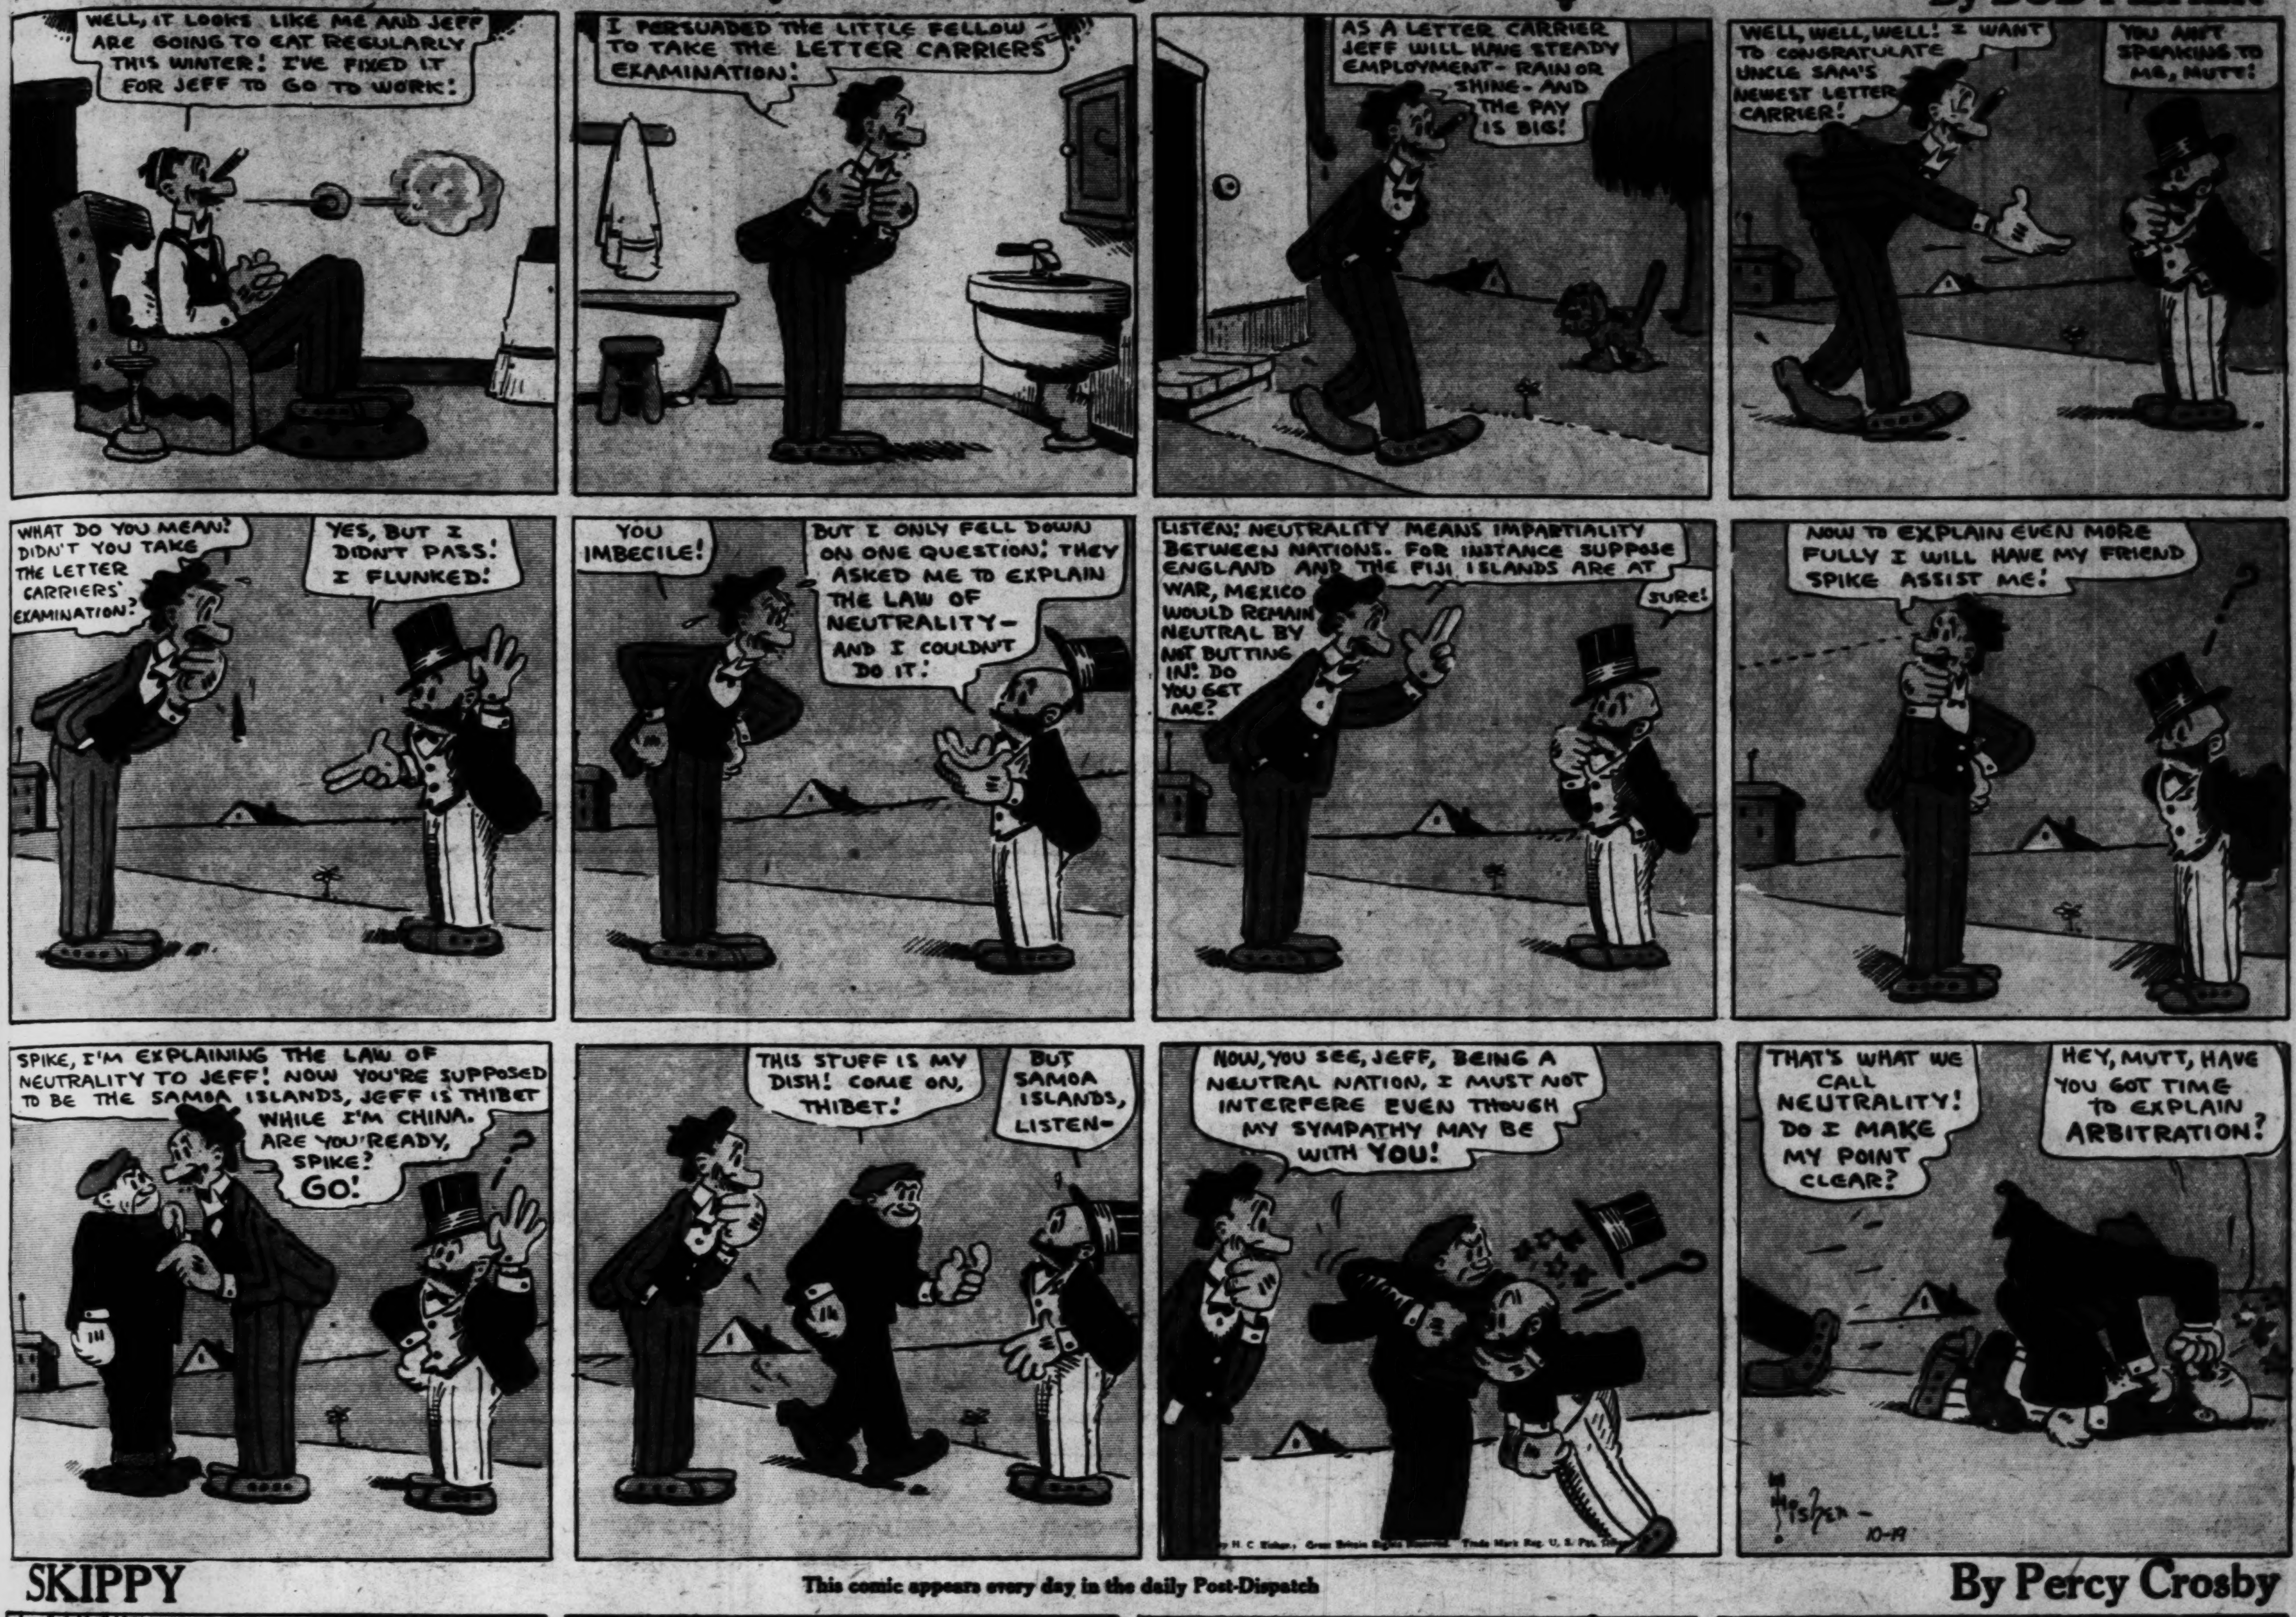
MUTT AND JEFF

◆ Knowledge Is Power ◆

By BUD FISHER



WELL, IT LOOKS LIKE ME AND JEFF ARE GOING TO EAT REGULARLY THIS WINTER! I'VE FIXED IT FOR JEFF TO GO TO WORK!
I PERSUADED THE LITTLE FELLOW TO TAKE THE LETTER CARRIERS' EXAMINATION!
AS A LETTER CARRIER JEFF WILL HAVE STEADY EMPLOYMENT - RAIN OR SHINE - AND THE PAY IS BIG!
WELL, WELL, WELL! I WANT TO CONGRATULATE UNCLE SAM'S NEWEST LETTER CARRIER!
YOU AIN'T SPEAKING TO ME, MUTT!
WHAT DO YOU MEAN? DIDN'T YOU TAKE THE LETTER CARRIERS' EXAMINATION?
YES, BUT I DIDN'T PASS! I FLUNKED!
YOU IMBECILE!
BUT I ONLY FELL DOWN ON ONE QUESTION! THEY ASKED ME TO EXPLAIN THE LAW OF NEUTRALITY - AND I COULDN'T DO IT!
LISTEN! NEUTRALITY MEANS IMPARTIALITY BETWEEN NATIONS. FOR INSTANCE SUPPOSE ENGLAND AND THE FIJI ISLANDS ARE AT WAR, MEXICO WOULD REMAIN NEUTRAL BY NOT BUTTING IN! DO YOU GET ME?
SURE!
NOW TO EXPLAIN EVEN MORE FULLY I WILL HAVE MY FRIEND SPIKE ASSIST ME!
SPIKE, I'M EXPLAINING THE LAW OF NEUTRALITY TO JEFF! NOW YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO BE THE SAMOA ISLANDS, JEFF IS THIBET WHILE I'M CHINA. ARE YOU READY, SPIKE? GO!
THIS STUFF IS MY DISH! COME ON, THIBET!
BUT SAMOA ISLANDS, LISTEN-
NOW, YOU SEE, JEFF, BEING A NEUTRAL NATION, I MUST NOT INTERFERE EVEN THOUGH MY SYMPATHY MAY BE WITH YOU!
THAT'S WHAT WE CALL NEUTRALITY! DO I MAKE MY POINT CLEAR?
HEY, MUTT, HAVE YOU GOT TIME TO EXPLAIN ARBITRATION?
